Beach Access Granted as Restrictions Eased

The Cayman Islands is now moving to a new phase of easing its stringent lockdown provisions with further relaxations starting from this weekend and a new Level 3 (Moderate Suppression) taking effect next week, down from Level 4 (High Suppression).

There is also some respite across the long Discovery Day holiday weekend although most of the lockdown measures under Level 4 will however remain in place.

Hon. Premier Alden McLaughlin announced that from May 19th for an 18-day period until June 2nd the new Level 3 status would also see the re-introduction of a range of further business activities.

Those include the construction, development and related sectors, hardware

It has been some time now since this publication did its Forgotten Heroes series. This series of articles were written to highlight specific groups of our community, though essential, who were often overlooked; or who did not get their due recognition. The time spent in this global pandemic has already started teaching us, as people, the importance of every single job and has given us a new definition of the term "essential." We have begun to realize the value of people doing tasks that were previously thought of only as low wage, unskilled work. However, we have also real-

THE WORLD ACCORDING TO COVID-19

RANDOM MUSINGS IN AN UNCERTAIN WORLD

To say COVID-19 is a 'game-changer' falls far short of explaining the extent to which it already changing the global society.

From Cayman to London and beyond, the enormity of the adjustments to the way of life we have become accustomed - and aspire to is unimaginable.

The World Health Organisation (WHO) is now saying that the virus could become embedded and we may just have to learn to live with it until a vaccine is developed.

But how do we co-exist with COVID-19 given the scale of the disruption to our way of life that demands.

EASED RESTRICTIONS FOR THE HOLIDAY WEEKEND AHEAD OF NEW LEVEL 3

stores, garages, boat maintenance and car washes among others.

HOLIDAY WEEKEND RELAXATIONS

With the long Discovery Day bank holiday weekend, the Sunday all-day hard curfew is being relaxed with allowances for an extended two-hour exercise period including limited access to public beaches.

It's one of a series of measures announced by Police Commissioner Derek Byrne as he detailed the new provisions which will be in force for the next 18 days.

These include some adjustments to the hard curfew and shelter-in-place place soft curfew systems mainly affecting access to the beaches, fishing and exercising.

It has been stressed that in order to ensure that beaches are not overcrowded the alphabetical system will be used.

Social distancing is still to be observed with a maximum of two adults assembling together.

While exercise is permitted activities such as picnicking, paddle boarding, and jet ski riding among others will remain prohibited.

Particularly welcome is news that fishing is once again allowed on the main island as is the case for the Sister Islands, but under restrictions of two persons only per boat.

Some stretches of water remain out of bounds namely Star Fish Point, Rum Point and the Sandbar.

STEP DOWN TO LEVEL 3 NEXT WEEK

And with Cayman now moving to the new Level 3 status from next Tuesday Premier McLaughlin, said that a system of prioritising which construction companies will be allowed to restart operations in being put in place.

This will include a process of testing people now coming back into the workforce with an initial target of 3,200 tests targeted.

The new stepped-down level also means that public transportation will start running again on condition that they operate at only 50% capacity with passengers required to wear masks.

► Hon. Premier Alden McLaughlin

The mandatory wearing of masks is becoming a prominent feature of Cayman's 'new normal' and is also applicable indoors in public establishments.

Plans also call for a further gradual reopening of the economy over the next few weeks with a target of around 10,000 test results and allowing other business activity to start up again from around the first week of June.

TESTING IS WORKING

Meanwhile, while it might not be a target to look forward to, as of Friday Cayman was just 6 cases away from a milestone 100 positive COVID-19 cases.

In giving his daily update on the virus in the territory on Friday, Chief Medical Officer Dr John Lee reported that to date there have been 94 confirmed cases of COVID-19 resulting from one new positive case.

There were 558 tests carried out in the past 24 hours with 486 done by the Health Services Authority (HSA) and 72 by Doctors Hospital. Nine were symptomatic and 28 asymptomatic.

54 persons in all have now fully recovered from the disease.

There are currently 59 persons in government-operated isolation facilities and a further 104 self-isolating.

There are currently no hospitalisations from the disease.

With the only positive result open Friday resulting from travelling along with six of the seven cases the previous day, it is seen as an indication that Cayman might have past the peak in community transmission.

His Excellency, Governor Martyn Roper updated on Friday that Cayman has not moved up the global rankings of testing being 10th in the world for per capita.

On the broad issue of testing and reopening the economy on a phased basis, Premier McLaughlin said there was a target of around 10,000 tests.

He also admonished: "Dead people don't make good customers or clients, and sick people don't make good workers." 🌐

FOSTERS HELPING THEIR CUSTOMERS COPE WITH COVID-19

The effects of the COVID-19 pandemic continue to be felt not only for its toll on public health across the world but increasingly in the supply and cost of good and services.

Leading supermarket outlet Fosters Supermarkets report that they are committed to keeping their prices reasonable and affordable in this crisis but have to adapt to developments in the supply chain.

In a release, Fosters state: "As the world continues to deal with the effects of the COVID-19 pandemic, the supermarket industry continues to see price increases across a range of products categories like meats, poultry, fish and eggs."

According to Fosters, in April, grocery prices in the US saw the largest one-month increase since February 1974, according to the latest stats from the US Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The supermarket advises its many customers that "over the last few months, we've been working to keep price changes to a minimum in our stores, and we'll continue to do so as we monitor market trends."

However, it notes, "you may find that some minor price increases do occur."

"When this happens, please know that we were simply unable to maintain the previous price. Rest assured that at no time have we ever, nor will we ever, raise prices because of increased demand," the supermarket said in a statement.

In a direct appeal to shoppers, Fosters encourages them to bring to the attention of management any issues that they might not be clear about, especially regarding prices.

"If you do see pricing that doesn't look right, say something," the management says.

"We aim to be as accurate and transparent as possible and our in-store management team is always there to assist. Similarly, if you notice something after leaving one of our stores, email or message us on social media."

Meanwhile, Fosters updates that they while the supply of products return to a somewhat normal level, there are some high-demand products in our region or globally which remain scarce, and many products have been cut from production while manufacturers focus on producing only high-demand products.

The supermarket says it is continuing to source alternative products from any quality source (when available) to ensure our community have the products they need, at the best price possible, during this time. 🌐

Caymanians Supported Overseas

The Cayman Islands Government Office in the UK (CIGOUK) continues to operate an efficient remote working model in the UK, which will remain in place until at least 15 June to be reassessed at that point.

Supporting Caymanians overseas has always been one of the key areas of activity for CIGO-UK and has been put into heightened focus as a result of the COVID-19 outbreak.

CIGOUK have five members on the team who are working remotely, conducting daily internal team zoom calls, answering consular services enquiries, assisting Caymanians in need via phone, email and other applications, and assisting with the coordination of the emergency airbridge flights between London and George Town.

There are a number of enquires received by the CIGOUK about travel back to Cayman in May and June, and there are also enquiries about travel from Cayman to London for students who are returning to University or boarding school in September.

Coordination of the emergency airbridge flights from the UK to the Cayman Islands includes working with The Cayman Islands Government, His Excellency the Governor and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in the UK. This also entails coordinating enquiries, speaking individually to persons to ascertain their situation and need, keeping Caymanians updated on airbridge logistics, ensuring the NEOC and Governor's Office are up to date with the numbers of Caymanians wishing to travel home and coordinating with British Airways in advance of the flight departure and on the day of departure, to ensure smooth passage of travellers.

In addition, CIGOUK staff remain available to assist during regular working hours and have launched a series of weekly zoom calls for Caymanians overseas who have remained in the UK, to keep them up to date, and feel closer to home. CIGOUK efforts to continue to build the network of Caymanians overseas also includes sharing information and advice from the Cayman Islands Government and close partnership with Cayman Connection UK and the Friends of Cayman group.

Cayman Islands Representative to the UK and Europe Andre Ebanks commented:

"As COVID-19 still presents the world with considerable challenges and uncertainty, we wish to reassure Caymanians overseas that we are working tirelessly to ensure that we have the right information and close connections with relevant government departments in the UK and in Cayman to assist those in need. We encourage Caymanians overseas to get in touch with us and to stay in touch through social media and through registration on our website. In partnership with our affiliate Cayman Connection UK, we arrange weekly Zoom calls (our "Virtual Yard Meetings") on Wednesdays, now at 5pm UK time, for anyone to join and share their experiences. We are also moving towards business as usual as much as possible by reinvigorating our public affairs activities with relevant international public and private sector stakeholders."

WHO'S GONNA LOOK AFTER THE KIDS?

George Town Central MLA Kenneth Bryan has placed in the public domain an issue which has forced itself to the top of the agenda of countries around the world grappling with the challenges of reopening the economies.

That issue is; who looks after the children if parents are forced to return to work as lockdown is eased but while schools remain closed.

In a live social media post, Mr Bryan called on the government to provide clarity and guidance on the matter.

"Here's where the problem lies," he stated. "Who's gonna watch the kids?"

He said "I was concerned about the lack of discussion" and the absence of a decision on the matter by the government "as its a real serious issue by families who may have to go back to work and have young kids."

Referring to government regulations on social-distancing, including restrictions on people outside the immediate household, the George Town Central MLA lamented the challenges confronting parents where he said there are no educational facilities and no care services in place to support the parents in this situation.

Mr Bryan said he agrees with the plans top gradually reopen the economy but is worried that this critical aspect is being overlooked.

Saying he'd been contacted by his constituencies who have expressed concern about the uncertainties involved, MLA Bryan is calling on the government for clarity and "a real-life discussion which really needs to happen."

"Where is the plan for this rollout?" he asked, stating, "I haven't been involved in it. I want to be involved in it because somebody has to think about that."

In a nod to advantages of female leadership, Mr Bryan said he was "worried that not enough of female touch has been involved in the thinking of stuff like that" especially when it comes to the care and welfare of children.

He is calling for wide public debate of the issue and is urging the government to come up with a clear policy plan and guidance on this issue which he said was a crucial hurdle to clear as the economy is gradually reopened.

"This is a very, very important hurdle as what we don't want is for parents having to decide whether their children are protected or whether to keep their jobs." He said he also didn't want businesses to be forced in that dilemma.

"Everybody is going to have a difficult choice to make if this matter is not addressed, and it needs to be thought about. It has to be discussed," Mr Bryan said.

In urging the sharing of his Facebook Live post, he said it was important to get the government to address the matter as parents should not be placed in such an uncertain situation to make such a difficult choice between their jobs and their children. 🌐

NRA ACCELERATING ROAD INFRASTRUCTURE PROJECTS

The National Roads Authority (NRA) has announced that it will be accelerating critical road infrastructure projects while taking advantage of the reduction in the number of vehicles on the Island's roads during this time.

The NRA has underscored that crew members and contractors who will be conducting the roadworks will be tested before being phased into work. In addition, crew members on work sites will be provided with personal protective equipment and will have to adhere to safety protocols and social distancing guidelines.

Among the projects to be undertaken over the next few weeks include the upgrading of the Chrissie Tomlinson and Grand Harbour Roundabouts located in the Red Bay and Prospect areas.

A number of major roads across Grand Cayman will also undergo asphalt resurfacing. Those roads to benefit from resurfacing will include Shedden Road, North Sound Road and

► The Chrissie Tomlinson Roundabout in Prospect will feature a change in camber and new hot mix asphalt surface

► Deteriorated sections of Shedden Road are being milled out and replaced with new asphalt

West Bay Road, which would ordinarily be difficult to pave during heavy traffic.

Minister of Commerce, Planning and Infrastructure, Hon Joey Hew has said that planned expenditure for 2020/2021 infrastructure work includes over $25 million in road projects that will provide a much needed stimulus to the local economy during the COVID-19 crisis.

Minister Hew further stated, "We are using this time as an opportunity for the National Roads Authority to proceed with critical road construction and pavement rehabilitation projects that would prove more difficult and costly to achieve during regular traffic conditions. Crews will be engaged under circumstances where they are adhering to social distancing protocols and equipped with proper PPE, so that we can ensure their safety while they carry out this vital improvement to the Island's infrastructure".

The NRA is also gearing up for construction on a new road that will provide a connection between Sparky Drive and the roundabout adjacent to George Town Landfill on the Esterley Tibbetts Highway. 🌐

BIG CHANGE IN THE CAYMAN CORPORATE WORLD

After 11 years in the Cayman Islands leading corporate and commercial law firm, Higgs & Johnson is divesting its operations here.

In a statement, the company whose headquarters are in the Bahamas says: "Following closely on the heels of Hurricane Dorian in The Bahamas, the current and projected future negative impact of COVID-19 has caused Higgs & Johnson to undertake a careful analysis of its business operations across the jurisdictions.

As part of this analysis, Higgs & Johnson has made the difficult decision to divest itself of its business operations in the Cayman Islands."

The company's local operations are being taken over by HSM Group.

Higgs & Johnson and H&J Corporate Services (Cayman) Ltd. will remain operative for an appropriate period of time in order to allow for an orderly transition of the business to the HSM Group.

The company says it will support its employees through the transition process "and continues to rely on their professionalism and support."

Higgs & Johnson set up shop in Cayman when it merged with Truman Bodden & Company 11 years ago in 2009.

Regarding handing over its operations to HSM group, it states: "Higgs & Johnson has a well established relationship with the HSM Group and anticipates a continued business relationship with the firm on Bahamian related matters ensuring even closer links with Cayman and the offshore world at large."

It adds that: "In light of its longstanding commitment to the Cayman Islands, Higgs & Johnson will approach the above in such manner as to minimize, to the greatest degree possible, the impact on local staff and clients.

Higgs & Johnson states that it has a well established relationship with the HSM Group and anticipates a continued business relationship with the firm on Bahamian related matters ensuring even closer links with Cayman and the offshore world at large.

On its website SMM group in confirming the deal says: "The HSM Group will be acquiring the Cayman operations of Higgs & Johnson, with whom we have had a long established relationship."

PLANNING DEPARTMENT SUPPORTS REOPENING OF CONSTRUCTION SECTOR

The Department of Planning in the Ministry of Commerce, Planning and Infrastructure, has announced that it will provide support to the phased opening of the construction sector starting on Tuesday, May 19, as announced by Premier Alden McLaughlin at the daily press briefing on Friday, May 15.

In the first phase, the Department will provide in-field inspection services for those projects with inspections pending since the implementation of the shelter in place regulations, transitioning to multi-family and commercial projects as these projects come back online.

Inspection staff will be tested, provided with personal protective equipment and will be required to adhere to safety protocols and social distancing guidelines. The Department of Planning will also introduce the use of virtual inspections to complement those efforts.

In commenting on the new development, Minister of Commerce, Planning and Infrastructure, Hon Joey Hew said, "The best way forward is a phased approach that allows the sector to gear up, as workers will need to be tested prior to commencement. Projects with final inspections pending requires the least amount of manpower and preparation to re-commence".

For the period, March 25-May 13, the Department of Planning received 72 new applications for planning permissions, and 159 new applications for permits. The Department performed 660 permit-related and 158 planning-related plan reviews. A total of 93 permits valued at approximately $23.5 million, and 64 grants of planning permissions valued at approximately $33 million were issued.

Deputy Governor and Head of the Civil Service, Hon. Franz Manderson has commended the staff of the Department of Planning and the Ministry for all the work completed while staff members work remotely. "It is gratifying to see the civil service responding in an exemplary manner, our working from home capabilities have been ably demonstrated by the performance of the Planning department. I am delighted and proud of our civil service," Hon. Manderson stated.

The Department's transition to remote-working has been the early adoption of e-services in the form of the Online Planning System (OPS). This portal provides customers with the ability to submit for and receive planning consent and building control approvals from the comfort and safety of their homes.

Members of the public can access the Online Planning System at www.dop.secure.ky. Payment for the Online Planning System transactions can still be

Resumption of Summary Court trials and the need for personal attendance

Press Release by Hon. Chief Justice Anthony Smellie

As stated in previous press releases (available at www.judicial.ky/covid-19), the objective of the judiciary and judicial administration continues to be the provision of access to justice, even while minimizing risk to the health of members of staff, the jurors, the attorneys, other members of the public, police and prison officers, probation officers and other representatives of the various agencies who must interact with the Courts for the delivery of justice.

While the Shelter-in-Place Regulations have been operative, the Courts have continued to function by way of video-link technology for remote hearings and by the internet and website for online access to the Registries, Court Funds Office and other functions. This has resulted in as little disruption as possible to the timely disposal of cases in the family, civil and financial services divisions. However, there has been an inevitable and significant impact upon the disposal of criminal cases, especially trials by jury because of the obvious risks which would be attendant upon having jurors sit and confer together in close quarters for the trials and deliberations.

But now that the society (and business community in particular), gradually return to work, so too will court activities more fully resume, albeit in a managed and incremental way. In the interests of justice, it is of paramount importance that trials resume so that justice may be administered timely, especially for those persons who are awaiting trial in custody or on bail.

Like many of our regional and global counterparts, courts are grappling with how to keep the wheels of justice turning in an efficient and effective manner. What has become abundantly clear is that with the ongoing need for social distancing, as COVID-19 is likely to be with us for quite some time, courts will have to embrace innovation in all areas of business to be able to effectively provide high quality and timely service.

The courts have been early adopters of video link hearings, commencing remote hearings from the prisons since 2014 to reduce the need for prison officers to transport defendants to court on a daily basis and have since 2000 held commercial trials simultaneously in court and through video link. This service has drastically increased as a result of COVID-19 and is likely to become a mainstay feature of court procedure going forward. For instance, only this past week, we successfully convened the court of Appeal Easter Session with the President and Justices of Appeal presiding in Court in Cayman by video links from their respective homes in the UK.

However, whilst video link technology will be appropriate for many hearings, it may not at this time, be adopted as a mandatory substitute for open court trials, where the Defendant has a constitutional and legal right to a public hearing and to appear in person before the court.

Accordingly, in keeping with the procedures described below, criminal trials will commence next week first in the Summary Courts and judge alone trials in the Grand Court, to be followed, commencing 1 July 2020, with jury trials in the Grand Court.

The public are assured that Judicial Administration staff are actively preparing for the return of those court users who must attend in person, with the appropriate protocols regarding health, safety and crowd limits (social distancing). These measures must and will be strictly applied.

Commencement of Hard Curfew Breach Cases in the Summary Court

Commencing the week of May 19th, charges for breaches of the Hard Curfew regimes are scheduled to be heard in the Summary Court and defendants to these charges are required to attend court for a first mention hearing. Appropriate social distancing measures will be established whereby hearings will be held in the Town Hall ("Constitution Hall", George Town Center) and 5 persons will be summoned into the Hall at half hour intervals, with 25 persons in total being presented before the court each day. The total scheduled number of Hard Curfew breach cases to be considered next week will be 25.

Resumption of cases adjourned administratively.

Defendants whose cases have been subject to the rolling 28-day adjournment since the Public Health 'Shelter in Place' Regulations came into effect, are advised that they are required to attend court at their next scheduled court date.

All defendants should check the court website <https://www.judicial.ky/courts/cause-lists-all> or the websites of the Caymanian Compass, Cayman News Service or Caymanian Times for publication of the weekly Summary Court Cause Lists which will give notice of the date for hearing of their cases, from now on until further notice.

All persons, including defendants attending court, must wear a mask upon entering the building and will be required to sanitise their hands upon entry.

Defendants who require further information are to call the Criminal Registry Help Desk - 244-3867 or Email: criminalregistry@judicial.ky. The Courts offices are not open to the general public at this time, save for attendance at one's court hearing itself.

Imminent Resumption of Court Trials

Members of the Public are also advised that other categories of Summary Court trials will soon resume generally.

Effective 19 May 2020 the Summary Court will resume criminal trials, starting with cases involving breaches of the Hard Curfew. See further below.

Effective 25 May 2020, the Summary Court will resume hearing all other criminal trials. Effective 28 May 2020, the Summary Court will resume in person attendance at the Drug Rehabilitation Court. Testing for that Court will resume on 25 May 2020. Effective 16 June 2020, the Summary Court will resume hearing all Traffic Court matters.

Whilst video link hearings for mentions, remands, bail and case management will continue to take place, but as already mentioned, in the interests of justice, trials are to resume by attendance of defendants, witnesses and attorneys in person (unless otherwise directed by the court).

Again, Judicial Administration wishes to advise all court users that it is taking every measure to apply reasonable social distancing procedures, sanitization and hygiene practices to ensure the safety of all upon resumption of business. All categories of court users involved in trials will be advised of the requirements for attendance at court, including the health and safety protocols to be observed in and around the court room.

As essential services providers, all Legal Aid Criminal Law Attorneys and

► Hon. Chief Justice Anthony Smellie

Duty Counsel have been issued their Curfew Exemption letters via the Legal Aid Office. If attorneys are not yet in possession of the same, they are invited to contact the Legal Aid Office at legalaid@judicial.ky.

Resumption of jury trials in the Grand Court.

A further press release will be issued shortly to advise on the protocols for resumption of jury trials on 1 July 2020. The names of those who will be called to serve as jurors have been settled by the random computer selection process from the Voters List and summonses will be issued next week.

Public and press access to Court proceedings.

While open court hearings will resume for the reasons explained above, this regrettably, does not mean that there can be unlimited personal public or press access to these proceedings. In order to ensure proper social distancing, the proceedings will be broadcast by a live stream to a dedicated location (either Constitution Hall or Court 4) where a limited number of members of the public might take turn observing the proceedings. Accredited members of the press will be allowed password access to the video link proceedings while only 2 members at a time may be allowed to be physically present in the court room. No audio or video recording of the proceedings are allowed (in which regard see Practice Direction 8 of 2020 at <http://www.judicial.ky/practice-directions>). Members of the press should contact the Courts Criminal Registry (as above) for further instructions. 🌐

Forgotten Heroes: Healthcare Workers

ized that even the professions we held in high regard before did not receive enough credit. Today, we highlight one area that is finally starting to get its fair share of thanks and praise, the healthcare workers.

Now, when the term healthcare worker is mentioned, the first thing that comes to mind usually is the group of nurses, doctors, and technicians who serve our community on a continual basis. In this coronavirus crisis, hopefully, we have started to realize the true depth of that sector of workers though. Throughout the world, the aforementioned workers, (nurses, doctors, etc.), have been receiving much love and admiration. In my opinion, that is a good start. However, so much more is needed. Ideally, when this pandemic is all over, we as a nation need to insist that we do not return to status quo with our thinking. We need to continue to hold in our minds and hearts those individuals who are on the frontline right now; those who are going to work to ensure the safety of us all. Can we imagine, for a moment, if none of these individuals were willing to take their place in the most vulnerable of situations.

Additionally, it behooves us to remember that it takes a lot of individuals in a lot of jobs to make a healthcare system operate. They might not be the jobs that readily come to mind, but the pharmacists, porters, janitorial staff, cooks, registration personnel, security, facility workers, and accounting/HR staff members are essential workers in every right. One nurse from the HSA, who asked to remain anonymous, had this to say, "I feel really appreciated right now, but although there are people who thank me for my service, there are a lot of other people working in the hospital who are deserving of thanks as well. The cleaners, porters and nursing aides are all working hard to do their part for this island. And don't forget the pharmacists."

As for pharmacists, the need for prescriptions and expert advice never ends. These professionals have been continuing to put their own safety at risk as well. Mr. Mark Campbell, pharmacist with CTMH, although humbled by the request for his quote had this to say, "It has been very challenging but, it has been so rewarding just knowing that I have been able to contribute and make a difference during this time." These words should resonate with us as we move forward through, and out of, this pandemic.

The bottom line is that we are all in a new "norm" now and we are experiencing a world crisis the likes of which no one under the age of 110 years-old has ever experienced and can remember. Nevertheless, just as our forefathers weathered storms and made it through difficult times, we shall make it through this as well. The best thing that we can do is to ensure that when we emerge on the other side we do not go back to our old way of thinking. Do not let our healthcare workers, inclusive of all job titles, go back to being Forgotten Heroes. 🌐

THE WORLD ACCORDING TO COVID-19

The sheer scale of the public health and socio-economic crisis unleashed on the world by this pandemic will be the subject of detailed study and review a century from now, the same way we are now considering in awe the 1918 Spanish Flu.

While everyone speaks about 'the new normal' what we are faced with is 'a new abnormal'.

While it's said that COVID-19 doesn't discriminate and is already showing evidence of mutating into other strains, it is clearly rolling back the rug and exposing many of the inequalities in our societies - even on the healthcare battlefield against the disease.

But there are other issues far less controversial but more immediate with even more far-reaching consequences.

COPING WITH CORONAVIRUS; QUESTIONS IN SEARCH OF ANSWERS

How do you organise schools? How do you get young children to observe safe-distancing?

How do you practice safe working in jobs and tasks that for health and safety reasons require two or more people?

How do you organise and observe safe distancing on planes, trains, buses and coaches?

How do you safe-distance in airport queues for arrivals and departures? How long will that take and how will affect travelling?

How would that work on cruise ships, and what would that mean for the cruise industry?

How do you practice safe distancing and observe other anti-COVID protocols in supermarkets and shops? How long would shopping take? How would that disrupt your 'normal' day schedule?

How do you adjust? How do supermarkets and other public-facing businesses adjust?

How do you safe-distance and observe other anti-COVID protocols in team sports?

How do you arrange safe-distancing and control passionate fans and spectators in sports and entertainment venues? How would that impact venue capacity, attendance and gate receipts...and other costs such as players' and staff wages?

How do you practice, observe and enforce safe-distancing and observe other anti-COVID protocols at the beach and in other places of public gathering?

How should police arrest and restrain suspects while observing safe-distancing and adhering to other anti-COVID protocols?

How do we safeguard and compensate frontline workers?

How do you safe-distance, observe other anti-COVID protocols and maintain family and friendships in private spaces such as inviting friends to your home? Should you even invite friends to your home?

And what's to become of handshakes, hugs and kisses?

This is but a short list. There's much more to ponder not counting the imponderables.

Like wearing masks or other face coverings in our western societies, the necessity is now becoming a fashion statement as a way of coping.

But what about the ID and security implications in a CCTV world?

What's certain, the way we interact as societies has changed...possibly forever.

In all of this, a major role is emerging for modern technology...as well as a return to some tried and true old-time ways of doing things.

COVID-19 is not just a game-changer, it's a disruptor.

Innovators are needed as much as a vaccine. 🌐

Chamber of Commerce launches 'Safe Return to Work' Guidelines

The Cayman Islands Chamber of Commerce has launched a 'Safe Return to Work' guide containing recommendations for health and safety protocols and approaches to COVID-19 prevention in the workplace.

As more businesses receive permission from the government to reopen, preventive measures are necessary in order to prepare for a safe return to work and a gradual re-start of business activities. Physical distancing measures, increased hygiene and other precautions will, therefore, have to be enforced in the workplace to contain infections during the phased reopening of Cayman's economy.

The publication aims to provide general guidance and information to employers on how to adapt their working environment so that returning workers can feel safe and protected. All enterprises, regardless of their size or sector, are encouraged to adopt these recommendations to enable workers to return to work safely and, as far as possible, not affect business activities negatively.

The 'Safe Return to Work' publication is based on an original work by the International Labour Office (ILO). It has been carefully adapted by The Cayman Islands Chamber of Commerce to reflect the laws and regulations in Cayman, and has been thoroughly reviewed by Public Health Cayman Islands.

In addition to this comprehensive guideline, the Chamber will also focus on protocols for specific industry sectors in more detail.

"We will be releasing a series of easy-to-read infographic posters as each sector is permitted to return to work", said Chamber CEO, Will Pineau. "We hope that these posters will be useful for employers to distribute to employees and display in their workplace as a visual reminder of the protocols that employees should be following on a day-to-day basis."

Posters have already been completed for the construction industry, as well as those who work in an office environment, and will soon be followed by other industry sectors such as retail, restaurants, transport, childcare, and personal care services.

As employers across the Cayman Islands have grappled to cope with the challenges brought on by the threat of COVID-19, the Chamber of Commerce has been consistently offering support to the business community, both for members and non-members. The recently launched guideline will add to their support efforts, which have included a dedicated website, free informative zoom webinars, live Facebook Q&A sessions, and daily email updates on the latest news and COVID-19 developments.

To download your copy of the full 'Safe Return to Work' document, or the industry specific protocols posters, please visit the Chamber's dedicated COVID-19 website: chambercovidupdates.ky/safe-return-to-work

CARIBBEAN BRIEFS

St Kitts and Nevis politics in turmoil

St Kitts and Nevis Prime Minister Dr Timothy Harris is intent on keeping the country in a state of emergency and total lockdown for an indefinite period despite an agreement by CARICOM and the Organisation of Eastern Caribbean States leaders to gradually relax the restrictions for travel and open their borders, possibly by the first week of June.

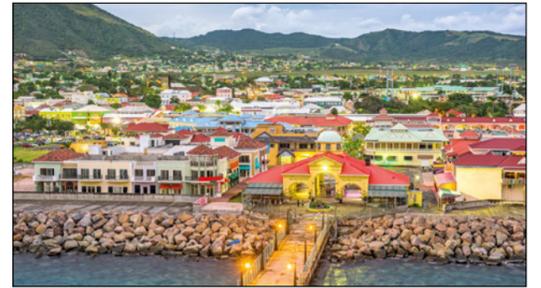

Although agreeing with his other prime ministerial colleagues on May 9, Harris claimed that there is no rush to open SKN's borders as opening prematurely "will bring much pain." He previously insisted that "there are no immediate plans to unlock our borders other than in the measured way that we have allowed them to operate".

In the face of being forced by cabinet, dominated by his coalition colleagues of the People's Action Movement to follow the constitution, and end his attempt to use the state of emergency as an excuse for the unavoidable dissolution of parliament on Thursday, Harris is set on defying both PAM and the wishes of the people of St Kitts and Nevis. General elections are due in August.

Former prime minister, Dr Denzil Douglas, and leader of the opposition St Kitts and Nevis Labour Party said: "It is clear that, in defying his own Cabinet, Dr Harris wants to have the election without opening the borders and thereby deny nationals access to their home country. These are nationals who have the right to vote and who, as patriots, have a never-ending commitment to our country."

Douglas said that Harris will try to hang on, by the skin of his teeth to power, so that he could continue to milk the country and the people for every cent he could

Trini's doubles vendors famished

Trinidad's doubles vendors warn that the price of doubles may well be going up in the next week. Doubles is a common street food normally eaten during breakfast but is also eaten as lunch or as a late snack and is popular hang-over food for Trinidadians. Doubles are made with two baras and filled with curry channa and various chutneys.

The warning comes in the wake of their complaints that prices for the basic ingredients for T&T's favourite street food, have shot up in the last two months.

Popular Couva doubles vendor, Shayam Mohammed, said that the last two months have been disastrous for the industry, as the country was under stay-at-home orders for the COVID-19 pandemic. He said many people involved in the doubles making process remained out of work and are yet to get any unemployment grant.

► Trinidad's doubles street vendors have no trade right now

Mohammed said returning to serve the public would be difficult, since mobile doubles vendors, who operate out of the back of a van, may have to get their vehicles repaired and mechanics and tyre shops have been closed. He said some vendors have expired insurance and are not able to operate.

Ingredients such as split peas, channa and flour have seen their prices escalate, and it would be difficult for vendors who retail doubles at $4 (50 Cayman cents) to remain in business. 🌐

Jamaican churches resume attending

Jamaica has begun relaxing its COVID-19 restrictions with the reopening of churches for a two-week trial period.

Prime Minister Andrew Holness announced Saturday's recommencing of services based on an agreement with the religious community that face masks are worn and social distancing is maintained inside the church.

Holness also said no more than 10 people can be gathered outside places of worship while each person stays six feet apart.

The government is also allowing community bars to reopen on Tuesday while authorities review how the managers are conducting operations.

Under the criteria for bars reopening, social and physical distancing must be maintained and a limit of five people, including the bartender, are to be in the bar at any given time.

► Jamaican churches have reopened

Prime Minister Holness said it is crucial that Jamaicans do their best to maintain the integrity of the relaxed restrictions to help move the nation's economy back to its capacity.

Jamaica has over 500 coronavirus cases and nine deaths.

Meanwhile, three flights repatriating more than 200 Jamaicans stranded overseas has returned to the island. All incoming passengers are in quarantine. 🌐

Antigua opens airport soon

Antigua and Barbuda will welcome its first international flight next month since the island shut its borders as part of the efforts to curb the spread of COVID-19. V

Tourism Minister Charles Fernandez said that an American Airlines flight from Miami is due to land on June 4, bringing the first set of international passenger flights in 10 weeks. Virgin Atlantic confirmed it will be resuming flights there soon too.

He said it will mark the start of a slow, phased recovery for the sector and is set to be followed by the Trinidad-based Caribbean Airlines in mid-June and British Airways in July.

Fernandez said that the island would be seeking to ensure international confidence in the country's ability to keep people safe and that staving off a second wave of infections will prove crucial.

"Everything will be in place to ensure we don't get a lot of negative press and beaten up on social media with people questioning whether we really are ready," Fernandez said, noting that tourism officials had been hard at work for weeks so they can "hit the ground running".

The authorities have not yet announced the date for the re-opening of the VC Bird International Airport, but visitors may have to undergo a COVID-19 test at least 48 hours before boarding the flight among other proposed measures.

Fernandez said health officials were confident that rapid virus tests conducted overseas will have a 90 per cent accuracy rate by the end of this month.

Hotel staff will be tested for the coronavirus before going back to work. Uniforms will be laundered and collected on-site and staff will be required to change into them on the premises before beginning a shift. 🌐

Dominica handles virus brilliantly

Dominica is proud of its record in tackling the COVID-19 endemic with only 16 confirmed to be infected and no deaths to date.

The lack of cases and deaths in Dominica can be attributed to Prime Minister Roosevelt Skerri's efficient and effective management of the virus. On 1 April, the Dominican government acted swiftly to protect its people by announcing a nationwide state of emergency. Dominicans are still subject to a nightly curfew throughout the week, while a total lockdown is in place over the weekends. Residents are also subject to restrictions on gatherings of more than 10 people, the closure of all non-essential businesses, and the suspension of all non-essential public services. Additionally, Douglas-Charles Airport remains closed to all passengers until further notice. 🌐

Barbados will welcome Virgin Atlantic

A major airline in Barbados' main source of tourists could be coming back to Bridgetown in a matter of months, the carrier said.

As countries start to lift travel restrictions and demand for travel gradually begins to return, Virgin Atlantic said it expects to increase flights in the second half of the year, with a further, gradual recovery through 2021.

Virgin Atlantic has confirmed its Caribbean schedule to London Heathrow, using the main London airport to allow seamless connections to the rest of the Virgin network.

When flying resumes "post COVID-19", Barbados will be joined by Antigua, Tobago, Grenada, Havana and Montego Bay services out of Heathrow, the airline said.

► Virgin Atlantic will soon resume flights to Barbados

Barbados services will continue to operate from Manchester, Virgin Atlantic's home in the north of England.

Virgin has promised a "simplified, greener fleet" of 36 two-engine jet aircraft in a bid to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by an estimated further ten per cent, building on the 18 per cent efficiency it said it already achieved between 2007 and 2019. 🌐

St Lucia's water supply alarmingly low

The Saint Lucian government is so worried by its water shortage that it is considering emergency measures to mitigate the problem.

Agriculture Minister Ezechiel Joseph who has responsibility for the water sector made the disclosure. The Water and Sewerage Company indicated that it is facing major challenges in managing its water supply amidst current drought conditions.

Joseph explained that this year is worse compared to previous years. "This year we are realizing the level at the John Compton Dam is much lower earlier," he said. "In fact what they are saying that in previous years where we had experienced this type of situation, it was all the way down in June, July."

He revealed that at a stakeholders meeting to discuss the options, the effect on agriculture was among the issues considered.

"While we are mindful of feeding ourselves during the COVID environment we are operating under, there's also that challenge of a drought - a serious drought affecting Saint Lucia," Joseph said. 🌐
