The Dragons are back

► 6 year old beginners Kailon Scott, Barack Kimati & Marco Lawson

After being out of the tournament scene for almost three years because of the Covid 19 pandemic the Cayman Islands chapter of Purple Dragon International School of martial arts, hosted a Point Sparring karate tournament on Saturday June 25th at the John Gray High School Auditorium. Forty-six martial artists ranging from ages 5 years to 62 years competed in the friendly battle. Competitors were divided in different divisions by age, ranks and gender. Points were awarded to competitors delivering a clear strike to the designated scoring area on their opponent. Each match had a one-minute time limit for competitors to accumulate as many points as possible.

CONSTITUTION DAY MESSAGE FROM HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR

As Governor, I send my best wishes to everyone on Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman as we celebrate Cayman's Constitution. Over the 3-4 years I have been here, I have watched the mutually beneficial partnership between the UK and Cayman go from strength to strength. The UK commitment to the Cayman Islands as part of the Overseas Territories family remains steadfast. This year I have been touched by the extraordinary warmth shown to Her Majesty the Queen by the people of these islands during the Platinum Jubilee year.

Cayman enjoys a large degree of self-government and can be immensely proud of its achievements. As a small territory, I am always struck by how it punches above its weight in so many areas, regionally and internationally. Our world-beating tourism industry is bouncing back strongly from the global pandemic. We are a leading global financial services centre.

Our Constitution is not only resilient but is also a living document and provides the cornerstone of our democracy, freedoms, rights and responsibilities. Indeed, the doctrine of Separation of Powers between the Executive arm (Government), Parliament and Judiciary, and which is enshrined in the Constitution, continues to be a crucial means of safeguarding citizens' freedoms and rights.

As Governor I would like to thank all those who work in our independent Commissions and Offices, established under our Constitution, that underpin our good governance and stability. These are: the Constitutional Commission, Human Rights Commission, Standards in Public Life Commission, Judicial and Legal Services Commission, Civil Service Appeals Commission and Anti-Corruption Commission. Assisted by the Commissions Secretariat, they do important and often unsung work, supporting our democratic way of life and governance standards.

Our Auditor-General and Ombudsman, and their hard-working and conscientious staff, do excellent work to improve accountability, transparency and support individuals in our community.

Our highly respected and independent judiciary underpins the success and reputation of our jurisdiction, supported by the Office of the Director of Public Prosecutions and our Attorney-General and his staff.

On Constitution Day, we should reflect on the institutions that support our democracy, freedoms and rights. Events in other parts of the world, particularly Ukraine, underline that we should not take these for granted. In the Cayman Islands, we can all give thanks for the relative peace, tranquillity and stability that we enjoy.

I hope everyone has a wonderful long weekend.

CONSTITUTION DAY MESSAGE FROM HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN

Today, as we celebrate the 63rd anniversary of the first Cayman Islands Constitution, His Excellency The Governor is pleased to share a message from Her Majesty the Queen to the Honourable Premier and the people of the Cayman Islands:

"As you celebrate the important occasion of your Constitution Day, I would like to congratulate your Premier, Hon. Wayne Panton, JP, MP, and send my good wishes to the people of the Cayman Islands. As we overcome global health challenges together, with determination and fortitude, may we look to better times in the future. Elizabeth R"

TechCayman Robotics Returns to Layman Scott High School in Cayman Brac

TechCayman's ongoing robotics program hosted a two-day immersive camp at Layman Scott High School on Cayman Brac last weekend, where sixteen (16) students, ages 11-16, had the opportunity to build and program robots to solve increasingly complex puzzles.

Most of the students have had no previous exposure to robotics or programming, so the first lesson is to, "learn to think like a programmer," explained Philip Liu, TechCayman's Education Program Coordinator. "The participants have to carefully break each challenge down into small, precise steps before trying to translate them into a form the robot's brain will understand." Sean Martinez, a participant, said, "It taught me how to give instructions to machines."

The first lesson was a messy one, as the entire group had to cooperate to break a daily task down into simple steps. For this exercise, the students had to explain how to make a sandwich to someone who had never done the task before. "Often we take for granted steps like opening the bag or being specific about how much jelly to use or how to orient a piece of bread," said Mr. Liu. "We teach the kids to be precise and specific in their instructions, since the robots will do only exactly what we tell them to, no more and no less."

The camp then proceeds to teach basic programming to the participants. "We use Scratch, a programming language specifically designed by Google to be accessible to young coders as young as eight (8) years old," said Mr. Liu. "It has all the fundamentals of a professional language but uses colors and shapes to streamline the learning experience. By programming in Scratch early, students become versed with the core elements of all programming languages and can easily pick up more advanced ones." Avian Williams, a participant, said, "The programming lesson has very valuable information that can be used in [my] future career."

Before the end of the first day, the students had filled the playing field with self-driving robots they had built. The initial puzzle was to navigate a simple maze. Dionne Smith, a teacher at Layman Scott who mentored the event, added, "I like the way how students were willing to explore and try new functions to make their robots perform differently." When asked about her favorite aspect of programming, Cailyn Chambers, a participant, replied, "Getting to explore the different things you could make your robot do." Jaydon Carter, also a participant, was enthusiastic about creative freedom. "It was all my ideas!"

Modeled after actual software development, teams were encouraged to collaborate, instead of competing with one another. During multiple "code review" breaks during the two days, each team shared what solutions they had discovered and were encouraged to exchange parts of their programs with other teams. "Good software is created using the best solution, regardless of who discovered it," said Mr. Liu. "Each team can actively support the success of all the other teams." Ms. Smith said, "[I liked] the team effort and the way students worked cohesively to accomplish the goal."

On the final day, each team had an opportunity to present their robot and their programs. Programs were projected on a large display, and team members had the opportunity to explain their approaches and the unique features of their programs while their robots navigated puzzles. "It's a chance for the participants to show off what they're really proud of," said Mr. Liu. "We take time to acknowledge each team's unique achievements."

Acting Deputy Principal Kevin Roberts said, "We are extremely appreciative of the collaboration between TechCayman and our school. This is the third camp being offered to our students and as with previous ones, they found it very engaging and stimulating. The two days were well spent with the TechCayman crew and our staff mentors, and our students had fun while learning. We always welcome these opportunities to build the critical thinking and problemsolving skills of our students and look forward to a long-standing quality partnership with TechCayman as we integrate their program into our extra-curricular ICT program."

"It was soooooo fun. I love building robots, but programming is a little harder," said Ari-Mae Solomon, a participant. "The program was great, very interactive, stimulating, and inspiring," said Ms. Smith. "What was especially good was that students got enough time to build, test, and improve their robots' functionality." Kai Roberts, a participant, said, "I liked the problem-solving."

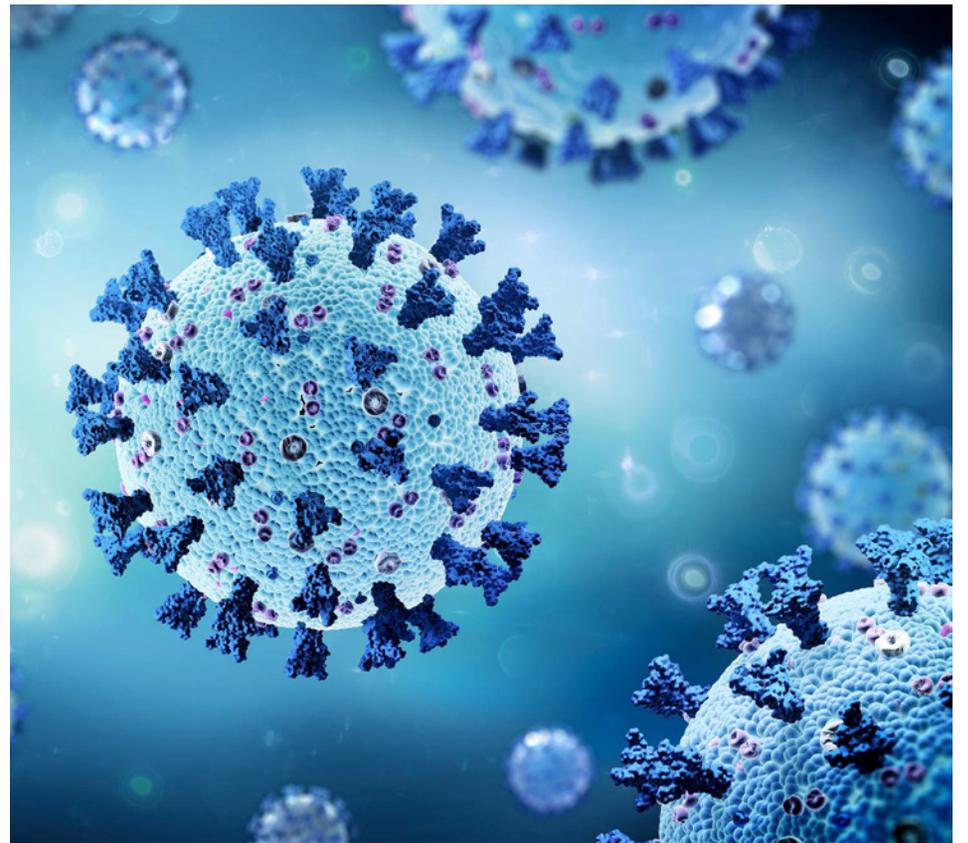

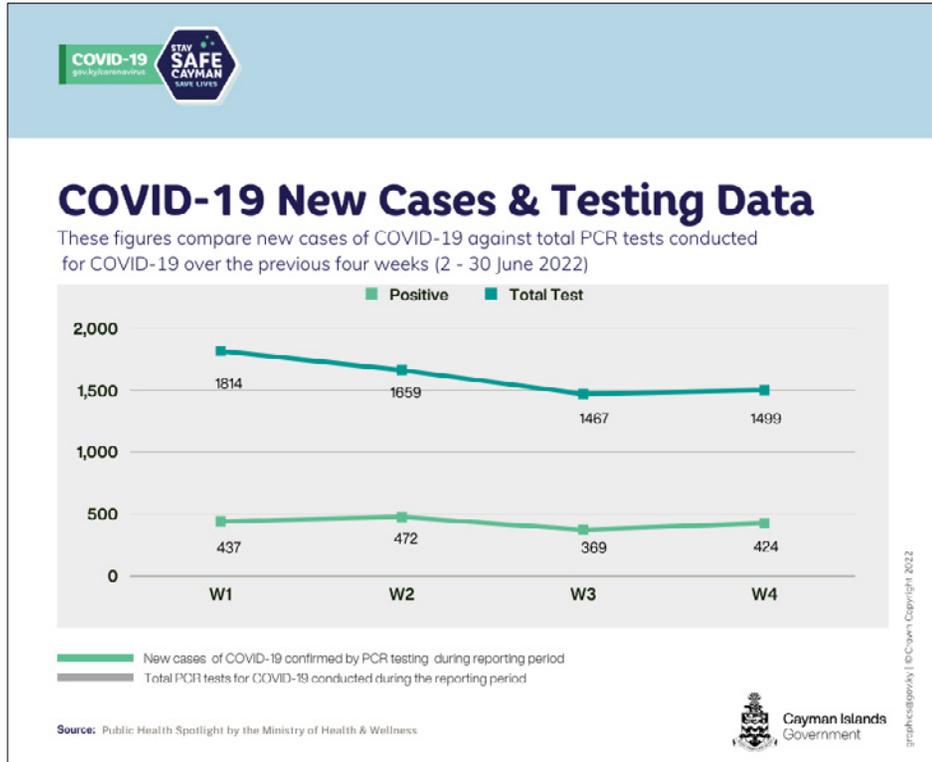

Special thanks were given to the teaching staff of Layman Scott High School for assisting with mentoring the camp. For more information about TechCayman's education program, including how to participate or volunteer, contact Machine-Learning@TechCayman.com.

TechCayman is a privately owned, government enabled services company, created to bring new technology companies and their teams to the Cayman Islands. Committed to the ongoing development of a thriving tech ecosystem, programs like Machine Learning Robotics have been created with a goal of inspiring Cayman's youth to pursue careers in technology.

COVID-19 - Epidemiological Week 25

19 - 25 June 2022 (Data as of 27-06-2022)

International Situation

Globally, there has been a decline in COVID-19 cases and deaths reported in the previous week. Omicron continues to be the predominant variant circulating internationally, specifically in the BA.2 lineage and BA.5 lineage.

Cayman Islands Local Trends

In the Cayman Islands, an increase has been reported in key indicators over the past week, with an increase of 15% in the case rate from 532 cases per 100,000 population to 611 cases per 100,000. The number of newly confirmed cases has increased to 424 in Epi Week 25 from 369. The number of testing conducted in the past week has remained relatively stable and test positivity has increased slightly to 28% from 26% in the previous week. One new death has been reported in Epi Week 25, bringing the total number of COVID-19 deaths to 29.

Hospital Admissions

Ten new admissions were registered during Epi. Week 25, an increase from the previous reporting week where five new admissions were reported. Of the ten admissions, six were admitted due to COVID-19 morbidity, and four were patients were detected on screening. A total of 12 patients required inpatient treatment, which increased from 9 patients in the previous week.

66 children (22 first dosed and 44 second dose). Among those over 20 years of age, vaccine coverage of the booster (third dose) is 42.8%, and among those over 70 years the booster coverage is 68.7%.

Key Message

Epidemiological metrics have fluctuated the past few weeks and ongoing transmission appears to be plateauing rather than declining after the recent wave of infections.

Vaccination

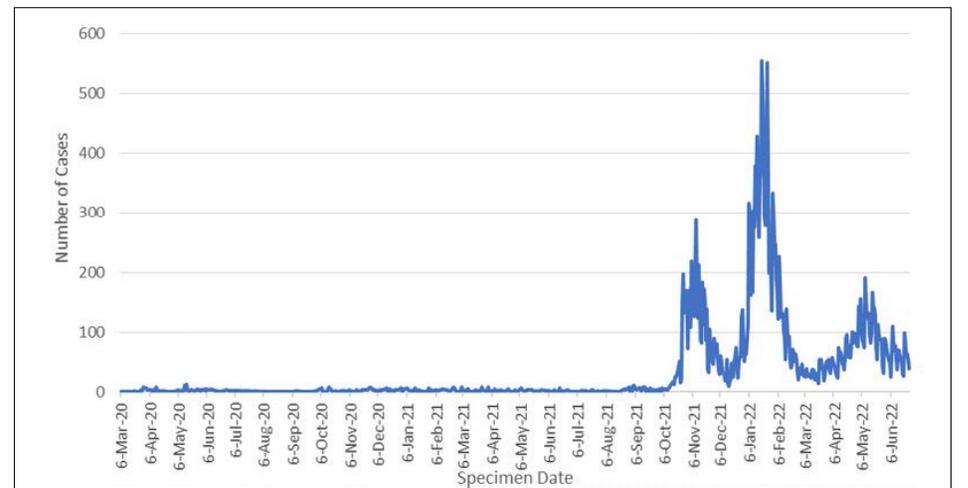

During Epi. Week 25, there were 134 adults who received a COVID-19 vaccine (48 first dose and 86 second dose) and

Monkeypox

Overview

Since the beginning of 2022, 3,413 laboratory-confirmed cases of monkeypox have been reported to WHO from 50 Member States that are not endemic for the monkeypox virus, across five WHO regions (data as of 22 June).

One death has been reported in Australia, a non-endemic country. The WHO region which the highest proportion of reported cases is the European Region (86%, 2933/3414).

Most cases reported in non-endemic countries so far have been presented through sexual health or other primary health services and have involved mainly, but not exclusively, men who have sex with men (MSM). Most confirmed cases with a travel history have reported travel to countries in Europe and North America, as opposed to countries in West or Central Africa where the virus is endemic.

WHO currently assesses the risk at the global level as moderate, however, the regional risk within the European Region is assessed to be high. On 23 June 2022, the International Health Regulations Emergency Committee met and advised that currently, the monkeypox outbreak should not constitute a Public Health Emergency of International Concern (PHEIC).

Cayman Islands

There are no known cases of monkeypox virus detected in Cayman Islands.

The Cayman Islands now have the capacity to diagnose Monkeypox at the Cayman Molecular Laboratory.

Mental Health

The importance of our mental has increasingly been recognised in recent years. Globally, depression is a leading cause of disability and those with severe mental health conditions can have a much shorter life expectancy due to physical conditions which are preventable. Prior to the pandemic, it was estimated that one in eight individuals internationally were living with a mental disorder. Mental health conditions are also increasing prevalent among children and adolescents, and worldwide 20% are estimated to have a mental health condition.

There is significant stigma and discrimination towards those who struggle with their mental health. A consequence of the pandemic has been an increase in anxiety and depressive disorders, and simultaneously less access to services and support.

In the Cayman Islands, those using the inpatient facility at the mental health services are more often females than males. For the Health Services Authority in 2020, the average number of patients admitted quarterly with a mental health primary or secondary diagnosis was 110 patients. The top three diagnoses in 2020 were categorised under anxiety, depressions and other which included diagnoses such as Autism and Attention Deficit Hyperactive Disorder (ADHD).

CayMAS brings colour sound and excitement to the streets

By Christopher Tobutt

CayMAS is back with a bang and a splash, a shimmer and a shine. There were lots of fun events, spread between Thursday 29 June and Monday 4th July. But the highlight had to be the street parade on Saturday which started right down near Eden Rock and wound its colorful way up the waterfront ending at the Public Beach. Bystanders including many tourists took photos and videos with their phones as it passed by and everyone had a great time.

It was a lot of fun and all this year's mas bands with wings and colorful feathers were there, as music boomed and rumbled out of the giant speakers on the backs of giant sound trucks like a huge soca earthquake. Not everyone's the same, and you can choose a mas band that suits your personality. You can either go in the finery, or if you prefer you can still join in – in one of the T-shirt mas bands. Swanky International has always strived to offer top DJ's with their huge sound trucks, and there were mobile bars too. Kalabra is another great mas band with some incredible costume choices. Liquid Ice is a T-shirt band and it was very cool, and Cayman's boutique-style mas band, Iconz had colourful and unique costumes, inspired from Cayman's natural beauty. Quintessential Movement is a mas band with a difference, an exercise studio taken to the streets, and the now-familiar Chicken Run mas band which made its first appearance back in 2006 at Batabano. Azucar International is Cayman's very own Latin fusion carnival experience, providing a big explosion of dance energy to the sweet sounds of salsa, reggaeton, merengue and yes, just a hint of soca too. There was Fantasy with their amazing costumes and also Renegade and Party Animals. Fete for a Cause was there, with T-shirts raising money to fight Cancer. If they still had any energy left, there was the big Swanky AfterMas with music from Iwer George and Farmer Nappy.

It's was a big celebration of local and regional culture and local food and of course, it was also a chance to celebrate the end of Cayman's mask rule. It's surely good news for the local tourist stakeholders, bringing perhaps thousands to the island, with all that jump-jump-jumping helping to jump-start business for hotels, restaurants and tour operators, not just on the day of the march but also the whole five days.

► Lots of tourists came out to see the revelers

The first event in nearly a week of CayMAS celebration was Soca on the Beach on 29 June, and next came 'Blossom' at the National Gallery on 30 June, and then there was great music at the Sundown event until the early hours of the morning. Things really got going with the Happy Parrot Block Party at Coral Beach on Friday night, and that was also the day of Duck Work pool party. CayMAS finished in fine style on July 4 with Paintopia Jouvert

Cayman Islands National Robotics Team 2022 announced

Nine Cayman Islands' high school students will head to Geneva, Switzerland in October to compete against robotics teams from 180 countries in the FIRST Global Challenge.

Announced this week, the 2022 National Robotics team includes students from five high schools in the Cayman Islands: Maxwell Clarke, Alexander Walters and Kyah Morris (Cayman International School), Adi Binoy (Cayman Prep & High School), Marissa Wright and Teejhan Hansraj (John Gray High School), Diamond White and Michael Marzouca (St Ignatius Catholic School) and Drew Plania (Triple C).

All students who participated in the FIRST Tech Challenge held at Camana Bay in March were eligible for selection to the national team. Team members who demonstrated outstanding technical and critical thinking skills, combined with good communication and collaboration, were nominated by their schools for interview by a panel of sponsors and robotics team coaches. The final selection considered the need for complimentary abilities on the team as well as a strong interest in STEM and robotics.

"Selection to the national team requires more than just proficiency in STEM," said Glenda McTaggart, Dart's senior manager education programmes who coordinates the team's entry into the competition as part of Minds Inspired. "As part of the competition, teams are required to take on marketing and promotion as well as fundraising to help support teams from countries who would not otherwise be able to participate."

Cayman's national robotics team in 2019 raised $800 for teams from Djibouti and South Sudan who they had the opportunity to meet at the competition in Dubai, while the 2018 team found themselves on Mexican national television.

"Participating in FIRST Global Challenge gives students exposure to cultural experiences in the host country as well as meeting kids their age from other nations," said McTaggart. "FIRST Global also looks great on a resume, especially for those that want to study robotics at university."

Carbon Capture

For the 2022 national team, it will be their first time representing Cayman on a global stage. Guided by coaches Jeff Szeryk (Cayman International School) and Desmond White (John Gray High School), the team will spend their summer planning their strategy and building a robot capable of completing the tasks required of this year's FIRST Global Challenge.

This year's theme is Carbon Capture, challenging teams to reimagine the future of earth's climate. FIRST Global aims to stimulate new ideas that can help solve the world's problems through innovation and technology. Rising levels of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere are contributing to global warming and climate change. Carbon capture is the process of removing or preventing carbon dioxide entering the atmosphere, either by augmenting natural processes or creating new industrial solutions.

Sponsors of the Cayman National Robotics Team are all involved in STEM and sustainability in their individual industries. The programme's five initial sponsors at Dart, Health City Cayman Islands, Caribbean Utility Company, Digicel and Aureum Re are joined this year by KPMG.

Further details on the FIRST Global Challenge, which takes place in Geneva from 13 to 16 October 2022, will be announced in the coming weeks.

Three year broadband dispute resolved

Since 2019, telecoms service providers Flow and C3 have been involved in a dispute over infrastructure sharing, but those issues have now been resolved after arbitration proceedings took place, mediated by ICT regulator, OfReg. The findings were for and against both parties with regard to a long line of issues.

The problems initially were brought to light when C3 submitted an initial Dispute Determination Request to OfReg in June 2019 regarding several issues it was experiencing obtaining infrastructure sharing services with Flow. As the operator of the Maya-1 subsea cable, Flow is legally obliged within the terms of its licence to provide shared infrastructure access services to other licenced broadband services providers in the Cayman Islands.

OfReg then conducted an extensive investigation and consultation process with both companies to establish the facts of the dispute. The alleged issues ranged from slow or uncompleted work, appropriate pricing for access, to technical issues on sub-duct sizes and access to install equipment at the MAYA-1 cable landing station.

List of issues

OfReg has since made a number of determinations on the various issues, creating the opportunity for both companies to resolve their issues. The issues were broken down as follows:

Issue 1: Whether Flow responded in a timely manner, applied appropriate prices and acted reasonably in responding to C3's request to share certain underground duct infrastructure along Shamrock Road between Spotts Dock to High Rock Road.

OfReg determined, despite delays by both parties, Flow responded to the requests for quotes within a reasonable timeframe, however they did not provide the duct clearance and make-ready in a reasonable time (the duct clearance is still not completed). They also found that the mark-up on base prices Flow charged for make-ready works should be corrected to a lower amount determined by OfReg and C3 reimbursed for the difference, and also found that Flow, having stopped works in late 2019, was not justified in doing so and should complete the works as contracted.

Issue 2: Whether Flow had approved C3's use of a certain size sub-duct as installed in Flow's infrastructure and whether that installation should be considered a material contract breach by C3. They also had to investigate whether Flow's prices for duct access were appropriate and whether Flow should compensate C3 for any unused sub-duct and associated fibre cable C3 installed.

OfReg determined C3 did not have Flow's permission to use the 1.5" sub-duct and was in breach of the contract, although this breach was not a material breach (which would lead to a complete termination of the contract). They also found the rates proposed by Flow for 1" and 2" sub-duct were not reasonable and Flow should amend its pricing to the new lower pricing as determined by OfReg. C3 should either remove the 1.5" sub-duct or agree to pay Flow for that subduct at the 2" rates as determined by OfReg. In addition, C3 did not have Flow's permission to use the 1.5" sub-duct, so Flow did not have to compensate C3 for any unused 1.5" sub-duct and associated cable.

Issue 3: Whether Flow had acted reasonably by denying C3 permission to access and co-locate inside the Maya-1 submarine cable landing station. OfReg determined that Flow was not justified in its reasons for saying there was insufficient space within the CLS and must provide C3 with space within the CLS to mount the C3 equipment specified.

Issue 4: Whether Flow had legal basis to refuse C3 access to part of duct from Maya-1 to Health City where access was not feasible due to lack of capacity. OfReg determined Flow was justified in its rejection of C3's alternative solution.

Issue 5: Whether Flow should revise the various duct survey estimates to ensure that they meet the cost orientation and transparency requirements of the Interconnection and Infrastructure Sharing Regulations.

OfReg determined that the base prices charged by Flow were acceptable, but the loading factor applied was not in compliance with the regulations, therefore Flow should correct the loading factors to a lower amount determined by OfReg and reimburse C3 for the difference.

Executive Director for Information Communication and Technology at OfReg, Sonji Myles, said: "Two of OfReg's principal functions in the ICT sector are to promote and maintain an efficient, economic and harmonised utilisation of our ICT infrastructure, and to resolve disputes on the sharing of ICT infrastructure between service or network providers.

In doing so, we ensure a level playing field for licensees, protect the interests of the public and promote competition and choice for consumers. In this case, intervention was required to resolve a number of issues that we are satisfied now means both licensees are compliant with the terms of their licenses and can equally provide consumers with more choice and better services in the future."

Cayman to Establish Agricultural Trade with Honduras

► Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Jay Ebanks and Jose Lanza, President of Chamber of Commerce and Industries of Atlántida.

The Cayman Islands Government, through the Ministry of Agriculture, is moving forward to establish direct agricultural trade link with Honduras in an effort to strengthen the Islands' food and nutrition security.

This follows an exploratory mission to Honduras last week led by the Minister of Agriculture Hon. Jay Ebanks, Chief Officer Eric Bush, other representatives of the Government as well as members of the private sector.

During the visit, the team met with Bader Dip, Mayor of La Cieba and his Council to discuss trade with the Cayman Islands. Discussions were also held with representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and Industries of Atlántida as well as various cross industry business executives.

In commenting on the visit to Honduras, Minister Ebanks stated that it was a fruitful scoping mission to establish trade connections between the two countries. "We largely depend on the United States for our fruits, produce and other goods. With the increasing cost of living, the Government is committed to exploring various avenues to lessen the burden for the people of the Cayman Islands," he stated.

He further said, "We are looking to establish and promote a direct shipping route between the Cayman and Honduras later this year. In an effort to diversify our food sources in line with our food and nutrition security policy, Honduras is one of the targeted countries due to proximity and our strong cultural ties. They can provide agricultural produce and other value added products that are fresh, low cost, nutritious and high quality. We have a direct air route with them so the next logical step is to establish a shipping route between the countries".

Chief Officer Eric Bush noted that expanding intra-regional trade is critical to Cayman's food security and economic stability. "The Ministry will be working closely with the private sector to ascertain the needs of the Islands and to assist and support the logistics to make the trade bridge as smooth and effortless as possible," he emphasised.

While in Honduras, the delegation also attended a Chamber of Commerce expo in La Ceiba, toured several dairy farms, meat packing plants, an aggregate plant in San Pedro Sula and the Port of Cortes. They also visited the Port of Cabotaje in La Ceiba.

Earlier in May, the Ministry of Agriculture approved a broadened list of agricultural produce that can be imported to the Cayman Islands under a new import export arrangement with Jamaica.

The produce added to the list are plantain, breadfruit, soursop as well as blanched and frozen ackees.

Man Charged with 5 Offenses in Relation to Domestic Incidents

A man, age 29 of George Town, has been arrested and charged with three counts of Assault ABH and one count of Damage to Property, in relation to a series of domestic incidents which took place between 6 May and 16 June.

He has also been charged with Breach of a Protection Order, contrary to section 22(1) of the Protection from Domestic Violence Act, in relation to the incidents.

"Protection orders are an important tool for addressing incidents of domestic violence," says Superintendent Peter Lansdown. "Having such orders in place provides another avenue for arresting and charging perpetrators who breach them, thus helping safeguard victims. This case is one recent example where the breach of a protection order has led to additional charges."

The man appeared in court on 1 July.

RCIPS Investigate Murder in Bodden Town

Government gives residential customers electricity cost relief

The Cayman Islands Government is offering a fuel cost credit to residents across all three islands to help alleviate the price of electricity this summer.

In anticipation of the sharp increases in electricity costs due to rising global fuel prices, in May the Cayman Islands Government approached Caribbean Utilities Company (CUC) to identify ways to provide meaningful assistance to residential customers. Since then, Government has been in discussions with CUC and Cayman Brac Power and Light (CBPL) to find ways to help residents to save on their electricity bills.

“Like CUC and CBPL, Government has been monitoring the fuel market and anticipated significant fuel price increases,” said Premier Hon. G. Wayne Panton. “In the past year external factors like the war in Ukraine and supply chain shortages have made everything more expensive. The result is volatility in the commodity prices and an increase in the price of oil, diesel, gasoline which has resulted in an increase in the cost of electricity.”

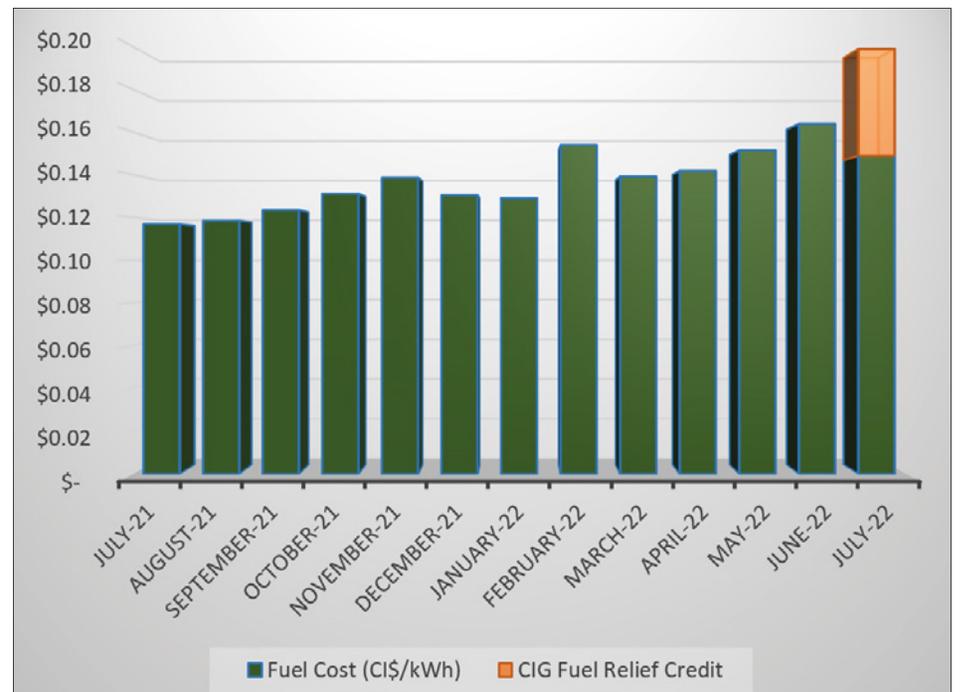

“The temporary Government assistance will be in the form of credit applied to help contain eligible customers’ fuel cost to an effective rate of $0.15 per kilowatt hour (kWh) regardless of how high the price of fuel gets. This assistance provides cost relief and certainty to eligible customers during the three hottest months of the year,” he said.

CUC said that an increase will be reflected in July fuel costs, which will be billed in August. Those bills will reflect a fuel charge of CI 20-cents per kWh, which is 4-cents higher than last month. The higher costs kicked in today, 1 July.

The Government assistance programme will offer a fuel cost credit for residential customers who have monthly consumption between 101 kWh and 2,000 kWh. No matter how much higher the fuel costs go above $0.15/kWh this summer, Government will absorb the difference. For eligible households, electricity customers can expect to see the Government assistance credit of up to $100 off their bill depending on their consumption. Residential customers with usage greater than 2,000 kWh per month and lower than 101 kWh will not qualify for the programme.

President and CEO of CUC, Mr. Richard Hew, said, “CUC welcomes this arrangement, which has been put in place by the Government of the Cayman Islands. High fuel prices are impacting energy consumers globally and it is beyond the control of CUC, Government or customers. This action by the Government will bring needed relief to those persons who qualify for this programme.”

The Government assistance credit will automatically be added to the bill through the CUC and CBPL billing systems. The savings will vary by consumption, tion, but it will assist approximately 80 per cent of CUC’s residential customers on Grand Cayman and almost 90 per cent of all residential customers in the Sister Islands with a lower utility bill for hottest three months of summer.

“I encourage all residential consumers to check your electricity bills and if you typically consume more than 2,000 kWh per month, this is your chance to make changes now, and start lowering your monthly consumption so that you too come in under 2,000 kWh and benefit from the savings,” said Mr. Panton.

“As I said from the floor of Parliament a few weeks ago, we are living through challenging circumstances. There is uncertainty all around us. We are a people-driven Government and well positioned to help our people navigate the tough times ahead. We are doing our best to be prepared to handle the turbulence that might lie ahead, whether that comes from an extreme weather event like a hurricane, or comes from global economic forces like spiking fuel prices, rising inflation and climbing interest rates,” he said.

The credit from the programme applies to energy consumed in July, August and September and billed in August, September and October. Eligible pre-pay customers will receive a credit at the beginning of the following month.

2nd annual Pride parade planned for July

By Lindsey Turnbull

Cayman's LGBTQ community is gearing up for the second annual Pride parade, following on from last year's successful event, with a bigger and better event that will be an entertaining occasion with something for everyone.

The parade begins from Public Beach on West Bay Road at 5pm on Saturday 30th July and will make its way to the Festival Green in Camana Bay, where food, drinks and entertainment will be available through the evening and into the night.

This year's event will have an international feel, with eventgoers flying in from the United States, from places such as Miami, Atlanta and New York, visitors keen to celebrate Pride in an inclusive and safe, beautiful environment such as Cayman.

"There are no restrictions from the Ministry as far as Covid restrictions, and kids are allowed to participate this year, however the PDA rule is still in place this year," organiser Noel Cayasso-Smith, the President of Cayman LGBTQ Foundation, said. "Parents were concerned about this in particular because they did not take their kids to Batabano because of the behaviour. We don't mind people walking along holding hands, but it has to be respectful."

He said that the organisers were also asking that people dress appropriately for the event because if they are not, they will be turned away and asked to change. No alcohol will be permitted during the parade, so organisers will be giving out soft beverages to participants during the walk.

Mr Cayasso-Smith said they were particularly grateful to the number of organisations that were coming forward this year with sponsorship, a great many more than last year when the inaugural event took place when people were keen to see how it went before committing support. The success of the first year's parade has clearly galvanised companies and businesses into supporting this year's event.

"It's great to see their interest," he confirmed. "We are particularly grateful to Dart for letting us use their Festival Green for after the parade."

The Cayman LGBTQ Foundation is currently reaching out to restaurants and bars to have some events in the lead up to the parade, whereby Pride colours are displayed and welcome drinks are provided, in a bid to raise awareness for the Pride parade.

The event itself will see two drag artists from New York perform on stage at the Festival Green, a DJ coming in from Miami, along with local DJs and other local talent.

"The planning has been great, although we are struggling for volunteers on the day itself because I think they want to enjoy themselves!" Mr Cayasso-Smith said.

There are three packages that can be bought which allows different types of entry. The VIP package is CI$550 and which provides a highball table for five people at the evening event down by the stage. VIPS also get a bottle of high premium rum, chasers, their own personal wait staff, a free t-shirt, entry to the Green, entry to the parade, a goodie bag and a water bottle, along with 30 free drinks tickets. There are only 15 tables available at the time.

The standard package is CI$100 and allows entry to the parade, a goodie bag, and access to the Green. The final package is CI$35 if you just want to have access to the Festival Green and participate and see the show. This package includes five food and drink tickets to be used at the Festival Green on the night of the event.

On the Friday (29th July) before the parade there will be a pre-party at The Bevy (the old Treasure Island complex) from 7pm to midnight and this will be where people can collect their t-shirts and wristbands, and sign the terms and conditions for participation.

People can also attend a pre-event on 23 July on Seven Mile Beach between 1 and 6pm where they will be raising the Pride flag to kick start the celebrations. They are hoping that businesses around the island will also raise their Pride flag that day.

Proceeds from Pride will go to the creation of a shelter for Cayman's LGBTQ community.

"Because of the success of Pride last year, a lot of people are getting the confidence to come out and now they are facing a lot more stigma and discrimination from families and friends. We need the shelter so we can support them on their journey," Mr Cayasso-Smith stated. "That is my goal this year."

Coach Gillie retires from the Department of Sports

Calls Time on Noteworthy Sporting Career

The last of his generation of trainers, Coach Ernie 'Gillie' Edison Seymour, GGM has retired from the Department of Sports (DOS) following an impressive 26-year tenure.

The Gold Medal of Merit and Pioneer of Sports recipient stepped down recently, leaving behind a strong record of training youth and senior football teams to league and divisional success.

Director of Sports, Kurt Hyde said: "Coach Gillie is a one-of-a kind coach. He added a level of depth and expertise to his job that will be hard to match."

"On behalf of the Department of Sports and the Ministry of Youth & Sports, we appreciate his contributions to the development of sports on a district and national level, and wish him every success in his retirement."

After a quarter century of training and conditioning players, Coach Gillie said: "I leave a career I've enjoyed having achieved much more than I'd ever dreamed possible."

"I have so many highlights to look back on and players that I am honoured to have helped reach their full potential on and off the pitch."

Coach Gillie was selected for the national team at just 17 years old, and spent the succeeding 15 years honing his skills, playing against international teams like Dominique, Antigua and Guadeloupe. The centre forward got his first break in sports management when he was handpicked by the former Technical Director, Winston Chung. As Assistant Coach, Coach Gillie was tasked with training and conditioning his former national side teammates.

As a founder of Cayman Athletic Sports Club (CASC) (2006), the 65-year-old, is still a dynamic force in local club football and plans to continue coaching. The Head Coach/Technical Director built a club that has produced an U15 team that went undefeated for three seasons, guided CASC's teams to earn awards in all the youth divisions, as well as winning the Men's FA Cup and Charity Shield. Coach Gillie explains that the club's achievements always tied in with his work with the Department of Sports as it was instrumental in helping support the local league and divisional structure that underpins football to this day.

Coach Gillie uses the four pillars of football coaching to enhance player development, which are the physical, technical, tactical and psychological. He believes this method has produced the numerous accomplishments his players have earned, including national side caps, MVP and top goal scorer awards.

Since retiring, Coach Gillie continues to manage CASC's youth and senior teams, as well as working with Red Bay Primary School like he previously did with George Town Primary School. On the sidelines for the last 40 years, he continues to volunteer up to five times a week, field marking for internationals and league matches.

Off the pitch, Coach Gillie enjoys tending to his flowers and fruit trees and is currently clearing a hot pepper patch in his yard. He has also been a keen crabber since childhood, and likes hunting for large cliff crabs in North Side or Breakers when they are in season.

In summing up the retiree's impact, Assistant Director of Sports, Flynn Bush said: "Coach Gillie's most lasting legacy, and one which the entire Department can take pride in, is the difference he made to the lives of some of his less advantaged players."

"The structure, sense of discipline and example he instilled in them as their coach has helped many young boys develop their characters and work ethic, putting them onto a trajectory for success as men in later life," he explained.

Sargassum solution still unsolved

Hurricanes used to be the main natural phenomenon in the Caribbean feared by residents at this time of year but sargassum is becoming a problem that is causing immense damage ecologically and financially.

The Cayman Islands has suffered the effects of sargassum in recent years and throughout the region entrepreneurs, scientists and biologists are trying to figure out how to tackle the smelly, rotting seaweed which is impacting the already badly hit tourism and fishing industries. Some of Jamaica's finest beaches - particularly Hellshire Beach - are affected by it, as a most countries in the region.

For the past 11 years, the Caribbean has experienced masses of the floating brown algae that often end up inundating beaches. Although small quantities usually begin arriving from March, the large influxes usually start in May and end in November.

2018 was an exceptional year when there was a record 20 million metric tons of sargassum throughout the Caribbean.

Sargassum seaweed has been called "the golden floating rainforest of the sea" because it is inhabited by numerous marine animals, some of which are found nowhere else. Many other species feed and hide from predators under the mats of floating seaweed. Fishers even report that they are able to catch large fish when the sargassum is in the sea. However, when the massive blooms wash up on to beaches and into shallow near-shore waters, it causes grave problems.

Sargassum seaweed, if left in huge piles on a beach or in the water near the beach begins to rot. The rotting weed also produces hydrogen sulphide, a toxic gas that smells like rotten eggs. The rotting seaweed also stains the seawater brown. Fish and invertebrates in the water die due to low oxygen and the presence of the hydrogen sulphide.

Sargassum also helps to erode beaches as the waves that pound the shore are made heavier by the floating sargassum thus removing sand, which is washed offshore. In addition to making the beach unpleasant and unusable, and killing especially small fish, fishers report entangling of their nets and engines by the seaweed mats resulting in engines overheating and nets becoming full of seaweed, rather than fish, causing them to spend hours cleaning their gear.

Since the start of the sargassum

► Jamaica, like many in the region, has a sargassum problem sum invasion, many uses have been identified, and scientists from Barbados have produced a 172-page Sargassum Uses Guide. The guide documents sargassum use in construction - to make bricks - and to manufacture fertiliser and bio-stimulants, in biogas production, pharmaceuticals and cosmetics, to make bioplastics, paper, plant-based leather and rubber, in water purification, to make lubricants, and in environmental restoration. Companies like Algas Organics, based in St Lucia, and others have established factories that produce fertiliser from sargassum. Sargassum naturally contains high levels of arsenic, but these companies have developed technology to remove the arsenic so that their product is safe for use on food crops. However, use of the unprocessed sargassum can transfer unacceptable levels of arsenic to foods.

► Shovelling sargassum is a slow and ineffective solution

The increase in sargassum is connected to climate change, increase in chemical and toxic waste in seas. In the meantime, unfortunately, the sargassum conundrum looks likely to increase.

Trinidad's gun violence is scary

► Trinidad's police resources are stretched to the limit

Trinidad's crime rate has become so bad that its government is considering taking drastic measures to find a solution to the use of firearms.

Trinidad & Tobago Prime Minister Dr Keith Rowley is so concerned with the crime situation he said the time has come to declare violence a public health emergency.

Rowley said: "Every single day there is a spate of violent crime largely driven by, but not only driven by firearms, and defying logic ... It is something we are going to focus on more.

"I think in Trinidad and Tobago the time has come for us to declare violence as a public health emergency and we need to find solutions to treating with violence in our population."

He said the government had been considering the move prior to the COVID-19 outbreak in 2020. He could not immediately provide a timeline or details on the proposed measure.

"I just raised it as a matter that we have to focus on, it's a specialist area, and it involves the entire national community seeing it that way. I don't think we are ready for the timeline yet," Rowley added.

A total of 13 killings happened on Friday and Saturday, four of which were said to be police-involved shootings, saw law enforcement officials having to work late into the night on Saturday as multiple investigations got underway. At least 12 of the killings were gun-related.

American Airlines to return to Cuba

► American Airlines wants to return to Cuban cities

American Airlines, the biggest flier from Miami International Airport, has asked the US Department of Transportation for clearance to resume flights to five destinations in Cuba, outside Havana where it already flies six daily flights from Miami.

The move could broadly open commercial air travel to the island, after strict limitations had been imposed in December 2019 by the former Trump administration to squash Cuban tourism. The Biden administration lifted those limits on June 2.

If federal permission is granted, American will start flight service in November between Miami and Santa Clara, Holguín, Matanzas/Varadero, Camagüey, and Santiago de Cuba.
