Love in a pandemic

Early in the Covid-19 corona virus lockdown, Premier Alden Mclaughlin announced that weddings and funerals would still be allowed, under certain restrictions, in particular, with very limited numbers. Joy Basdeo of Simply Weddings says that as of 1st May, 2020, her business resumed doing what she says they are known for: simple, elegant, personalised weddings.

"In fact, many things are the same with one exception, that is, we are doing all the communication, collection of documents, filings etc. electronically. Only the wedding is done face-to-face," Joy states. "Our office off Smith Road is not open for enquiries or appointments, we are only open when a wedding is actually taking place. Watch our Facebook page www.facebook.com/SimplyWeddingsCayman for announcements of when regular business hours resume."

Joy walks prospective clients through how getting married works in the time of Covid-19. "First you contact us by What's App at (345)525 6551 or by email at mywedding@candw.ky and we will send you the application

Community Mask Distribution Underway

▶ Three members of the RCIPS Community Department team hands out reusable cloth masks and flyers in a West Bay Road neighbourhood

As of Friday nearly 24,000 reusable cloth masks had been distributed across the Cayman Islands by the Community Policing Branch of the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service.

These include some 21,500 on Grand Cayman, 2,300 on Cayman Brac and 87 on Little Cayman. A further 41,000 are still to be distributed. The purpose of the masks is to reduce the chances that individuals positive for the viral illness COVID-19, which spreads via droplets, may be able to infect other persons.

While distribution of masks only began last week Director of Hazard Management Cayman Islands Danielle Coleman explains that the procurement of

103rd Birthday motorcade for West Bay's Hulda Ebanks

By Christopher Tobutt

Residents of West Bay organised a grand motorcade, with balloons and banners and posters, and honking horns, to wish one of West Bays most beloved and well-respected residents, Florie "Aunt," Hulda Ebanks a very happy 103rd Birthday. The motorcade gathered at the Ed Bush Stadium, and then would its way past the Library, up Fountain Road, and then down through Watercourse Road before turning into Hell Road, where Ms. Hulda lives. Everyone had wonderful things to say about her, and about how she always you feel better whenever you're around her.

One of the organizers, Charlene Rivers explained: "She's my aunt, my moth-

Experts Discuss Cayman's Economic Recovery

Discussion on the Role of Technology in Cayman's Economic Recovery

Cayman Tech City, the technology-focused special economic zone within Cayman Enterprise City (www.caymanenterprise.com), in partnership with Digital Cayman (www.digitalcayman.com), hosted a live virtual panel of industry experts on Friday, 15 May 2020 to discuss the role of technology in Cayman's economy. Members of the public working within the Cayman Islands' digital tech sector were invited to participate in the virtual discussion on the role experts believe technology will play in the post-pandemic economic recovery of the region.

► Marla Dukharan, a leading economist and advisor

Cayman Tech City and Digital Cayman stated that it is more imperative than ever to understand the advancements, promise and implications of technology as the islands navigate a path forward in a time of crisis. Part of the ongoing monthly series "Tech Talks", the panel of tech professionals answered questions from participants and discussed how utilising technology can assist in the process of recovery and preparing for an inevitable 'new normal' in Cayman and the Caribbean region.

The panellists for the virtual event were Marla Dukharan, a leading economist and advisor on the Caribbean region based in Barbados, Charlie Kirkconnell, CEO of Cayman Enterprise City (CEC), and Digital Cayman steering committee member and serial entrepreneur, John Edge, who is an executive and board advisor to several high growth tech companies. The panel was moderated by Alee Fa'amoe, Deputy Chief Executive Officer and Executive Director for ICT at OReg Cayman Islands.

Charlie Kirkconnell discussed the importance of fostering vibrant tech ecosystems. Established in 2011, CEC is developing world-class special economic zones, attracting knowledge-based industries to the Cayman Islands, diversifying the economy, and serving as a platform of innovation.

As Kirkconnell explained during the discussion on Friday, "Our project was born in the aftermath of the 2008 global financial crisis. CEC is purpose-built for circumstances like these.

"Part of our project's mission is to bring economic diversity from financial services and tourism and by attracting foreign direct investment that is not so reliant on those two sectors. There are now 175 technology-focused companies within CEC and in 2019 the impact of the special economic zones exceeded $50 million for the second year in a row so we feel that our success speaks for itself. Our role is to continue to provide knowledge and technology-based companies right here in Cayman and become the forefront of innovation in the Caribbean."

Dukharan noted that an area of opportunity for Cayman is the role of digital fiat currencies in building economic recovery and resilience, and making digital currency more accessible in the Caribbean region. In Barbados, Bitt has deployed a digital Barbados dollar which runs on their mMoney mobile payment network, which facilitates free peer-to-peer transactions and payment for everyday goods and services as well. Users can send money to family and friends using their phone number, pay bills in-app, and pay for all their shopping.

"Cayman needs to look into digital currency," she explained, "not a cryptocurrency but a fiat currency. Focus on financial inclusion and cross border transactions. The Cayman Islands can also look into becoming an expert on how to deploy a fully digital economy, from Government straight through to the end user."

When asked what the right approach would be to push things forward with banking, Dukharan noted, "Perhaps we need more competition for banks in order to drive innovation."

Edge highlighted that the world as we know has changed forever. "Normal is gone. Five to eight years of change is happening in nine months. Global economies are going to get hammered." However, from change and challenge spring advances and advantages.

"The jobs created will not be in the physical space. The digital economy doesn't require square miles. Let's look at the ones that are being turned upside down, which ones are going to boom. Look at which ones are digital or could benefit from digital advances. There are asymmetrical benefits of being an island. This is the role Cayman is playing in the great new world. E-commerce has grown."

In terms of the growth of e-commerce in Cayman, Edge mentioned that in the next couple of years, digital commerce will reach six trillion dollars globally. "Digital signatory and digital payments create digital supply chains. Cayman could become the most trusted country for digital e-commerce."

In their closing remarks, all panellists were optimistic for the innovation and opportunities that tech will push forward both during and post-pandemic. Looking towards the future and a post-COVID world, Kirkconnell was most proud of CEC's Cayman Code Academy initiative. Having recently moved the course from in-person classes to online, Kirkconnell sees it as an opportunity to "educate Caymanians in the tech sector so that we can start to build the infrastructure right here in Cayman."

"We're now offering needs-based financial assistance that covers up to 70 per cent of tuition. People are invited to sign up at caymancodeacademy.com," he added. "We are also currently talking to entities that might be willing to offer tuition assistance and job opportunities. Together we can contribute in a significant way by providing businesses with the tech talent they need."

Dukharan views the Cayman Islands as one of the most advanced countries in the region and sees this crisis as an opportunity for the islands to further distinguish themselves.

"Establishing the Cayman Islands as the digital hub for the region and become the experts for teaching others is a humongous opportunity for the Cayman government. Also, renewable energy is a huge area for the region and the opportunities are endless."

Edge mentioned in his work he encounters people every day that say, 'I can't do this'. "Cayman has a number of reasons to stand up and say, 'we can do this'... this is the time to change those 80 years of behaviours."

Thanks to Cayman Tech City's sponsorship, Digital Cayman memberships are complimentary while events have been moved online. Through their sponsorship, CEC provides Digital Cayman members with opportunities to participate in its Enterprise Cayman outreach initiatives, such as internships, mentorships, and school outreach programmes. These established high-impact initiatives are actively connecting industry experts with Cayman's up-and-coming digital professionals and entrepreneurs – an important component in the strategic development of talent within the Cayman Islands and in the future diversification and development of Cayman's digital economy.

The talk can be viewed in its entirety here: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PwN3Bxlz0s>.

If you want to get involved in the next "Tech Talk" discussions, you can register for membership and visit www.digitalcayman.com. You can also register your interest by emailing innovate@caymanenterprise.com.

DCFS, HMCI partner in Annual Hurricane Shelter Training

The Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) is partnering with Hazard Management Cayman Islands (HMCI) to hold shelter management training for the 2020 hurricane season on Wednesday, 27 May. There is a special need for volunteers to support the eastern districts shelters.

Volunteers will hear presentations and ask questions on how to:

- manage a shelter
- monitor sheltered persons, and
- provide shelter updates.

Given the present situation, the training and mitigation measures planned are being influenced by the COVID-19 outbreak, HMCI Director Danielle Coleman confirms.

"This year's hurricane season brings a few more challenges than previous years. Issues such as social distancing in shelters, procuring masks and additional supplies, considering contingency plans if communication is impacted are some of the things that we are currently planning for."

"DCFS and HMCI work closely together to train our shelter management teams so that they are ready to activate at very short notice for all emergencies. Whilst this year's training will be held remotely using Zoom, we have no doubt that with the additional COVID-19 requirements, it will prove to be an interesting one," she adds.

In reinforcing HMCI's assessment of joint shelter volunteer management training and response mapping, DCFS Director Paulinda Mendoza-Williams says: "We are prepared for the forthcoming hurricane season having evaluated and mitigated for conceivable scenarios."

"Mindful of how COVID-19 has already changed daily life, DCFS and HMCI are taking all necessary and additional precautionary measures to adhere to existing guidance and protocols relating to the ongoing outbreak when reviewing shelter staffing and management."

For more details and to sign up for next week's training for shelter volunteers, please email Tina.Ebanks@gov.ky or Melissa.Hall@dcfs.gov.ky, no later than 11am on Tuesday, 26 May. 🌐

Month of May Penalty Fee Waived

To further assist customers facing financial hardship during the Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, Water Authority-Cayman will waive penalty fees for May 2020.

This is in addition to waived penalty fees for the months of March and April 2020. The Authority has also developed a COVID-19 Payment Deferral Policy to assist persons who may be temporarily out of a job due to the pandemic. If a customer has been impacted, please contact the Water Authority about the deferral policy via email info@waterauthority.ky.

The Authority's offices remain closed; however, customers seeking to make a payment can do so online by visiting www.waterauthority.ky and clicking the "Pay My Bill" button on the home page, online via local banks, or by cheque using the Authority's drop box at its Red Gate Office. Customers that need to make cash payments can do so at the counter of their local bank branch, or the designated Post Office.

Customers can still conduct business with the Authority electronically. The Customer Service team can be contacted by emailing info@waterauthority.ky Cayman Brac customers who require trucked water can continue to make requests by calling 948-1403.

Customers are reminded that the Authority is focused on providing essential services. Essential services mean services that ensure customers have water supply and wastewater services.

For more updates, and important messages from the Authority customers can visit the website www.waterauthority.ky and social media pages (Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram).

The Water Authority is the statutory body responsible for the management of water and wastewater in the Cayman Islands. The Administrative Headquarters is located at 13G Red Gate Road, George Town, Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands. 🌐

No Rate Change

The Water Authority Regulations allow for an annual rate adjustment; however, this year, there will not be an increase in water and sewerage rates.

"The services provided by the Water Authority are essential, particularly during a health crisis like the one we are currently facing. Maintaining the current rates provides the public with the assurance that they can continue to access these services at an economical cost," comments Mr Kearney Gomez, Chairman of the Water Authority Board.

Under the current rate structure, the fee for the first 12 cubic metres (m³) consumed each month, which is equivalent to approximately 32,000 US gallons, is CI$4.56 and CI$5.79 on each m³ thereafter. In Cayman Brac, residential piped water rate is CI$6.21 on each m³ and trucked water customer fees are $7.77 on each m³.

Sewerage rates are based on the assessed Sewerage Fixture Units (SFUs) for the service location in question and are calculated at a constant rate of CI$1.672. The rate for septage disposal is CI$17.018 per 1,000 US gallons.

"This is a very challenging time for our community, and many of our customers are facing financial hardships due to the Coronavirus pandemic," notes Water Authority Director Dr Gelia Frederick-van Genderen. "Water and wastewater services are vital for public health, and the Authority is pleased to continue to provide these services at an affordable rate."

The Authority's website contains a variety of resources to help customers understand their bills, reading their water meters, and conserve water by reducing water use through smart home and landscaping habits.

form and a description of the service called 'How Cayman Residents Can Get Married'. When you return the application you also send a scan or photo of the picture page of both passports, and if you have been married before, a copy of your divorce decree," she explains.

Simply Weddings then post the couple's Banns of Marriage, a public announcement of their intention to be married. They are posted on their Banns Board outside their office in The Chestnut Centre on Smith Road for seven days. The Banns are good for 90 days, after which if you postpone your wedding further, you have to restart the process, Joy advises.

The Banns are intended to give anyone who has a valid objection to the wedding an opportunity to object. In reality, there is very rarely an objection, she says.

The Cayman Is Marriage Law does not require a Certificate of Eligibility for a couple to be married, but they must have two residents who can vouch for them, and countersign the Notice of Marriage. These can be friends, colleagues, employers etc.; they just cannot be family.

"We will send you the Notice of Marriage and you must sign it and have your co-signers sign and then you return it to us by scanning it or bringing it to the actual wedding ceremony," Joy adds.

During this lockdown period everyone attending a wedding must be approved by the competent authority, Curfewtime.

"We are responsible for getting this exemption letter, so early on we will ask for the names of your witnesses and your guests," Joy says. "At the time of writing you are allowed to invite, in addition to your witnesses, six other guests for a total of 10 people. It is important to note that guests can't attend just because it's their "day". Your name must be on the approved, exempted list."

If a couple are getting married indoors, they are required to wear a mask and to maintain social distancing. For this reason, if a couple choose to be married in their Wedding Room, they are allowed two witnesses and four guests.

Joy expands on the financial side of the event: "Once we forward you the approval letter, full payment for your wedding is due. Paying by debit card is preferable, but you can pay cash on the wedding day."

After the wedding, Joy will file the couple's register with the General Registry, Cayman's public records office. The Registry will issue a certified copy of the Marriage Register which is proof that the couple were legally married in the Cayman Islands and their marriage has been recorded.

"It is your responsibility to apply for this important document (cost is $15 per copy) and keep it safe' you will need it many times throughout the life of your marriage," she explains. "You can also apply for the document online at www.ciregistry.gov.ky If the bride and groom are from different countries, we suggest you get at least two copies. Certain countries also require an Apostille stamp on your certified copy. Check with us if this is necessary for your country."

COVID CASES INCREASE BUT PREMIER ASSURES NO NEED FOR ALARM

Hon. Premier Alden McLaughlin said residents need not be alarmed by the increased number of COVID-19 cases.

Another 8 positive cases were reported on Friday from a total of 467 tests carried out in the past 24 hours.

That brings the total of confirmed cases to 129.

Presenting his daily update Chief Medical Officer Dr John Lee said all of the confirmed cases are frontline workers; one was a contact of another infected person and the other seven are believed to have been community-acquired.

There are currently 65 active cases. Of that number 55 are asymptomatic and 12 are persons displaying symptoms. 61 persons have recovered.

Dr Lee also reported that the contact tracing from the three cases uncovered in Cayman Brac has not shown any spread in the sister island.

Commenting on the latest update, Premier McLaughlin noted that the number of positive results from the expanding testing programme was less than 2% which was remarkably low, adding that it was a good sign that there are no outbreak clusters or spikes.

NO NEED FOR ALARM

"We do not believe that there are any causes for alarm with the results that we are getting in terms of the number of positives. We are still on average below 2% of those testing positive for the virus which is incredibly low," he said.

Mr McLaughlin also said it was significant that "not one person has turned up at the clinic or at any of the hospitals with COVID-19 symptoms since the 27th of April".

There are currently no COVID-19 hospitalisations either.

"The people that are testing positive are people who are being tested as part of a screening process so we would expect that we would wind up with a significant number of cases."

The Premier stressed that what the government is "trying to do is avoid what has happened in many other places where they have been under a false sense of security because they have not been seeing a large number of cases."

He suggested that's unlike in Cayman where the focus has been on intensified testing which is showing up the increased numbers.

"We are hunting down this disease," he stated.

Mr McLaughlin said the nature of the virus is such that a person who initially tests negative can show a positive result two weeks later as the virus incubates.

NO TIME FOR COMPLACENCY

The Premier said the objective was not to carry out blanket testing in Cayman but to target specific groups where the economy has been or is about to be reopened.

"We are not seeking to test every single person. We are trying to test broad demographic groups focusing on the area we are unlocking or recently unlocked to get a representative sample of that group to understand the prevalence of the virus in that group," he explained.

The ongoing targeted testing a critical component in the decision-making on the pace at which to re-open the economy.

"We can't keep the economy locked down indefinitely. We are doing everything to minimise the risk but while there is widespread community transmission it is not by any means rampant. The numbers are very small.

Assessing the current situation compared to earlier in the crisis, he recalled that "we had some very sick people in the hospital but that is not the situation now".

However, Mr McLaughlin cautioned: "We have to be very careful that we don't fall into the trap and that we don't become complacent and wind up with a wave."

He described the earlier phases of the COVID-19 outbreak here as a ripple and not a wave.

"That is why the government has exercised a great deal of caution in unlocking various areas of the economy only after extensive testing and in a thoughtful way," he added.

He said testing will continue even when the economy is completely unlocked to ensure that there are no further flare-ups at that stage.

Cayman National extends Payment Holiday

On Sunday evening Cayman National advised their clients that they were renewing the offer of Loan Deferral for another three months.

This latest announcement follows their March statement in which President and CEO, Stuart Dack announced the first three-month deferral to bring relief to their customers where needed.

Acknowledging the continued effects of Covid-19 on the economy, they invited customers wishing to take advantage of the offer, to contact their relationship officer.

This announcement comes on the heels of a question that was asked at a recent CIG Press Briefing to which the Premier responded that it was up to the Banks to make decisions in relations to loan arrangements with their respective customers.

MEETING THE DEMANDS OF EDUCATION FOR OUR CHILDREN

Michael Myles and Alric Lindsay have been friends since they attended George Town Primary school together a few decades ago. In the past year, they found themselves teaming up again. They recently donated $2,000 of their personal funds to George Town Primary School to ensure students at the school continue to receive school lunches.

Soon after that (with the help of the Cayman Food Bank and a private donor), Mr. Myles and Lindsay were successful in raising $10,000 for charitable purposes, including to ensure the children's homes receive much needed laptops, personal protective equipment (including face masks and hand sanitizer) and food supplies. These supplies were donated to a former employer of Mr. Myles, the CAYS Foundation, which manages the Frances Bodden and Bonaventure Homes. On 22 May 2020, Mr. Myles and Mr. Lindsay continued their community work in George Town by spending $7,000 of their personal funds to provide laptops to students who were being forced to do homework on their parent's cellphones.

Mr. Myles stated "there have been many heroes in my life that have taught me the value of a good education: my mother Grace Myles, Gillie Seymour, Winston Chung, Richard Marshall, Lorna Lumsden just to name a few. In perhaps one of the wealthiest Caribbean countries in the world, no child in the Cayman Islands should have to be taught from their parent's cellphone. I am saddened that this is the case. Education must be equitable for all Caymanians despite circumstance if we are serious about producing responsible citizens and leaders to move our country forward. I am honored and privileged to be in a position to give back to our families as I once was provided for."

Mr. Lindsay remains busy with raising funds and delivering food each day from Meals on Meals and the Good Samaritan Cayman Islands Food Bank (best known as the Cayman Food Bank) while Mr.

Myles operates a TVET training center which provides Caymanians with employability and Technical skills.

Mr. Lindsay stated that "through my work with various charities, I became aware of the growing demand for laptops for students who needed to complete their studies online but only had their parents' cellphones available to access the online programmes. Furthermore, it is extremely difficult for parents during the covid-19 pandemic to find $500 in their budget to purchase a laptop. Some parents also don't have the contacts in big companies to get hold of used laptops. I was happy to help bridge the gap and assist these parents and students".

2021 General Election Date Set

The Governor's Office has confirmed that the Cayman Islands General Election will be held on Wednesday, 26 May 2021.

In just over twelve months Cayman Islands voters will go to the polls, exercising their democratic right to vote for elected members. This is the second General Election to be held under the one person one vote, Single Member Electoral District.

"The Cayman Islands has a proud history of fair, well run democratic elections with high levels of voter participation." Explained His Excellency The Governor, "I am confident that the Elections Office will continue this practice in the 2021 General Election."

Candidates will contest seats 19 seat, as defined by 2015 Electoral Boundary Commission's report.

Postal Service Resumes Mail to US

The Cayman Islands Postal Service (CIPS) has resumed outgoing international mail service, limited to items destined for the United States, including: letter mail, parcel, registered and express mail service (EMS).

While service is back with immediate effect, Postmaster General Sheena Glasgow cautions customers not to expect pre-lockdown delivery times for any class of mail.

The United States Postal Service (USPS), Ms Glasgow explains, like postal organizations everywhere, is finding it challenging to operate in a COVID-19 environment with reduced staff, social distancing protocols, self-isolation, etc.

International mail entering a country like the US is the responsibility of the sending country she notes.

With regards to mail coming into the Cayman Islands, she says that following outreach to international partners earlier this month the Postal Service is waiting to hear what transportation arrangements they will make to get mail here.

CIPS is also continuing work to establish transportation links to other countries so that mail can resume to those jurisdictions.

"We make weekly contact with our key postal partners namely, the USA, Canada, and UK to enquire if they are likely to get mail to Cayman Islands this week and discuss what transportation options may be available. We are aware that many residents with family and friends abroad are eagerly awaiting items that have been posted, but are still being held in the country of origin awaiting transportation here", Ms Glasgow comments.

The public will be advised as increased services become available.

In related news, Savannah is less than a week away from becoming the second post office on Grand Cayman to resume offering counter services to customers. Savannah Post Office reopens on Wednesday, 27 May and Thursday, 28 May. More information will be shared with the public on Monday 25 May.

the masks began some time ago as a special project of the National Emergency Operations Centre.

"When it became clear that we would be moving towards everyone needing to wear a mask in public places, an immediate challenge was how we would source and then distribute reusable masks to all persons across the Cayman Islands. The Support Services cluster which combines procurement, negotiating and logistics skills as well as private sector contacts took the lead on this project and were able to source the required amount at a reasonable price", Ms Coleman says.

Support Services ultimately procured a total of 100,000 masks, half from Jamaica and half from American corporation Hanes, at a total cost of USD150,000. The DART Group helped procure the masks from the US, which had not originally been intended to be sold outside the country.

Those purchased from Jamaica are in use by various public safety agencies including the Police and the Jamaica Defense Force. Meanwhile the Hanes masks have been approved by both the Food and Drug Administration and the Centers for Disease Control in the United States.

To ensure nationwide distribution Support Services partnered with the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service. As of late last week this resulted in teams of Community Police Officers and Community Safety Officers going door-to-door across the three Islands.

Inspector Courtney Myles, who heads the Community Policing Department of the RCIPS, comments that the masks have already reached nearly all the population on Cayman Brac and Little Cayman. Meanwhile about 25 percent of the Grand Cayman total has been delivered.

"We thought this was the perfect project for our community team. We are on the ground daily, and as such we know people and their circumstances at the neighbourhood level. Our capability to go door to door also means that we can properly map and manage the distribution process in a way that is fair to all." Inspector Myles remarks:

Flyers with instructions for the care and proper use of the reusable cloth masks are also being provided to ensure maximum effectiveness.

Masks are also being provided to frontline personnel within public safety and customer facing agencies such as RCIPS, Prison Service, Customs and Border Control, Airports Authority and Water Authority.

With local businesses such as supermarkets now requiring persons to wear face-coverings to gain access, Community Police Officers have also been on site at all locations with a limited supply of disposable masks to give anyone who comes without one.

An officer hands out a reusable cloth mask at a local supermarket

They will also be included in the return-to-work personal protective equipment kits for all Cayman Islands Government entities, as well as Statutory Authorities and Government Companies, in preparation for phased reactivation of the public service.

New public health regulations require all persons in the Cayman Islands, over the age of two years old, to wear a face covering when indoors in a public place and unable to maintain a distance of six feet from other persons.

Chief Medical Officer Dr John Lee thanked NEOC including the Support Services Team and the RCIPS for working to ensure that all persons in the Cayman Islands are able to comply with the legislation as quickly as possible.

Maples Group provides laptops to GirlForce 100 Mentees

100 Women in Finance (“100WF”), a global finance industry organization, announces that The Maples Group recently donated twenty-five new HP laptops to GirlForce 100 mentees from John Gray High School and Clifton Hunter High School. GirlForce 100 is 100WF’s local Investing in the Next Generation program partner.

The new laptops were sourced locally in partnership with Office Supply, who kindly offered a discount on each laptop in support of the initiative. The programme mentees, all female high school students, were excited to receive their new laptops at their homes via socially distanced direct delivery by NCI Cayman Islands, who also extended a generous delivery discount as part of this collaboration.

Christina Bodden, a Partner at Maples Group, a 100 Women in Finance Global Association Board member and a co-founder of GirlForce 100, worked with the schools to identify a significant technology gap among some of the GirlForce 100 mentees which prompted the donation. “To continue to support our mentees with consistent mentoring, GirlForce 100 has pivoted to digital programming amid the COVID-19 health crisis. As part of this transition, we identified a significant technology gap among our GirlForce 100 mentees. We needed to bridge this gap, to ensure our mentees could participate in their schools’ online learning platforms while also effectively supporting our mentees through virtual programming and digital mentoring. On behalf of 100 Women in Finance and GirlForce 100, we would like to extend our sincere gratitude to the Maples Group for supporting the mentee network in our participating local schools. 100 Women in Finance is additionally grateful that its members and staff joined Maples Group in making donations to GirlForce 100, helping to make the purchase of the laptop computers possible”.

Matthew Gardner, Cayman Islands Managing Partner of Maples and Calder, the Maples Group’s law firm added, “We are delighted to support GirlForce 100 and commend them on their outstanding efforts in arranging this important initiative for local students. The Maples Group is committed to supporting the Cayman Islands community and providing assistance to benefit the educational needs of our youth has long been a core focus of our philanthropic efforts”.

Barbara Conolly, MLA and Councillor for Education, Youth, Finance and Economic Development, said, “During these most challenging times, it is even more important that the public sector partner with the private sector to provide opportunities for our students. As the Councillor responsible for education, I am ecstatic that one of Cayman’s largest youth mentoring networks, GirlForce 100, was able to receive the technology they needed. I am proud to extend thanks on behalf of the Ministry of Education, the Minister of Education and myself to the Maples Group for sponsoring these efforts. As the Premier said in one of the press briefings ‘We are all in this together,’ and indeed, partnerships such as these speak to how we can join forces and assist our community.”

GirlForce 100 delivers pre-career programming and mentorship to diverse, high potential Caymanian high school students. GirlForce 100 pairs local 100 Women in Finance members with girls ages 13-18, from John Gray High School and Clifton Hunter High School, who have indicated an interest in a career in finance and have demonstrated notable potential meriting their placement. Through mentorship, GirlForce 100 guides the mentees in the development and progression of their career paths leading them to success.

GirlForce 100 reaches, inspires and supports pre-career women of all backgrounds, to become the finance industry’s leadership pipeline. This initiative is an important strategic element in 100WF’s 30x40 Vision, in which women will perform 30% of the finance industry’s investment and executive team roles by year 2040.

If you or someone you know is interested in becoming part of GirlForce 100 please contact GirlForce@100women.org.

RCIPS Confirms Two COVID-19 Cases

The Royal Cayman Island Police Service (RCIPS) today (Friday, 22 May 2020) confirmed that two uniformed officers have tested positive for the COVID-19 virus.

Both officers are asymptomatic and are in isolation. These results are part of extensive, service-wide testing that began for uniformed and civilian RCIPS personnel earlier this month, as part of the Cayman Islands Government’s screening programme for frontline personnel across the public and private sectors.

“Following news of the positive results we have worked closely with the Public Health Department to facilitate their usual investigations including risk assessment and contact tracing. Our ultimate goal is to ensure that we remain ready to serve and protect the people of the Cayman Islands,” commented Commissioner of Police, Derek Byrne”

“We also want to reassure our staff and the public,” Mr. Byrne continued, “that since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic all uniformed service personnel have been required to wear and utilise personal protective equipment (PPE). This is something that we are reinforcing as this situation develops.”

“In addition we have implemented daily sanitisation protocols through our building janitorial functions and fleet management services. The health and wellbeing of our personnel remain of utmost importance and we thank Public Health for their work and guidance in assisting us.”

The Commissioner of Police added that all spaces have been robustly sanitised in the department where the officers who received the positive results are employed. Social distancing protocols are also being strictly enforced across the RCIPS to reduce the chance for the viral infection to spread. In addition, persons who worked closely with the COVID-positive officers in the last three days have been recommended for testing.

Cayman Airways pilots complete operational training flight

► CAL plane landing

Grand Cayman’s airspace was busy for a change on Friday May 22, 2020, as a series of take-offs and landings were conducted by the Flight Training Department for Cayman Airways Limited (CAL) in order for some of its pilots to maintain their “Pilot Recency of Experience” certification - a regulatory requirement in the Cayman Islands.

The operational training flight was part of the mitigation strategy by the airline to ensure that its pilots maintain their proficiency with flying CAL’s Boeing 737-300 aircraft during the government’s airport closure due to the threat of the Coronavirus (COVID-19).

The training flights were conducted from Owen Roberts International Airport (ORIA) between approximately 9:30am and 12 Noon.

“Due to the situation with the Coronavirus (COVID-19) and Cayman’s borders being closed, the pilots have been unable to attend their regularly scheduled simulator recurrent training at Boeing’s Miami campus,” explained Captain Stephen Coe, CAL Manager Of Flight Training. “This is not taken lightly, and through our partnership with the Civil Aviation Authority of the Cayman Islands (CAACI), regulatory extensions were granted to the Cayman Airways crews to conduct these training flights to help meet our training requirements.”

Captain Coe said airlines around the globe are carrying out similar strategies to ensure that crews remain proficient with their core skills while borders are closed.

“There were 15 take-offs and landings over a relatively short period of time, which was necessary for all of the participating pilots to each achieve the required number of take-offs and landings to maintain their currency and competency, and over the next few weeks we will be accomplishing more such flights in order to keep all of our pilots current,” added Cayman Airways President and CEO, Fabian Whorms. “We thank the CAACI and the Cayman Islands Airport Authority (CIAA) for working with us during these unprecedented times, to ensure that our pilots are able to meet their regulatory requirement for completing at least three take-offs and landings every 90 days to maintain their ‘Recency of Experience’ certification.”

Participating in the training flights were the following Cayman Airways pilots: Captain Perry Panton (CAL Chief Pilot), Captain Steven Coe, Captain Olson Anderson; First Officer Leroy McLaughlin; First Officer William McTaggart; and First Officer Garrett Conolly.

er's sister. She's so nice. We always used to have like a party for her every year, but we can't have it this year (because of Covid 19 restrictions) so that's why we are doing this."

On the Porch Steps, Ms Hulda waved to all the friends and family who have known her all of their lives as they passed by. She was joined by her daughters, Linda and Zelda, and her sons, Roy and Archie, along with her grandchildren, Nahshon and Zephon.

One of those passers-by was Eziethamae (Zeta) Bodden who said: "I've known her all my life and then had a close connection with her through working with her, so it's a privilege to be here this afternoon and celebrate her 103rd birthday and I wish her all the best, and that she may live a long and happy life."

Speaker of the House, and West Bay MLA McKeeva Bush stopped to present a special bouquet of flowers, one from himself, and another from His Excellency The Governor, Martyn Roper, along with a letter Mr. Roper had written on behalf of Queen Elizabeth II.

Florie Hulda Ebanks was born on May 21 1917. She was the eldest child of Leslie and Buelah Rivers. She had four sisters, Francis Annette Una and Marlena and one brother, Sydney. She has children Archie, Linda, Roy and Zelda and nine grandchildren, Dwayne, Joy, Perry, Kirby, Sasha, Denver, Nahshon and Zephon, as well as 14 great-grandchildren and four great-great grandchildren.

When she worked, she was a housekeeper. She also weaved baskets hats and fans. And was the best known for making the best brooms in West Bay. She also worked in the tourism industry, in some of the first condos on the island. After retiring she traveled a lot with her son Roy, attending concerts visiting the Empire State Building as well as the World Trade Center.

Ms Hulda always loved playing football, and is known as the 'Matriarch' of West Bay's Future Sports Club in West Bay, which she helped to establish, and regularly attended all football games up to 2018. Today she still resides in her home on Hell Road in West Bay where she has been for the past 70yrs, where she still takes care of all her great great grandchildren, loves to wash her own dishes and until 2019 did her own laundry, too. She is a remarkable lady who is still able to read the newspaper without her glasses. Her famous quote when asked "How are you today?" She answers faithfully "Aye my love as usual. God is good." 🌐

Two Positive COVID-19 Cases at A. L. Thompson

In a release on Saturday, A L Thompson advised that the Health Services Authority had screened their staff for Covid-19 on 14 May, five days before they reopened their George Town store.

The results for approximately 95% of those who were tested revealed that most results were negative but unfortunately, 2 of the 187 people screened have tested positive for the virus.

They assure the public that because they did not permit staff members to return to work until they received negative results, there would not have been contact at A. L.

Thompson's with those who tested positive. They are asymptomatic and are in isolation at home per HSA protocol. Everyone's well-being is their priority.

Paradigm Governance welcomes Cary Marr

Paradigm Governance Partners Limited, a governance and financial services firm with a presence in the Cayman Islands and New York whose offering includes independent directors, distressed fund and value recovery services, family office outsourced financial reporting, AML officers, and AEOI and economic substance solutions, has expanded its Cayman Islands presence with the addition of experienced independent director Cary Marr.

Cary Marr serves as a professional independent director on the boards of hedge funds, private equity funds, traditional long-only funds, and investment management companies. He is well versed in the governance and regulatory issues facing investment managers with 25 years of experience in the offshore funds sector between the Cayman Islands and Bermuda. He has extensive experience in fund administration, accounting, valuation, financial reporting, investor communications and regulatory risk management.

Before joining Paradigm, Cary spent 7 years at International Management Services Ltd., where he held the position of Fund Director. He provided directorship services to a multi-billion asset under management, diverse book of clients spanning the offshore fund spectrum.

Prior to IMS, Cary spent 14 years involved in the management of the global operations of Meridian Fund Services (now MUFG Fund Services), an independently owned hedge fund and private equity fund administrator. As the President and Chief Financial Officer of the company, he played a key role in developing each of Meridian's core service offerings, including valuation and accounting, investor relations, anti-money laundering protocols, and provision of corporate governance and directorships.

Paradigm was launched in 2018 in the Cayman Islands on the back of the growth in demand for premier quality fiduciary services. Its directors provide complementary skillsets ranging across all aspects of the alternative investment industry, including risk management, legal, regulatory, audit, accounting, compliance, valuation, trading and recovery.

Geoff Ruddick and Nic Corsetti commented:

"After considerable growth since our launch only a couple years ago, and with no end in sight to the pace of change in regulatory and compliance obligations, we remain committed to growing a team with the experience and expertise to constructively support the evolving needs of our clients in Cayman and around the globe. Therefore, we are delighted to have someone of Cary's calibre and reputation join us to further Paradigm's expansion. Having known him for many years we know the value he can bring to the firm and to our clients. Cary is a natural fit given his complementary skill set, high level of experience, and dedicated client service focus."

Cary Marr commented:

"To join a high pedigree firm with great talent and complementary skill sets is extremely exciting for me. Paradigm is comprised of industry leading professionals and to have the team readily and collectively accessible for clients is a differentiating approach. Adding my years of operational, hands-on experience across all facets of fund governance, I recognize the value proposition and range of services Paradigm can offer to clients is second to none and one that I am extremely proud to join."

Cary holds a Bachelor of Business Administration degree from the University of Regina and qualified as a Chartered Accountant in Canada in 1997 and received his professional training with Deloitte in both Canada and Bermuda. 🌐

STAY AT HOME: A NEW NORM?

"Do everything in love." - 1 Corinthians 16:14

By Basil Springer

Those of us who are occupied as housewives or househusbands, are retired, home-school children, have a virtual job enabled by digital technology or conduct business from home, tend to naturally manage our time in a home environment.

On the other hand, when a "Stay-At-Home Order" is imposed by the government as an optimal solution to combat a disease pandemic, transmitted from human to human, it is a different matter.

Parents and children are confined to the same space 24 hours per day, there is a void of external social interaction, outdoor sport is curtailed, the discipline of preparing attractive, home-cooked food becomes the order of the day, home help is restricted, exercise routines are disrupted, meetings must be held by audio and video conferencing, irritability may set in, and when you venture out to access essential services, personal hygiene must be carefully practiced, physical distancing observed and masks worn.

Also, the national borders are temporarily closed to passenger traffic to reduce the spread of the disease and prevent a second wave of infection, trade is significantly less than before COVID-19, the economy grinds to a halt, and jobs are lost.

The recovery process, which includes gradually relaxing the "stay-at-home" protocols and opening up the borders, then becomes a balancing act between saving lives and protecting livelihoods. Because no one really knows if and when the pandemic will end and cease to be a threat to us, we must be prepared to adopt a positive mindset to address the new national "stay-at-home" norm, for as long as it is necessary.

The secret is to use our God-given resource of 24 hours in a day to manage this new norm, while satisfying our fundamental needs of love, food, air cooling, heating, clothing, housing, sleep, exercise, electricity, money, digital equipment, internet connectivity, education and the like. Realizing a vision begins with the first step. Determine your budget e.g. eight hours' sleep, eight hours' work and eight hours' personal time and community service. Here, are some cost efficient ideas.

The recognition that God is Love is a good starting point in this management process.

Remember that nutrition is paramount - grow what you eat and eat what you grow. Acquire a piece of black plastic, used tires, soil mix and compost and start your own food production unit. Make your own compost from organic waste. Distill your grey water, e.g. water from baths, sinks, washing machines, using a solar still and irrigate your plants. Collect and store rainwater when in season and make a water air cooler. Heat your water with a solar water heater. Install photovoltaic panels and generate electricity from the sun's free energy.

Get a total of eight hours' sleep per day by working smarter not harder. Daily walking exercise works wonders for the respiratory and cardiovascular systems.

Generate money by starting a home enterprise of your choice rather than looking for paid employment. Ideas abound! Seek a shepherd to guide you and lead you to sources of seed, equity and working capital. Embrace smart technology. Secure reliable broadband internet connectivity, educate yourself, and communicate with the world through social media, videoconferencing and messaging apps.

Enjoy working from home. For many, it may soon become the norm that's not so new.
