UNLOCKING HUMAN POTENTIAL – BASIL SPRINGER COLUMN

► Dr. Basil Springer

“For He will command His angels concerning you to guard you in all your ways.” – Psalm 91:11

Tuesday, July 5, 2022 marks the 80th anniversary of the birth of my colleague and friend the late Professor the Honourable Oliver Headley who passed away over 20 years ago.

We worked on many solar distillation, solar drying and photovoltaic projects from 1969 until the week before his passing. If he were here today to observe the achievements in and potential for Caribbean renewable energy projects, he would be at his effervescent best.

Renewable energy sources include solar, wind, biomass, ocean, geothermal and hydro, and significant progress is continually being made on each front as we face the climate change challenge.

In particular, he would be ecstatic in supporting the vision of the Barbados Prime Minister Mia Mottley to have each roof in Barbados covered with solar panels, which she articulated at the recently concluded Summit of the Americas.

On Wednesday, July 6, 2022 I celebrate my 81st birthday, deo volente, and the 29th anniversary of my weekly column.

Given the relatively rapid pace at which my contemporaries are leaving this Earth (seven in the last two months), I resolved this week to follow the examples of my late mother, Rita Springer SCM, and my late wife Kean Springer to embark on writing projects before time runs out.

In 2001, at the age of 87, Mummy, who was affectionately known as “Rites” (pronounced REETS), completed a Travelogue of Memoirs.

- Renewables – Solar, wind, bio, ocean, geothermal, hydro
- A New Energy Field – Ishtara Centre, Dr. Harry Ramnarine
- Traveling refreshes the mind – Fishing boat to airlines
- COVID-19 Travel – Vaccination, PCR tests and travel passes
- A new lease on life – Wheelchair travel

Kean, on the other hand, weaved her background of music and literature to create a book, published in 2008, in celebration of the life and times of my uncle, the Right Excellent Sir Hugh Springer.

My effort will be focused on chronological refection and a legacy of “Key Takeaways”.

One solution for those concerned about the future of our lives is offered by Dr. Harry Ramnarine, of the Ishtara Centre in Trinidad, who encourages his audiences to “tune into a new energy field” in search of an extended quality of life.

I have travelled by schooner, fishing boat, banana boat and airplane since I was a boy scout in the 1950s; then for study, on the job, family vacations and international assignments. Travelling refreshes the mind.

I have flown in two seaters to airbuses and my body has taken the stress of traveling for granted over the years. Early flights, late flights, waiting for connections, dashing through airports, just reaching the gate before the door closes.

Fortunately, only once did I miss a flight when I fell asleep in the departure lounge and woke up to be told that my flight had just departed. Those familiar with my soporific interludes surely would expect these occasions to be more frequent.

The past few years have been remarkable, consisting of COVID-19, stay-at-home advisories, a new lifestyle, airport closures, and pent up demand for travel. Also, vaccination, hand sanitization, mask wearing, and social distancing. Travel has now resumed with a difference – concierge services, travel passes and PCR tests. It is not as easy as before, how will the body react?

In early February this year I traveled to visit family in Dallas with a change of plane in Houston. I made it to the gate with one minute to spare and the body did not respond very well. There must be a better way.

Well, I was advised to seek wheelchair assistance on these trips. Who me, not me ... that is for old people! Then I realized that I have now assumed that status.

Last week I was on a repeated family visit. My wheelchair request was confirmed. It was a dream of an experience and there was a renewed desire to travel and learn.

Let us continue to unlock that human potential as we travel along the discovery spectrum – data, information, knowledge, understanding, insight and wisdom – guided by the angels in heaven, and inspired by the angels who have crossed our paths while unaware.

Cayman to become, “Global Centre of excellence and innovation” Says Minister

By Christopher Tobutt

Cayman should use its foundation of financial services and tourism to become a ‘global centre of excellence and innovation,’ Minister of financial services and innovation. Hon. Andre Ebanks shared the Premier’s vision of the keys to a prosperous, sustainable future said during keynote address at the Chamber of Commerce’ Parliamentary Luncheon. Standing in for Premier Hon. Wayne Panton, who was in isolation from Covid 19, Minister Ebanks said that Cayman needs to “Grab with both hands,” Many new opportunities which are, “Starting us in the face.” But taking advantage of those opportunities would also mean Cayman needed to prepare its people, “for the digital machine economy that is coming.”

“The vision of what we are going for is to be renowned as one of the most sustainable countries in the world. Peaceful, prosperous where everyone can thrive and live their best,” he said. “We can do it by taking the opportunity and the chance to layer on top of our world class regulatory and legal framework the new opportunities that are staring us in the face in terms of ESG tech and healthcare. By using our accounting and risk and asset management frameworks we have the opportunity to leapfrog the competition and become that global center of excellence, creating new jobs, good jobs, and sometimes borderless jobs in a digital economy,” Minister Ebanks continued.

New tech such as artificial intelligence could also help meet the demands of new customer-centered healthcare demands, as well as an aging demographic, Minister Ebanks said as he announced a national effort to balance treatment with a greater emphasis on wellness, prevention and screening, and an independent institute of public health set for early 2024.

“We want to create an ecosystem of excellence that allows investors of capital, startups, developers, and growth companies to innovate and grow and thrive in Cayman. It’s important because its happening all around us. We can sit around and let it go past us, or we can grab it with both hands,” he said.

The minister painted a picture of an economy, moving into the future by connecting up vital aspects, each one of which would be needed to turn it from a dream into a reality. “How many of you have heard of the Metaverse? This isn’t just about video games. Its actually about high end jobs we can get Caymanians into if we can build an education pathway to it. What tech does is leapfrog us into industries we didn’t have a shot in, and so this is where film comes in. We can bring Caymanians in, and that is part of the logic behind that new LAX group - to build that bridge to the West Coast to bring in that sort of Hollywood talent. That’s how we’re going to do it – we have to build these pathways and we have to be able to prepare our people for the digital machine economy that is coming.”

Minister Ebanks said that the government was presently completing the Digital ID program, “Which is data that the government already holds on you, but is unified in one instrument. It will make life easier for you in terms of passing your KYC documentation between banks to make the main passport renewal process easier for you.”

US$399 GCM to LAX round trip

Anyone looking to take a trip to the west coast of the United States is encouraged to book Cayman Airways’ new non-stop service right away, as seats, at their introductory airfare of just US$399 (including taxes), are likely to go quickly.

Restrictions do apply, however. Tickets must be issued within one day of booking or by 8 August, 2022, whichever is earlier. All segments must be confirmed. Fares are non-refundable and non-transferable. Seats are limited for this fare and may not be available on every flight. Change fee is US$150 plus any fare difference. In case of no show, ticket has no value.

The new nonstop west coast service will operate weekly from Grand Cayman, starting on Saturday 5 November and returns from Los Angeles on Sundays. Inbound flight time is just five and a half hours.

Tourism and Transport Minister Kenneth Bryan said since this new route to Los Angeles was announced, there had been tremendous interest, particularly by the tourism and business communities.

“I am confident that both the service and the competitive fares will be well received and I encourage travellers to book early to ensure availability,” he said.

As well as playing an import role in stimulating stayover visitation from the western corridor of the United States, it is anticipated that the new route will also enhance air connectivity for people travelling to and from South East Asia, making the Cayman Islands more accessible to other markets.

“It has been a long-time goal to connect the Cayman Islands with our friends on the West Coast, and now that we are able to offer long-haul flights via Cayman Airways, I am looking forward to showcasing all that our islands have to offer with a whole new audience,” the Minister said.

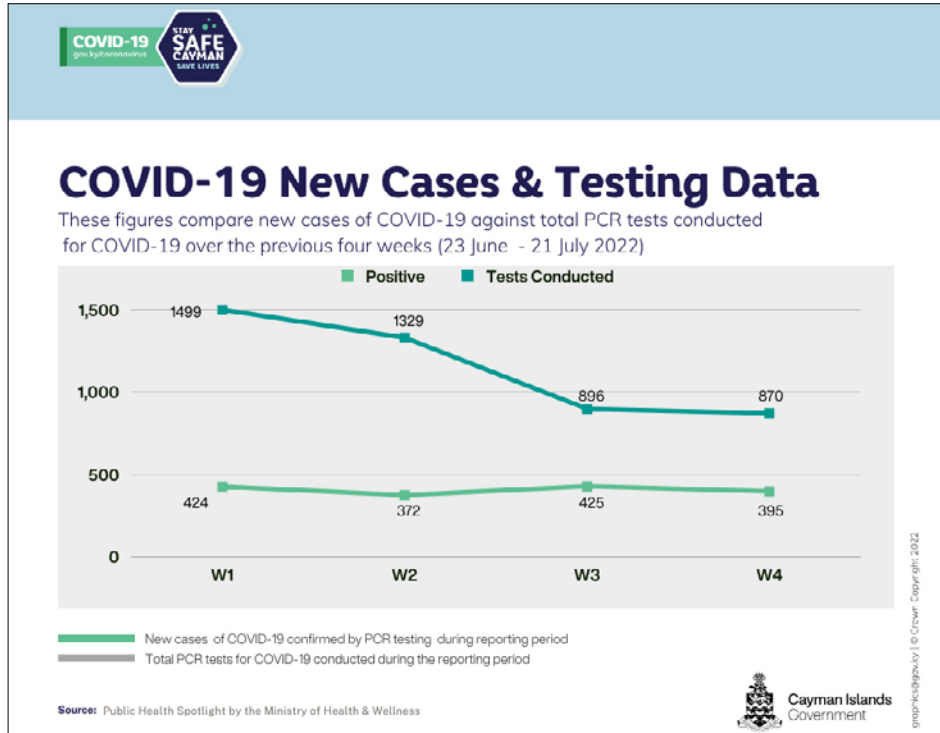

Cayman Airways President and CEO, Fabian Whorms said: “Utilising our new fleet of state-of-the-art Boeing 737-8 aircraft with industry leading comfort, this service significantly reduces travel time from western U.S. cities and allows travellers to spend less time in transit and more time making memories in Cayman,”

The Cayman Airways Los Angeles route will operate year-round once-weekly service from GCM to LAX on Saturdays and returning from LAX to GCM on Sundays. # Monkeypox

Overview

As the monkeypox outbreak continues, there are varying trends around the world. Some countries report a decline in cases whilst in other countries cases are increasing. In total five monkeypox deaths have been reported so far, all of which were in Africa. In the previous reporting week, there have been six new countries to report their first case of monkeypox.

The most affected region is the European Region, which reported a total of 9,276 laboratory confirmed cases (data as of 20th June). Cases in the European Region have most often been males aged 31-40 years old.

WHO will convene a second meeting this week to review whether the monkeypox outbreak constitutes a Public Health Emergency of International Concern (PHEIC).

Cayman Islands

No monkeypox cases have been detected in Cayman Islands, although cases has been reported in the Caribbean region.

The Cayman Islands has the capacity to diagnose monkeypox at the Cayman Molecular laboratory.

Long COVID

There are individuals who following a COVID-19 infection experience persistent symptoms or effects from their infection. Common symptoms include fatigue, muscle pain and difficulty breathing as well as others effects including problems with memory and concentration ('brain fog') or joint pain. There is no universally agreed definition of Long Covid, however the World Health Organization define it as symptoms that are present from the onset of COVID-19 and still present at least 3 months post infection which are not explained by an alternative diagnosis. Other countries have also adopted the 3-month threshold to diagnose Long Covid in an individual.

WHO estimates that 10%-20% of COVID-19 cases experience either mid or long-term effects following a COVID-19 infection. WHO reports that current evidence does not suggest that having a more severe initial COVID-19 infection is associated with a higher likelihood of experiencing Long Covid.

For those with Long Covid, holistic care is recommended, including rehabilitation.

Enterprise Cayman Launches Business Incubator Programme

“Launch Labs” Incubator Programme Now Open for Submissions

Enterprise Cayman, a non-profit workforce development initiative by Cayman Enterprise City (CEC) in partnership with Cayman Islands’ special economic zone companies (SEZCs) has initiated a new incubator programme designed to prepare projects for the crucial step of pitching to, and ultimately taking on, initial investors.

“Following two years of successful Business Design Competitions, we wanted to develop an intensive programme to help our community entrepreneurs with outstanding ideas and projects turn them into investment grade businesses,” explained Charlie Kirkconnell, Launch Labs Programme Advisor, CEO of CEC, and Director of Enterprise Cayman. “The demand for entrepreneurial support in Cayman is significant and the CEC special economic zones project, which is now home to almost 300 innovative businesses, together with a very robust and enthusiastic local support network is now in an excellent position to help qualified start-ups access angel investment through the SEZ and the local community.”

The “Launch Labs” incubator programme provides a springboard for seed and pre-seed start-ups who are ready to take their product or services to market and launch their new idea. “As start-ups mature and grow, they create long-lasting jobs for new graduates, experienced mid-career personnel, and veteran executives,” said Rodney Alison, Launch Labs Programme Advisor and Founder of Nurturely SEZC. “Incubator programmes like Launch Labs make a huge impact on business communities and help to drive economic growth.”

Through the Launch Labs programme, successful start-ups will unlock opportunities to develop, test, modify and promote their business innovations in collaboration with top executives and angel investors from CEC’s comprehensive ecosystem. After a decade of growth, CEC is now home to the largest innovation ecosystem in the region and acts as a nucleus for early-stage start-ups, growth stage start-ups, unicorns and big Tech firms to accelerate success.

“The Cayman Islands is an excellent place to launch global businesses,” said David Strucke, Launch Labs Programme Advisor and CEO/Founder at Datastreamer SEZC. “As a ‘neutral platform’ new companies can tap into investors from all over the world, they can be extremely competitive, and through the CEC special economic zones, entrepreneurs can access a wide variety of professionals who have a solid understanding of global business.”

During the programme participants will have access to the “Launch Labs Studios” co-working facilities at CEC which include shared kitchens, co-work office space in central George Town, and access to professional meeting rooms. “Through the Launch Labs Studios, participants will be able to join a vibrant community of like-minded entrepreneurs, access critical networking opportunities, and utilise a professional business environment while building their business. The Enterprise Cayman team will also provide support by making introductions to strategic industry partners. This is invaluable for new start-ups,” said Kirkconnell.

The incubator programme runs for 12 weeks and is open to residents of the Cayman Islands over 18 years. The programme has been fully funded by CEC and is free for all entrants. Ten successful Launch Labs projects will be selected in September and required to attend 24 strategically designed courses to successfully complete the programme. Teams will then be tasked with developing their projects based on session instructions and guidance each week. Each team will be allocated a mentor that will help them develop their project and advise on the information taught during each session. At the conclusion of the programme, participants will have the opportunity to pitch their projects to a group of select angel investors.

“Launch Labs is helping to strengthen Cayman’s innovative ecosystem,” said Polly Pickering, Launch Labs Programme Advisor and Managing Director of eShore. “The incubator programme sets out to foster knowledge-sharing amongst professionals and help start-ups and emerging companies get innovative. We’re looking forward to working with the programme finalists and seeing how projects evolve.”

Applications are now being accepted for the 2022 Enterprise Cayman Launch Labs Incubator. The deadline to apply is 23 August 2022 and application forms and official rules can be found online at www.enterprisecayman.ky. # Festival to focus on coral loss

The Department of Environment's Stony Coral Tissue Loss Disease (SCTLD) Response Team is holding Cayman's first ever Coral Fest on Wednesday, 10 August from 5:30 - 7:30pm in the Governor's Ballroom A at the Westin Hotel. This free-to-attend event aims to help people better understand the Caribbean and Western Atlantic UKOTs coral ecosystems and is co-hosted along with the UK-based Joint Nature Conservation Committee (JNCC) and other UK Overseas Territories and is funded by the UK's Conflict, Stability and Security Fund.

Coral Fest will explore coral biology, ecology, and threats, while also celebrating the important ecological services corals provide. The event will run alongside a three-day workshop of members from the UKOT working group on coral conservation, including the DoE. The group collaborates across the UKOTs in the Caribbean and Western Atlantic and with regional experts to share knowledge and expertise to support coral reefs. DoE are partnering with organisations across the Islands for the event, to offer a wide range of coral-themed booths, games and raffle prizes.

An important focus of the festival is the destructive threat of SCTLD, an aggressive coral disease that has spread entirely around Grand Cayman. SCTLD was first discovered in Florida in 2014 but made its way to many coral ecosystems throughout the northern Caribbean, including five of the six UKOTs in attendance.

In June of 2020, the first report of SCTLD on the North Side of Grand Cayman emerged and began the rapid march of the disease around the reefs of Grand Cayman. To address the issue, the Department of Environment formed a SCTLD Response Team made up of 10 individuals, and commissioned the East End SCTLD Community Response Team, including scientists, boat operators and experienced divers, with the sole purpose of monitoring and mitigating the impact of SCTLD in the Cayman Islands. Unfortunately, once SCTLD is found in an area, it spreads very quickly from coral to coral, infecting and killing many corals along its path, leaving a less diverse algae-covered reef in its wake.

Marine scientist and SCTLD Project Coordinator, Tammi Warrender, explained about antibiotic treatment: "We are treating dive and snorkel sites which have been identified as priority reefs in Grand Cayman, because they are high in coral cover and particularly important for tourism or recreation. The antibiotics cannot stop the progression of the disease as we cannot 'pre-treat' the corals. However, the ability to successfully treat the disease lesions when they appear is groundbreaking research and allows us to save individual corals with the hopes that they do not become repeatedly infected. At the same time, we are also collecting data to aid other researchers in developing new treatment methods and sending coral samples to specialists who are investigating the cause of SCTLD."

Ms Warrender said they were doing everything in their power to give reefs their best chance of survival, in particular advising the public on their role. Since little is still known about the disease and how it spreads so quickly, advisories have been distributed across the islands with guidelines for disinfecting dive and snorkel gear, and boat bilge water, to slow the spread in Grand Cayman and to prevent transferring the disease to the Sister Islands which are currently SCTLD-free.

Ms Warrender said: "Obviously there is a chance of natural spread but we have strong indications from here and other countries that the disease might be spread by people as well. All it may take is for one item of contaminated dive gear or one boat with infected bilge water to be taken to the Sister Islands and suddenly our safest corals face the devastation of SCTLD."

Help track Cayman's bats

Cayman's bats are a wonderful sight to behold in the early evening, flitting about in the sunset; however, more knowledge is needed as to their location and numbers. So, in order to help track Cayman's bat population, the Department of Environment are asking people to download their specially designed app that will make the process a great deal quicker, more accurate and more straightforward. In that way, the DoE can compile vital data on these fascinating animals.

If you are thinking about helping the DoE with counting Cayman's bat population, then there are a few techniques to be used to ensure a good tally is obtained. In order to report emergence counts from bat houses, it is best to start the survey 15 minutes before sunset takes place. Note your start time and, for a good tally, make sure the weather is relatively still and isn't raining or too windy. Start the tally when the first bat emerges. Try not to double count any bats that emerge and then go back into the house, as may be the case. Finish the survey when no new bats emerge or there is no visibility. Note the finish time and final bat count. And of course, you must leave the site safely.

Register for 'Bat Count Cayman' and join the DoE's Citizen Science Crew, by emailing DOE@gov.ky.

House of Parliament Celebrates Happy 50th

► Speaker MrRamon guestspeakers

► Plaque unveiling

by Bina Mani

The Cayman Islands House of Parliament celebrated the 50th anniversary of its building in grand style on Thursday, 21 July 2022 with an elaborate and distinguished programme. To befit the noteworthy occasion, the programme comprised a special lecture, music, dance, poetry, a comedic skit, free food and beverages.

For half a century, the iconic building has served as the People’s House where voters’ representatives have conducted the nation’s business, including making the laws that govern the people of the Cayman Islands and approving budgets. The building has therefore figured prominently in every significant development impacting the Cayman Islands and has been the backdrop for many historical milestones.

A fitting marker at the celebration was the unveiling of the 50th anniversary plaque by the House’s Presiding Officer - the Speaker Hon. McKeeva Bush; the Premier, Hon. G. Wayne Panton; the Deputy Speaker, Hon. Katherine Ebanks-Wilks and Clerk of Parliament, Mrs. Zena Mer-ren-Chin.

A commemorative booklet capturing the rich parliamentary history and prominence of the building to the Cayman Islands was also issued to those who attended the event. Additionally, a painting of the building characterised by the events that took place was created on the spot as part of the programme by famed local artist Mr. John Broad and presented to the Speaker at the close of the celebration.

For Parliamentarians, the celebrations began earlier in the afternoon inside the Parliament Chamber with a special erudite lecture on the “Separation of Powers – the Legislature, Executive and Judiciary” by eminent constitutional scholar Dr. the Hon. Lloyd Barnett from Jamaica and a presentation by local attorney Mr. Richard Barton who provided the Cayman Islands’ context on the subject.

This was followed by the celebratory programme outside emceed by Acting Deputy Governor, Hon. Gloria McField-Nixon, who welcome attendees and kept the proceedings lively.

The programme included prayer by Education, District Administration and Lands Minister Hon Juliana O'Connor-Connolly, the history of the House by the Premier, a memorial by the Speaker of the House, recognition of living former MPs by Tourism and Transport Minister Hon. Kenneth Bryan and a vote of thanks by the Deputy Speaker.

The entertainment programme was a heart-warming display of rich in local talent featuring the distinct steel pan cadences of Mr. Jimmeh La'Pierre; the National Anthem and a song by the Cayman National Choir directed by Ms Sue Horrocks and a melodious rendition of the National Song by Ms Diana DeMercado. There were evocative songs by a staff and parents' group from the Joanna Clarke Primary School, Mrs. Betty Ebanks and family and the Cayman Folk Singers, as well as delightful dances by the Dreamchasers and Sir John A. Cumber Primary School students.

Continuing, Ms Alanna Warrick-Smith gave an emotional recitation of a poem by local poet Mrs. Nasaria Suckoo-Chollette entitled 'Tell Me'. Inimitable local entertainer Mr. Matt Brown and friends brought good humour to the proceedings with a political satire in the Cayman Islands' "Rundown" fashion that was hugely appreciated by the audience.

Also, topping off the variety programme was a grand fireworks display. Finally, a live performance by Cayman Islands' landmark entertainer, Mr. Lammie Seymour closed out the programme.

State where he guided the Racers to four Ohio Valley Conference regular season titles as well as three appearances in the NCAA Tournament. LSU has advanced to the NCAA Tournament in three of the last four years (the 2020 tournament was cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic) and welcomes Murray State transfer KJ Williams who was named the Ohio Valley Conference Player of the Year last season.

Under the direction of head coach John Groce, Akron is 40-16 in league play over the last three years, owning the best winning percentage (.714) in the Mid-American Conference. Groce guided the Zips to a MAC Tournament title and 24-10 record last year, including their fifth NCAA Tournament appearance in school history, having a near upset bid to No. 4 seed UCLA, 57-53, fall short.

Excitement continues to build for Kansas State under first-year head coach Jerome Tang, who arrives on the scene after serving the past five seasons as associate head coach for national powerhouse Baylor. Tang played an instrumental role in building the Bears program into one of the nation’s top programs highlighted by the 2021 NCAA Championship and consecutive Big 12 regular-season titles in 2021 and 2022, while being ranked in the Associated Press top five each of the last three seasons.

Illinois State also begins a new chapter of basketball with Ryan Pedon being named the program’s 20th head coach this past March. Pedon spent the last five seasons at Ohio State with the Buckeyes compiling a 106-53 record with an NCAA tournament berth during each of his seasons in Columbus, with two trips to the NCAA second round.

Rhode Island also is opening a new era of basketball with the arrival of newly appointed head coach Archie Miller, who has a storied pedigree in the Atlantic 10 Conference, winning two league titles along with four NCAA Championship appearances in six seasons at Dayton. With a record of 206-121 over the course of 10 seasons as a head coach with the Flyers and Indiana, Miller has averaged more than 20 wins per year and has six postseason runs out of a possible nine seasons.

Entering his fourth season as head coach at Tulane, head coach Ron Hunter has the program headed in the right direction in the American Athletic Conference after the Green Wave enjoyed their best season since 2017-18 last year.

Western Kentucky is just one of 17 teams in the country – less than five percent of all Division I teams – to win at least 19 games in each of the last five seasons under coach Rick Stansbury. The Hilltoppers feature one of the nation’s top centers in Jamarion Sharp who led the NCAA in blocked shots at 4.62 per game last year, setting a school single-season record with 148 rejections. He shot 72.6% from the field and was selected as the Conference USA Defensive Player of the Year.

NCAA Champion, All-American, and Olympic Gold Medalist Steve Alford enters his fourth season as head coach at Nevada in 2022-23, and his 32nd season overall as a head coach, boasting a career record of 635-338 (.653). Nevada returns 7-foot starting center Will Baker, the team’s leading scorer (11.5 ppg) and rebounder (4.9) and sophomore starting guard Kenan Blackshear, who averaged 8.1 points and 2.7 assists.
