DG review finds no laws broken

Following the Governor Martyn Roper and Deputy Governor Franz Manderson's review into decisions made with regard to participation in the Dubai Expo and also the opening of overseas offices in Brussels, Hong Kong and Washington, they have concluded that no laws were broken.

This review was in response to the Auditor General's findings that there had been breaches of the Cayman Islands Constitution, the Public Management and Finance Act (PMFA) and the Public Service Management Act (PSMA) by the Ministry of International Trade, Investment, Aviation and Maritime Affairs (the Ministry).

The OAG also highlighted irregularities around some of the HR practices used to employ staff associated with the Dubai World Expo and Overseas Offices.

The report also stated that clear guidance was lacking on how the civil service should conduct themselves in relation to the implementation of certain Government policies once an election had been called.

The Deputy Governor then conducted an internal investigation, including a review of the OAG report, obtaining responses from the Ministry, a review of the Ministry's audited financial statements, legal advice from the Attorney General's Chambers and independent reports from Internal Audit.

The most serious finding by the OAG was that the Ministry breached section 12 of the PMFA and the Constitution by spending funds that were not appropriated by Parliament. However, the DG found that sufficient funds were available to meet necessary costs associated with the Dubai World Expo and the opening of the Overseas Offices without the need for further funding. Given this, there was no breach of section 12 of the PMFA, or the Constitution, he found.

Auditor General, Ms Sue Winspear stated: "I agree that technically there is no breach of PMFA as the funds requested for 2021 were not actually needed after all. After the election, activities relating to the new Overseas Offices and Dubai World Expo were scaled back as a consequence of the different priorities of the new Government and so the actual costs were able to be funded from within the existing 2021 budget for that Ministry and the underspend that was carried forward from 2020. I prefaced my report by stating that I presumed the funds requested and agreed by Cabinet in January 2021 were both necessary and requested in good faith. The commitment to the additional staffing costs of course continues beyond 2021."

The entire issue was only brought into the public domain through a leak, and so the OAG report raised material issues about the conduct of the Civil Service and said it should have been treated the issue with the highest level of confidentiality in order to allow the entire review process to conclude fairly. It was for this reason that both the Governor and Deputy Governor condemned the leak.

The Governor said he was satisfied that the Deputy Governor's investigation had been carried out comprehensively and objectively in the interests of fairness to all concerned.

"It is unfortunate that the press commentary after the leaking of the OAG report, and before the Deputy Governor's full investigation was complete, led to inaccurate and skewed views being aired in public," he stated. "Notwithstanding the findings of the Deputy Governor's investigation, I am grateful to the OAG and Deputy Governor for ensuring that going forward, the jurisdiction has learnt important lessons for the future, especially the need for clearer policies and practices during periods of election sensitivity."

Opposition Leader Roy McTaggart echoed these sentiments when he stated it should have been taken into account that both the Overseas Offices and the Dubai Expo were in the works for many months. Both had the support of the United Kingdom and the Governor's Office, given their strategic importance to our Islands – particularly to financial services, he stated.

"I have said before, including in my public statement in February, that in our view, the Auditor General was gravely mistaken in several areas of the report. Today's statement by the Deputy Governor confirms this," he said, and added: "It is unfortunate that the report, with its inaccuracies, was unlawfully leaked. The consequence of the leak was to have the reputation of hard-working civil servants tarnished by the serious, albeit inaccurate, allegations levelled in the report."

Mr McTaggart said a further consequence of the leak was to have some in the media wrongly accuse members of the Progressives Government of wrongdoing. The statement from the Deputy Governor referred to the views that were aired publicly as being skewed and inaccurate. He was pleased that these inaccuracies were now being corrected.

The Deputy Governor said they continually looked for ways to improve and so welcomed constructive reports which provided opportunities to further develop Civil Service policies and procedures.

"As a consequence of this OAG report, we have now developed a formal policy entitled "Period of Election Sensitivity". Once approved by Cabinet, this guidance will provide clear information on how Civil Servants and Ministers should conduct Government business once an Election has been called," he confirmed.

Government Initiates Submarine Cable Feasibility Study

Grand Cayman - The Cayman Islands Government, through the Ministry of Infrastructure, has announced that advisory firm Grant Thornton Specialist Services (Cayman) Limited (Grant Thornton) has been contracted to undertake a formal feasibility study into the modernisation of the Islands' submarine cable infrastructure.

This follows a selection exercise initiated in December 2021, which attracted extensive international interest from several professional services and specialist submarine cable consultancies. It also builds on extensive industry and stakeholder consultations conducted by the Government over the past eighteen months.

The feasibility study, to be prepared by subsea systems experts Pioneer Consulting, will be used to guide Government's decision making around moving forward with a major submarine cable infrastructure investment project.

Minister of Infrastructure, Hon. Jay Ebanks stated that commissioning a study reflects a robust approach being taken by the Government to transform the international connectivity of the Islands. "We are bringing in world class experts to help analyse the options and identify the best approach to take in regard to this major infrastructure project. This initiative forms a key pillar of our strategy to ensure the Cayman Islands benefit from world class connectivity in order to underpin a transformation of our economy and society into a thriving digital future", he said.

In commenting on their support of the project, Partner and Head of Public Services at Grant Thornton Will McWilliams noted, "Grant Thornton are delighted to be working with the Cayman Islands Government on this important initiative and bringing the benefit of both our own global experience on major infrastructure projects and the specialist submarine cable expertise of Pioneer Consulting as part of our team. We are very much looking forward to working together on this crucial initiative".

In its 2022-2024 Strategic Policy Statement, the Cayman Islands Government highlighted that one of its broad outcomes is to build a modern infrastructure which includes providing funding for the implementation of a new underwater communications cable to ensure that the Cayman Islands remain connected to the world.

CAYMAN CONVERSATIONS TALKS SCHOLARSHIPS WITH CIS

Cayman International School (CIS) is taking its commitment to "access to education" even further by expanding its Caymanian Citizenship Scholarship (CSS).

Appearing on the inaugural edition of the new Caymanian Times multi-platform programme, Cayman Conversations, CIS director Jim Urquhart outlined the extended scholarship offer.

"Our work with expanding the scholarship programme is to help with the notion of enhancing that accessibility not just from a financial standpoint, but also from a cultural standpoint, and an awareness standpoint."

The new scholarship offer is targeted at students entering years 9, 10 or 11 and will cover their school fees at CIS for a minimum of two years and a maximum of four years, enabling successful students to follow CIS's globally-accredited International Baccalaureate (IB) Diploma study programme.

Ultimately, the plan is to have up to twelve qualifying students in the scheme.

The issue of free education was raised by the host of Cayman Conversations Ralph Lewis, editor of Caymanian Times newspaper, and drew this response from CIS Director Urquhart.

"The keyword is access to education. My sense worldwide, not just here in the Cayman Islands, is that greater access should be available for we know that the world seems to be going slowly in a direction where access to education becomes a financial challenge to people. In a perfect world, even in a good world that access should have greater availability. And our work with expanding the scholarship programme is to help with the notion of enhancing that accessibility not just from a financial standpoint, but also from a cultural standpoint and from an awareness standpoint."

Expanding on that theme, Mr Urquhart explained how she sees this benefitting both the individual student and the wider community.

"My sense is that despite this is just my 20 a month here in the Cayman Islands, is that the notion that we're a stronger Island the more we work together. And that greater sharing across the island I think is critical. And so it's reassuring to hear that many locations are looking to expand scholarship opportunities to increase access. It allows people to pursue areas that might be of interest to them, that in previous years they might not have given great consideration to."

This latest initiative by CIS follows a growth pattern for the school since it was established in 1994 as the Faulkner Academy with high ideals in October of 1994, subsequently purchased by International Schools Services (ISS) in 2002 and the name of the school changed to Cayman International School (CIS) in 2003.

It currently caters to 960 students with further expansion plans to accommodate an additional 40 by August this year.

The school's curriculum now offers classes from kindergarten to tertiary education culminating with its globally-accredited International Baccalaureate (IB) Diploma.

Appearing alongside CIS Director Jim Urquhart on Cayman Conversation was CIS student Zion Bodden who offered this perspective.

"I think tertiary education opens up so many doors. I know a lot of my friends, a lot of people in my grade will be looking to pursue that kind of education after they leave CIS and I think that it doesn't really matter what occupation you want to go into. I would love to go into football, but I understand that it's not always the most realistic goal. So it's important to have something to fall back on."

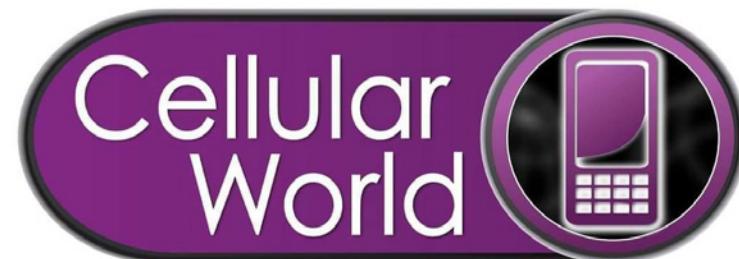

In addition to a focus on academic studies, CIS also emphasises sports, life skills training and other pursuits for its student body who are drawn from the wide spectrum of Cayman society.

The school's outlook is underpinned in its mission statement: "We are a positive school community strengthened by our international diversity. We find common ground in a shared commitment to learning that connects ideas and people, challenges us to grow, and inspires us to better ourselves and our world. We use principles to guide our journey and recognize that preparing for and shaping the future starts with embracing the opportunities that surround us each day."

Cayman Conversations with Ralph Lewis is aired Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1pm on BOBO 89.1FM (Cayman's community station)

You can also listen back to this and upcoming editions of Cayman Conversations on the Caymantain Times Facebook page and YouTube channel where you can also follow the live stream on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1pm.

Clifton Hunter High School (CHHS) Hosts Another Successful Career Fair

Thirty-four local employers, educational establishments, government agencies, and community partners showcased their organisations' work during Clifton Hunter High School's (CHHS) Career Fair held in its auditorium last Friday (29 April).

Included in the group were the Department of Education Services (DES), the Public Works Department (PWD), the Cayman Islands Health Services Authority (HSA), interactive exhibitors including Health City Cayman Islands and Cayman Enterprise City, and first-time participants, such as the Caribbean Association of Medical Technologists (CASMET).

CHHS Principal Dr. Richard Wildman was pleased with the tremendous support from the business community.

"Company participation this year has been fantastic. We have several new companies on board and companies who were here last year utilising the same format. Students also had the opportunity to interact with several of these companies, not just at the Fair but through work experience and internships and by businesses coming to the school to make presentations to students on careers," Dr. Wildman stated.

The CHHS principal also emphasised the high engagement of the approximately 400 Year 9-11 students who attended three separate sessions.

"Student involvement in the career fair

► Workforce Opportunities & Residency Cayman (WORC) representatives prepare to meet with the next group of students.

has increased significantly this year. Our school, in collaboration with the Civil Service College, is piloting a Leadership Certificate course through the Institute of Leadership & Management (ILM). To this end, several students are working in venue management, logistics, customer service, hospitality, and other management roles throughout the day as a programme requirement."

Year 11 student Jhenelle Colquhoon was one of the participating student leaders.

She explained how she benefitted from the overall experience. "I benefitted tremendously from my participation in the Career Fair. As Marketing and Communication Director, I received a lot of insight into the various skill sets needed to lead others effectively. I am also interested in working in the medical field one day and have learned so much more about the field from the numerous hospital representatives that came out today."

Cayman Auto Show is Giving a Boost to Local Charities

The Cayman Charity Auto Show is revving up and ready to speed off on Monday, May 16, 2022, for the Discovery Day long weekend as an official Queen's Platinum Jubilee Celebratory event in the Cayman Islands.

Auto enthusiasts and families alike will be able to view classic vintage cars, the latest electric supercars, trucks, motorcycles, planes, boats, service vehicles and more on display on Cayman's gorgeous waterfront in George Town. An impressive sprawl of local and international vehicles will be on display from the intersection of Mary Street and North Church Street through Fort Street and across to Cardinal Avenue.

Entrance is free to the public, but as this is a charitable event, organizers will be collecting donations which will enter spectators in a door prize draw and the ability to cast a vote for 'Best In Show'. In addition, 100% of the vehicle participation fee will be donated to the following charitable organizations: R3 Cayman Foundation, Humane Society, Cayman Community Farms, Plastic Free Cayman, 100 Men who Care. Those who make significant donations to the organizations will also have access to the VIP in a shaded waterfront area next to Sandbar.

Last year the event raised over CI$65,000 for Resilience Cayman through the Charity Auto Show event hosted by Island Air. This year as part of a match programme through R3, donations made by the Cayman Auto Show to R3 will be matched by the Kenneth B. Dart Foundation.

Event organizer Douglas Cameron (J.R.), said, "this event is a great opportunity to bring out the whole family and create memories for this once in a lifetime Queen's Platinum Jubilee event." He went on to say "the event celebrates our islands and the evolution of the automobile all while raising money and awareness for projects and non-profit organizations in our community."

With exciting show features such as a Sound Off Competition and the Best in Show Contest (as voted by spectators). The Cayman Auto Show is sponsored, judged and organized by Caribbean Kitchen, who are providing custom collectable trophies for Super Car Class (1st, 2nd and 3rd place), Street/Stock (1st, 2nd and 3rd place), Modified Class (1st, 2nd and 3rd place) and Classic Car Class (1st, 2nd and 3rd place).

a fantastic rapport. As she entered the canteen area the students gave her a standing welcome. You could their excitement as she mingled with them throughout her stay. She fielded a variety of questions, covering many areas of interest to the students.

In her remarks she expressed her gratitude for having the opportunity to visit the high school. She stunned the students when she declared: "This is my first trip to Cayman Brac."

She related to them the entire process of how she was able to attain the title and opportunity to represent the Cayman Islands in the Miss Universe pageant last year in Israel.

"The competition was tough but the experience is forever etched in my life," she told them. "My greatest take away from the experience is meeting the other girls and developing lasting relationships."

She also mentioned how chilling it was to have visited the tomb where Jesus Christ, our Saviour was buried.

What asked what advice would she give the students, she said: "Never give up! Never! Always keep at your goals and keep persisting and be consistent in your endeavours. Do not let distractions get the better of you. Learn how to mix studies and recreation. Be confident and do not give in to the temptation of giving up. There is a world of opportunities awaiting each of you. Be bold and lay hold of them," she encouraged the students to lusty cheering.

On Sunday, she and the group were special guests of the congregation of Crossroad United Baptist Church where they were welcomed and participated in the service. In her remarks to the congregation, Georgina said she was truly blessed to be there and was touched by the worship and praise, and the warmth and love that flowed from everyone.

After the service concluded she and her team engaged in meeting, greeting and chatting with the church members. This stop concluded her trip to the Sister Islands.

CIBC FIRSTCARIBBEAN WINS BEST RENEWABLE ENERGY FINANCING AWARD AT THE CARIBBEAN RENEWABLE ENERGY FORUM (CREF 2022)

When the Caribbean Renewable Energy Forum (CREF) gathered for its 14th session in Miami, Florida, recently, CIBC FirstCaribbean was named recipient of the award for Best Renewable Energy Financing in the 2022 CREF Industry Awards.

The forum returned to its first in-person gathering where over 25 countries, including regional stakeholders, were in attendance for the April 26-28 caucus.

CIBC FirstCaribbean was recognised for its innovation and leadership in corporate financing of key initiatives in the renewable energy sector. Between 2020-21, the bank spearheaded the refinancing of project portfolios of two major renewable energy players in the Caribbean: BMR Energy, a developer of wind and solar photo-voltaic (PV) assets in multiple territories of the region and Central America; and WRB Energy, an investor in the largest utility-scale solar PV plant in Jamaica. In so doing, the bank continued to express its confidence in the sector by demonstrating that regional financial institutions are at the table to support the region's energy transition and emphasise that renewable energy investments can access financing options within our region to accelerate this transition.

Chief Executive Officer, Colette Delaney observed that the bank's commitment over the period for which the award was adjudicated, "represents a departure from the historical construct where extra-regional development banks have been the main financiers of renewable energy projects within our region. Renewable energy developers now understand that our support for projects in the sector means that there is more than a single pathway to financing their projects in the region."

"Our bank will continue to focus on the types of investments that can be a catalyst to our region's recovery, such as renewable energy investments. Infrastructure investment, in general, is important to stimulate the economy, put people back to work, create new jobs and encourage increased cash flow circulation to resuscitate our economies and ensure our future success," noted Ms. Delaney.

CIBC FirstCaribbean continues to be acknowledged for its role in arranging similar financing initiatives in the renewable energy space. In 2017, the bank received the CREF "Project Finance Deal of the Year" award for financing of the first utility-scale solar PV project in the Cayman Islands.

CREF is the largest annual gathering of the energy market in the Caribbean, with a particular focus on clean energy. Through events, webinars and market intelligence, the conference organisers, New Energy Events LLC, has supported the global transition to clean energy since 2009. The forum continues to bring together policymakers, regulators, utilities, investors, developers and financiers in an environment which encourages the market to meet and network, with a view to inspiring action in the industry.

Cadet Corps celebrates 20 years

By Lindsey Turnbull

Playing an important role in helping to shape Cayman's youth for the better, the Cayman Islands Cadet Corps has begun celebrating 20 years of operation in the Cayman Islands, beginning with a church service which happened at the start of the month. Commandant Lt. Col. Errol Brathwaite spoke with Caymanian Times publisher Ralph Lewis about how the Cadet Corps has evolved over the 20 years and the tremendous good it has achieved so far.

The Cayman Islands Cadet Corps commenced 20 years ago, beginning as part of a cadet movement across not only the region but across the globe, the Lt. Col explained. The first Cadet Corps started in 1904 in the region, evolving from its earliest beginning in the 1800s in the UK. A national voluntary youth organisation. Currently the Cadet Corps falls under the Ministry of Home Affairs and is sponsored by the Cayman Islands Government.

"The organisation was developed to build strength of character among our young people," Lt. Col. Brathwaite advised. "We want to augment what has been done in the schools and in the homes by offering them interesting, exciting and challenging activities that keeps their minds occupied, keep them physically fit, and keep them engaged with their peers, particularly at times where parents are at work in the afternoon and need some extra time before they pick them up, the Cadet Corps is the ideal opportunity through which good supervision and mentorship can make a difference."

Lt. Col. Brathwaite said the Cadet Corps has had significant positive impact on youth during the 20 years it has been in operation.

"We've seen significant benefits in a number of individuals who have passed through the Cayman Islands Cadet Corps and who've graduated into some of the uniform services, namely the RCIPS and the CI Coast Guard. We've seen people go into HMCI, into 911. Some youngsters after leaving the CICC have pursued studies overseas to become attorneys-at-law, engineers and across a wide spectrum of disciplines, both in the uniformed services and outside the uniformed services."

In essence, the Cadet Corps has helped prepare young people for adulthood, with youngsters able to join once they start secondary school at 11 to 17 years old.

The Cadet Corps is split into different detachments or companies. The Infantry detachments use training based upon the Army Cadet Force training programme from the UK and is the syllabus the Cadets' use across the region. With a focus on drills, they are able to develop teamwork and team spirit, developing practical skills, such as using a map and compass, as well as adventurous training, building shelters and cooking, along with target shooting skills (with an emphasis on safety and competition shooting).

"In the event there is an emergency or disaster Cadets already have the skills to survive in arduous conditions," Lt. Col.

Brathwaite advised.

The Marine detachment teaches cadets about naval traditions and customs, boat handling, morse code, etc. Those skills are developing youngsters who are interested in working in maritime areas, working with the Coast Guard or operating their own vessel, so they understand laws of the ocean, he advised.

The acting Commandant also noted that in addition to the Band and Marine detachments, there are Cadet Detachments at John Gray High School, Clifton Hunter High School, Triple C School and Layman E. Scott High School (Brac). In addition, there are students from Cayman Academy, St. Ignatius Catholic School, Lighthouse School Calvary Baptist Christian Academy, Wesleyan Christian Academy and George Town Primary who are members of the Cadet programme and assigned to one of the existing detachments.

Celebrating in style

A number of key activities have been planned to ensure the 20th anniversary milestone is suitably recognised. Having held a special church service last Sunday to kick start events, they are looking to the remainder of May to begin a community project, participating in tree planting efforts across the Islands. In June, they will move into beginning Project 20:20, with 20 Cadets walking 20 dogs, a project that may continue in the future once they have ascertained whether this can be facilitated from time to time.

In July they will host their annual camp, under the theme: "The Cayman Cadet, 20 Years of Youth Development: Utilising the Past to Fortify the Future," but this year it will not be a normal training routine, instead, it will be the culmination of activities and competitions between the different companies within the CICC, including activities such as drill, orienteering, triathlon, all in a wide range of activities to test the standards attained by the cadets.

The company that emerges the winners will earn important bragging rights.

"This is very important to ensure that the youngsters keep coming," Lt. Col. Brathwaite advised,

In August and September, they are looking at holding open days and recruitment drives for cadets and also volunteers. Good supervision was essential, he said, as they currently had 48 volunteers, but were looking to recruit more.

"With a full time staff of only five supervising over 200 cadets, the volunteers play a significant supporting role," the acting Commandant advised.

A strategic recruitment campaign was developing whereby they were going into schools at the start of the academic year, ensuring that young people were fully abreast of what the Cadet Corps is all about. Thus far this approach was working, as Lt. Col. Brathwaite confirmed:

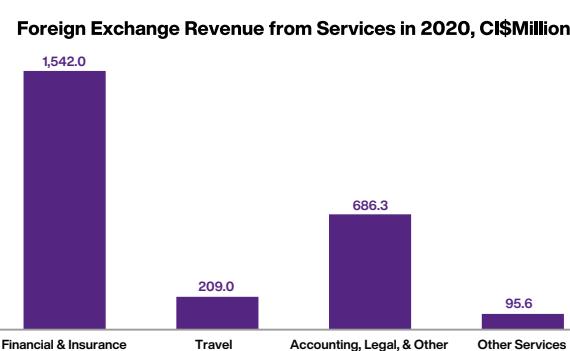

"We've had a fairly good response, particularly over the past two or three years, we've seen our numbers grow," he said. "The perception that had been held over the years that the Cadet Corps was only for bad children was one of the biggest myths not only here but across the globe and one which we have to demystify."

Looking ahead, the Cadet Corps is working on a number of Memoranda of Understanding (MOUs) starting with the RCIPS and the CI Coast Guard, which will identify some individuals who want to transition from cadets into those organisations, so in their final year as cadets they are attached with them, enabling them to have a head start in training, the acting Commandant said. In this way, the youngsters are already a good many steps ahead in their careers and their lives.

May Conference Workshop Showcases Local Security Suite

Ransomware attacks are becoming an expensive headache for many companies, both large and small, as well as government organizations. It's essentially a blackmailing scam using malware and threatening to publish personal data or block access unless a ransom is paid. Many companies with limited resources or aging legacy security tools are finding bad actors taking over their systems and locking them out, only promising to unlock the data for a large sum of monies. Several high-profile recent phishing and malware attacks have sent organizations all over the world scrambling to ensure they don't fall victim to such attacks.

Local company eShore Ltd (Cayman) will be presenting at the Kimpton this month at the Bsides.ky conference, hosting a two-hour workshop on 'Mircosoft 0365 Security and Resilience' with popular secure email specialist, Abner Almeida, CEO of Mimesure London.

The conference workshop intends to demonstrate in many cases how companies are looking to their managed service providers (MSPs) to ensure they are protected against a ransomware attack and mitigate security gaps in 0365. As a value-added IT solutions provider eShore also recently launched a managed services security (MSP) platform technology with SentinelOne, a Mountain View, California-based cybersecurity that was named Leader in the 2021 Gartner Magic Quadrant for Endpoint Protection. The level 1 support heartbeat team offering this implementation, integration and alert censor services for is local company, Cayman Solution Providers, led by Principle Architect, Rudolf Hoehler.

Rudolf explains, "SentinelOne Singularity platform is a data pool designed to meld together the data, access, control, and integration planes of endpoint protection (EPP), endpoint detection and response (EDR), IoT security, and cloud workload protection (CWPP) into one exceptional centralized platform, and with API integration into secure email gateway systems like mimecast, the combinations for combating security threats is really getting stronger" Polly Pickering, Managing Director of eShore Ltd (Cayman) further stated

"With Managed Service Provider tools such as these, organizations get a unified view of their network by adding a real time autonomous security layers across all their enterprise IT estate. But it is also perfect for small businesses that require just simple layers on what might be less than awesome networks. These solutions are for anyone requiring certified 3rd party services for a predictable low cost, less than a cup of coffee a day".

The launch between the two local companies will see eShore and CSP (Cayman) providing Endpoint detection and response along with a variety of vendor technologies aimed at helping small and medium businesses across the Cayman Islands and into the Caribbean and LATAM.

The new joint deployment headquarters in the Cayman Islands enables this MSP model for licensing of next generation antivirus directly from the management console, based on a pay-as-you-use concept.

To learn more about these managed service providers and how a variety of technology partner tools can improve security and guard against ransomware attacks, make plans to attend Bsides.ky conference Thursday and Friday May 26-27th at the Cayman Islands Kimpton Hotel and visit eShore Gold Sponsor at Booth # 1, For more information or to register to Bsides.ky or contact eShore at info@eshoreltd.com +1 345 946 3673

Mosquito Emergence Begins Due to Increased Rainfall

Mosquito Emergence Expected

The Cayman Islands should expect significantly higher numbers of mosquitoes due to increased rainfall over the past few weeks.

Residents and visitors of the Cayman Islands should expect significantly higher numbers of mosquitoes in the coming days due to increased rainfall over the past few weeks.

Typical mitigation efforts by The Mosquito Research & Control Unit (MRCU) were limited through mid-April due to high winds and rainfall. The MRCU has since been conducting aerial larviciding operations in most areas flooded by rain. However, adult mosquitoes are expected to be emerging over the next 10 days. A large day-biting mosquito species known as Psorophora colombiae has already emerged from flooded grassland areas, and adults of the Black Saltmarsh mosquito (Aedes taeniorhynchus) are expected to start causing a biting nuisance from Sunday, 1 May onwards. This species can occur in very high numbers and is the primary nuisance mosquito in the Cayman Islands.

The MRCU will continue aerial larviciding operations (against mosquito larvae) but plans to switch its operations to target adult biting mosquitoes starting today Monday, 2 May. However, numbers are expected to remain high for at least seven days (through 9 May). During this period, members of the public are advised to minimise outdoor activities between 7 and 9 p.m. If people need to go outside, they are recommended to apply a DEET or Picaridin based repellent. The public is also reminded that Dog Heartworm is transmitted by mosquitoes and poses a significant health risk to dogs.

"We apologise for any inconvenience caused by this emergence, but we can assure the public that the MRCU is actively working to minimise the impact of mosquitoes", MRCU Director Alan Wheeler said.

Cayman celebrates CARIFTA heroes

► 12-year old swimmer and bronze medalist Kassandra Adapa

By Christopher Tobutt

The Cayman Cabana in George Town was the scene was a big reception for all of Cayman's young CARIFTA heroes who brought home a huge haul of 65 medals, 57 in pool (25 gold, 23 silver and 9 bronze) and four in open water (2 golds, 1 Silver and 1 bronze), and in athletics, one gold, one silver and 2 bronze.

His Excellency the Governor Martyn Roper was busy shaking hands and congratulating all the young people on the CARIFTA team. He commented, "They all did incredibly well, we are all really proud of them. To win so many swimming medals was a fabulous achievement and also Andrew Stone in the Long Jump did amazingly well too so, "proud of them all."

17-year-old Kyra Rabess, co-captain of the swimming team, won an amazing nine medals altogether, five golds (in the 5k, the 800m, the 400m, the 200m and the 4 by 200m relay) three silvers and one bronze. "It was really fun to go there especially with such a big team," she said, "It was really nice to connect with the younger ones, especially the 11 and 12-year-old kids. It's good to watch them come up, and be the new superstars for Cayman."

It was 13-year-old Jack Clark-Terrell's very first CARIFTA, and although he didn't win any medals this time, he will next time, he says. "It was wonderful," he said, "I got to experience a new culture and meet new friends from different places, and get an idea of the competitiveness of overseas swimsmeets." Kassandra Adapa is only 12, and she got a bronze medal in the 4x100 relay. "Barbados was amazing. It was very much fun and I would definitely love to go again. I haven't swam in a 50 meter pool in a few years and it was a big difference." And this is a point worth making – that the pools available for practice are not 50 meters, which is the standard, so that all the pool swimmers did even better- because they had to quickly adapt to the greater length. But there are plans and money put aside for a 50-meter pool, so that is good news.

But it wasn't only swimmers who got the medals. In Track & Field. John Gray High School student, Jerrell Maize participated in the 100m and 200m and won a bronze in the 4x100 relay. "It was my first time at CARIFTA it was more fun than I expected." Giving him a hi-five, his dad, Jermaine Maize said, "I am 100 percent proud. It was his first CARIFTA games and he did very well, actually exceeded my expectations."

Hon Minister Bernie Bush MP said, "As I look around the talented dedicated young athletes it gives me great hope for the future of sports in the Cayman islands. Many of the qualities needed to excel in the competitive world of sports such as commitment to excellence, setting personal goals, teamwork and resilience, are the very same traits that can be transferred into other areas in your life.

"In Barbados our swimming team smashed their record 2017 CARIFTA games haul, by an astounding 11 medals resulting in a 61-medal winning streak, which not only earned them top place in the medal rankings, solidifying Cayman's reputation in CARIFTA's swimming history again."

Pooran is new white ball skipper

► Nicholas Pooran is in fine white ball form

► Kieron Pollard had a glorious 15-year international career

Nicholas Pooran is the new captain of West Indies' ODI and T20I teams.

The 26-year-old Trinidadian replaces Kieron Pollard, who retired recently from international cricket. Pooran had already served as Pollard's deputy over the last year and has also been a stand-in captain leading West Indies against Australia in a T20I series in 2021.

Shai Hope is the new vice-captain of the ODI team, said a statement from Cricket West Indies (CWI). Kraigg Brathwaite remains Test skipper. Pooran said: "I am truly honoured to be appointed captain of the West Indies team. I am following the footsteps of several giants of the game who have created an amazing legacy."

Pooran will take over full-time captaincy from West Indies' tour of Netherlands later this month. Jimmy Adams, CWI's Director of Cricket, said: "We believe Nicholas is ready for the challenge of leading our white-ball teams given his experience, performances, and the respect he has within the playing group. The Selection Panel believes that Nicholas has matured as a player and were impressed with his leadership of both teams when Kieron Pollard had been absent.

Following his T20I debut in 2016, Pooran has represented West Indies in 94 white-ball internationals and has over 3300 runs across formats. The appointment comes as he hits top form at the top level. He's scored close to 500 runs in T20Is last year while continuing his form this year with 348 T20I runs at an average of 49.71 in 2022. He is currently playing in the middle order for Sunrisers Hyderabad in the Indian Premier League.

"Nicholas Pooran is a specially gifted cricketer, and the right person to take over the white ball captaincy," Ricky Skerritt, CWI President, said. "We are confident that he will continue to climb the leadership learning curve speedily, and successfully. I appeal to all West Indies cricket stakeholders to give Nicholas the support and encouragement that he deserves."

Pollard is playing in the IPL franchise for Mumbai Indians. He wrote on Instagram: "As is the case of many young persons, it was a dream of mine to represent the West Indies team from the time I was a boy of 10 years and I'm proud to have represented West Indies cricket for over 15 years in both the T20I and ODI forms of the game."

"I can still vividly remember making my international debut in 2007 under the leadership of my childhood hero, Brian Lara. Wearing those maroon colours and playing alongside such greats has been a privilege that I never took lightly, giving my heart and soul in every facet of the game - whether bowling, batting or fielding."

The 34-year-old Trinidadian added that captaining West Indies was "the highest honour bestowed" on him and that he led with "passion, openness, courage, and everything I could ever possibly give both on and off the field without ever compromising my principles and integrity."

With a T20 World Cup coming up later this year in Australia and an ODI World Cup next year in India, CWI had already groomed Pooran for the leadership role.

Brilliant Giannis is MVP favourite

► Giannis Antetokounmpo is shining in the play-offs

This year's MVP race in the NBA is one of the hottest and closest ones in years.

The three finalists are Milwaukee Bucks superstar Giannis Antetokounmpo, who has won the award twice, the Denver Nuggets' Nikola Jokic, who won it last year and Philadelphia 76ers center Joel Embiid, who led the NBA in scoring.

Other contenders are Luka Doncic, Devin Booker and Jayson Tatum.

But on current form, Antetokounmpo is this week's stand out candidate. Facing the NBA's No. 1 defence in Game 1 of the Eastern Conference semi-finals, the 'Greek Freak' was still able to amaze with a crazy highlight play.

In the fourth quarter in Boston on Sunday, Antetokounmpo - with a defender draped all over him - had picked up his dribble and was struggling to find a teammate.

But rather than trying a speculative shot or pass the ball off, he turned towards the basket, threw the ball off the backboard before slamming home to complete the solo alley-oop.

The explosive display of athleticism gave the Milwaukee Bucks a 94-78 lead late in the fourth quarter and was the crowning moment of the team's 101-89 victory over the Celtics.

When he was asked about the electrifying moment, Antetokounmpo, 27, joked: "What did I see? I had the ball and I was like: 'Oh, crap. I'm going to get stuck,'"

"I threw it to the backboard," he said. "I'm lucky enough that God blessed me with the ability to jump. I had a good jump to go get it again and I was able to finish the play."

He finished with a triple-double with 24 points, 13 rebounds and 12 assists.

Elaine hopes to delete Flo-Jo's record

► Elaine Thompson-Herah is getting closer to the record

Olympic and World sprint queen Elaine Thompson-Herah is officially the second fastest woman 100 metres runner in history, but she is campaigning - backed by the Jamaican government - for the 34-year-old record to be expunged because it was drug enhanced.

Lord Sebastian Coe, president of World Athletics, insists that despite personal views on the matter, Thompson-Herah will have to beat Florence Griffith-Joyner's time on the track.

The late Griffith-Joyner clocked a highly controversial 10.49 seconds in 1988 in Indianapolis at the US Olympics Trials. Exceptional tail wind and the fact that she was suspected of taking performance-enhancing drugs have put a huge shadow over the time ever since. In fact, it was so fast and beyond all women athletes at the time that it was dubbed 'a man's record'.

The mark has been shrouded in scepticism and there have been strong calls from within the track and field community for it to be scratched and replaced with the next-best clocking.

No one had come close before Thompson-Herah ran the second-fastest time in history in 10.54 seconds at the Diamond League meeting in Eugene, Oregon, last August. Hopes are from purists is that she will soon beat the record on the track.

But Coe disapproves of calls for the 29-year-old Jamaican's time to be recognised as the world record for the event, pointing primarily to legal obstacles. The main reason is that Flo-Jo never failed a drug test and retired in 1988 following the Olympics — before mandatory drug testing was introduced. She died in her sleep as the result of an epileptic seizure in 1998, aged 38.

5 Signs Your Diet Is a Fail

You've considered it for weeks, months, years even. And now is the time that you've decided to make a change and go on that diet. But don't just dive in feet first. First, take a long, hard look at the diet you're considering and answer five questions before proceeding.

Only then can you be sure your diet is not going to land you in the land of diet failure.

Question 1: Does it make you hungry all day every day?

When you're on a diet, it's normal to feel the occasional tinge of hunger. Much of those light hunger pangs, however, should be done away with by drinking a glass of water. And if you stay busy enough with life in general, you ought to be able to ignore some other hunger. But if your diet has you feeling hungry at all times, you're not going to last long.

To avoid falling into the pit of hungry despair, go with a diet that lets you eat protein, fiber, and healthy fats. Also, as stated above, drink plenty of water to avoid confusing hunger with thirst.

Question 2: Does it force you to drop food groups?

A healthy diet is one that incorporates appropriate amounts of food from each food group. When a diet cuts an entire food group from your eating options, you're going to have a hard time surviving your diet for longer than a week or two. One of the most popular food groups to cut is carbohydrates. While not eating carbs will indeed help you lose weight, carbs are what make it possible to store energy to make it through the day. No carbs, no energy, no willpower to maintain your diet.

Question 3: Is your mood suddenly unpredictable?

Everyone gets metabolic every once in a while, but if your diet is too restrictive, you may find your mood swings coming with greater regularity and severity. This happens because excessive caloric restrictions messes with the chemicals in your brain. When this occurs, there is no telling what direction your mood will go.

Before letting your diet ruin your relationships and put your job at risk, reconsider your diet and find one that helps you be cool, calm, and collected.

Question 4: Does it insist there is no need to exercise?

There are some diet plans that promise plenty of lost pounds without the addition of exercise.

If this is the type of diet you're considering or are in the midst of, beware! Exercise comes with countless health benefits that will make your weight loss all the more beneficial. From preventing chronic pain to improving your energy level and sleeping better, exercise is a vital component to any diet.

Question 5: Do you still weigh the same?

It is true that the best way to lose weight is slowly—approximately one or two pounds per week. But take note that slowly doesn't mean not at all.

In the event you've been on a diet for a few weeks without any results to speak of, then your diet is a flop. Drop it immediately and find something that will help you lose pounds. Otherwise, you'll get discouraged with your diet and swap it for the old habits that got you where you are now.

Remember that a true body transformation comes only from a combination of diet and exercise. Call Ernest at Body Shapers Personal Training Studio 325-8696 or email me at bodyshaperscayman@gmail.com today to get started on the only fitness program that you'll ever need!

Control your Energy in the 'Palm of your Hand'

Receive daily account alerts via text and e-mail to track your electricity usage and monitor your daily usage. You will also be notified in advance if your credit is running low and you are approaching eligibility for disconnection.
