We know that our readers like to stay informed on local issues and events even when they are about to depart from the Cayman Islands, so the Caymanian Times is pleased to announce that it is now available at the Owen Roberts International Airport departure lounge free of charge for all departing passengers.

Passengers can catch up on all the latest news and features as they while away their time waiting for their plane to depart and can take the newspaper with them as they board for some entertainment and education as they fly.

We greatly appreciate each and every one of our readers and advertisers and the support they give us, so we are very happy to give something back and make the Caymanian Times free-of-charge to anyone who would like a copy at the departure lounge. Not only does it give passengers some much-needed entertainment during what is often a boring wait for departure, it also gives our advertisers some added valuable exposure because we may well reach an even wider audience at the airport with the availability of our free newspaper. We feel this yet another positive benefit of advertising in the Caymanian Times.

Please do pick up your copy when you fly, and enjoy a great read on us!

Mrs Sutherland has worked with the HSA as the Training and Development Manager for 3+ years and has over 8 years of management experience. She holds a Master of Business Administration, Master of Business Philosophy, a Postgraduate Certificate in Leadership and Management, a Higher Education Diploma in Nursing, and is currently pursuing her Doctorate in Business Administration.

In her new role, Mrs Sutherland will provide strategic direction for facilities and plant operations, security services, infrastructure development, environmental services, and biomedical engineering services.

Commenting on her new role, Mrs Sutherland said, "Our patients and service users deserve to be cared for

► Dr. Sharon Radcliffe, Director of Nursing

► Racquel Sutherland, Director of Support Services

in an environment that contributes to their wellness and offers peace of mind about the standard of care they receive. It is also important that they feel comfortable in our HSA environment."

Succeeding Dr Hazel Brown, who retired in 2022, Dr Sharon Radcliffe returns to the HSA (following a prior six-year period of service) with some 31 years of experience in nursing, and 20+ years in nursing leadership. The Director of Nursing is part of the senior management team with oversight responsibility for a cadre of over 300 nurses.

Dr Radcliffe obtained a Bachelor of Science in Nursing with Honours from the University of Manchester, England, a Master of Science in Nursing from University of Dundee, Scotland, a Master of Business Administration (Healthcare Leadership) from the University of Mary, North Dakota and a Doctor of Nursing Practice in Executive Nursing at Post University, Connecticut.

She said one of her main focus will be to continue to build upon the legacy left by Dr Brown by further encouraging and creating more opportunities for career growth and skill development among HSA nurses. She would also like to develop structures and processes that support patient-centered care at the HSA, and build relationships within the community, particularly with the school of nursing.

"Ultimately, I want to use my many years of experience in senior nursing leadership to build upon the solid nursing foundation that HSA has developed, and through teamwork, take the nursing department from strength to strength," said Dr Radcliffe.

HSA's Chief Executive Officer Lizzette Yearwood said, "We welcome Mrs Sutherland and Dr Radcliffe to the senior management team. They each bring a wealth of skills and experience to their respective roles. We are privileged to attract such top-level talent to the organization, and look forward to working with these two professionals as we continue our mission to deliver safe, world class healthcare."

The Police Service Commission announces the appointment of Commissioner of Police-Designate for the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service

Following an open recruitment process, the Police Service Commission (PSC) has announced the appointment of Deputy Police Commissioner Kurt Walton as Police Commissioner-Designate, for the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service (RCIPS).

As Commissioner of Police, Mr. Walton will also be the Chief Officer of the Office of the Commissioner of Police, which comprises the Cayman Islands Coast Guard (CICG) in addition to RCIPS.

Mr. Walton is expected to take up his substantive appointment as Commissioner later this year. In the interim, the Commissioner-Designate will participate in professional meetings with various policing bodies within the UK and also represent the Cayman Islands at the British Overseas Territories Commissioners of Police (BOTCOP) Meeting. This period concludes with a comprehensive hand-over with the current Commissioner of Police, Mr. Derek Byrne.

Her Excellency the Governor, Jane Owen, Chair of the PSC said: "I am delighted to announce the appointment of Kurt Walton as Commissioner-Designate of RCIPS. He brings a wealth of experience to this important role, and I very much look forward to working with him at this crucial time as we drive to keep Cayman safe and secure.

► Kurt Walton, Police Commissioner Designate

I am also immensely grateful to Commissioner Byrne for his leadership of RCIPS since 2016. His commitment to both operational response and strategic planning has built a Police Service ready to meet the challenges of the coming years. Mr. Byrne's dedication to the people of Cayman, his tenacity in fighting crime and his guidance of all the men and women in RCIPS is a strong legacy from which we will all benefit."

Commissioner of Police Derek Byrne said: "I warmly welcome the news of the appointment of Kurt Walton as the next Commissioner of Police for the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service. I have worked with Kurt for the past seven years where he has been an outstanding, experienced and committed colleague. As a local officer and having served the Cayman Islands all of his policing career, rising through the ranks, he has a unique understanding of the policing requirements of the Cayman Islands. I wish Kurt well as he moves to take on this new demanding and challenging role. He will succeed with the support of the Government and the support of the community. I wish Kurt great success in the years ahead as he takes the RCIPS from good to great."

Commissioner of Police-Designate Kurt Walton, said: "I am immensely grateful for the trust and confidence shown in me to lead an organisation with so many hard working and inspiring people. I am under no illusion what is required of Commissioner of Police and understand the tremendous responsibility and accountability that comes with the role. I have always given my utmost best in serving my country and the people of the Cayman Islands. I am passionate about policing and it's been that way over the past 36½ years.

I have a very clear vision and that is to Keep Cayman Safe and to do so, I must understand the threats. I recognise the importance of partnerships in this vision and will continue fostering existing and new relationships locally, regionally and internationally. Along with my senior leadership team and our staff we will continue with our ongoing efforts towards a modernised police service and coast guard which delivers quality services to the people we serve."

Commissioner Byrne has been pivotal in the succession planning of Commissioner-Designate Walton over the past few years, including sending him to the most recent training at the Federal Bureau of Investigations (FBI) Law Enforcement Executive Development in Virginia, USA.

Mr. Walton is married to Meredith and they have two children, Liam and Adelaide.

The Police Service Commission is an independent body, established in 2021 with the specific responsibilities for the senior appointments and promotions within RCIPS (Superintendent rank and higher ranks), and the good governance of RCIPS.

Cricket Square celebrates all week long

► The Brasserie Chef Gabriel Quevedo

As Cricket Square celebrates 27 years since breaking ground in George Town, Caymanian Times Publisher Ralph Lewis speaks with Nikki Callender, Marketing and

PR Manager with Orchid Development, and Tim Heath, Manager of Wellness, about the farm-to-table ethos that has been at the backbone of Cricket Square and the great ethos that populates all of the outlets here," Nikki advised. "The vision was to provide really great locally grown food for George Town residents and the growing business community in Cricket Square."

The Brasserie have an entirely seasonal menu, which changes daily, all driven by what is grown at the Brasserie and at their Coco Bluff farm and plantation. The Brasserie's restaurant garden is dedicated to growing organic, non-GMO fruit, vegetables, herbs and edible flowers, which are found growing throughout, not just in the garden.

"We grow most of our own fruit and vegetables on site, we have a sustainably caught fish supply and the catch on our menus is freshly caught daily on our two fishing boats, Catch I and II and for almost everything else we work with local farmers," she advised.

Fruit trees and fruit bushes that are fruit bearing populate the location, including Suriname cherries from which they make a jam, and a sangria.

Nikki said the variety of produce at Cricket Square's food outlets was exceptional.

"Because all of our produce is seasonal and locally grown you are often going to see things here that you don't see in other places, such as guava, starfruit, ackee and Suriname cherries," she confirmed.

The restaurant's Coco Bluff Plantation in Savannah has 205 coconut palms and 55 beehives, producing honey, beeswax candles and beauty and wellness products.

Cricket Square is also home to the Brasserie Bakery and 'Chateau Chooks', where more than one hundred Brasserie chickens produce eggs and recycle the restaurant's food waste, while their eggshells and manure are used to compost the plants, fruit and vegetables.

Sustainability

Nikki said that the farm-to-table concept was important because increasingly people were concerned about where their food was coming from and there was a real focus particularly after the pandemic as to how people grow their own food.

"I think people are very concerned about carbon emissions and what it takes to bring produce to the table and, on top of that, your most fresh and most flavoursome produce is when it's just been picked and served a number of hours later onto your plate," she week of special events they have planned.

King and Lisa Flowers and the Flowers family built their first office building at Cricket Square, called the Pavilion, 27 years ago on the site of Cayman's original cricket ground, beginning a business park within George Town that would grow and evolve based on demand, and that set new standards for commercial real estate.

In 1997 The Brasserie restaurant opened, one of the first components of Cricket Square at the heart of the development. Century Yard and Willow House followed, and the food and beverage outlets in Cricket Square grew to include The Market (serving coffee, tea, snacks, breakfast and lunches), The Caboose (a smokehouse BBQ restaurant) and The Wicket outdoor bar (open on Fridays for happy hour) and Juiced open during the day which serves seasonal nutritious juices and smoothies using local ingredients.

Home grown

confirmed. "It's not a new concept; it's embedded in our culture and pretty traditional and we're seeing more of a focus on this."

The Brasserie chefs - led by consultant Executive Chef Dean Max and Chef de Cuisine Artemio Lopez - see themselves as pioneers in this respect.

Healthy ethos

To help their tenants stay fit and healthy, Cricket Square has a wellness programme led by Cricket Square's Club, a state-of-the-art gym, as well as featuring lunch-and-learn sessions around nutrition, and stress management.

Tim said at The Club they currently have a team of 12 instructors and personal trainers and offer 23 classes every week, including spinning, bootcamp, jump rope, yoga, meditation class, Bollywood and Latin dancing.

"There's something for everyone to do and it's not just the people who like to lift weights," he confirmed.

They also offer healthy meal planning, online and free delivery within Cricket Square and provide healthy local menus in all of their outlets.

"At the core of wellness is education; it's empowering people to become self-sufficient and that's another thing we do a lot of through the club through lunch and learn programmes, with local hospitals, through biometric screenings, making sure people know their numbers so they are empowered to make some sort of healthy change. We are a gym but we are so much more than that; we are a holistic wellness centre," he advised.

Having just completed two intense months of outreach programs, the Cayman Islands Family Resource Centre continues its packed agenda of year-round activities catering to the needs of families and young parents.

All of this is reflected in the Centre’s remit: “Facilitating programmes for the entire family, our team aims to develop parent’s skills to successfully manage their children’s behaviour and improve the lines of communication in the home.”

Amber Caum, Parenting Practitioner with the Family Resource Centre gave an overview of their work in an interview on Cayman Conversations with Ralph Lewis, publisher of Caymanian Times newspaper.

The agency comprises a team of ten professionals who collaborate with other divisions in a multi-sector approach to providing vital support to families, especially those facing challenging circumstances.

They also conduct extensive counselling programmes using various approaches including group, family and individual confidential sessions along with outreach to schools.

“Say, for instance, you have a child experiencing challenges or they’re demonstrating challenging behaviours. We work with that family on a one-to-one basis. We also help facilitate a number of groups. One of the groups I facilitate is the young parents services and that programme caters to young parents between the ages of 13 to 25. And it’s very structured. We support those individuals with parenting skills,” the FRC’s Amber Caum explained.

For young parents who have had their education and career plans interrupted due to pregnancy, the Family Resource Centre has a structured yet flexible program that responds to individual needs.

“We support those individuals with parenting skills and we also look at their employability and enhance those skills. And then we also have a component called where they pretty much just reflect on their own journeys looking at things like relationships, their self-worth and their values.”

Advice, guidance and support cover a wide range of situations from housing to employment, childcare, careers, and domestic violence concerns all fall within the remit of the FRC. Much attention also focused on young fathers assisting them to understand and carry their share of parenting responsibilities. “It takes two to tango,” as Family Practitioner Caum put it.

With the sensitivities surrounding these issues, she assured that matters such as relationships, teenage pregnancies and parenting issues are handled sensitively, confidentially and in an age-appropriate manner.

However, with the number of teenage pregnancies increasing during the COVID pandemic, Ms Caum said these are conversations that Cayman needs to have, in response to the issue raised by program host Ralph Lewis.

“It’s all about mindset and a culture that you will have to work with train over time, to get them to buy into what you are trying to do,” he suggested.

The experience so far, Ms Caums replied, is that young people are more forthcoming in discussing these matters than their seniors. The view is that the more these once-taboo topics are faced, the better the outcomes would be for the community.

“When I work with parents I tell them the reality is you parent the way you were parented for the majority of the time. But as a parent, you have a certain toolbox. What I always encourage parents to identify with is that they are parenting in a different time than when they were raised,” she said.

“The reality is that your children are going to be talking about it or they’re going to be hearing about it from friends. So you should be ensuring that whatever information they have when it comes to sex and sexuality is reliable, accurate information, not tiptoeing around the topic and then your child is getting false information.”

The FRC Family Practitioner also said they are encouraging young parents to take on roles of mentor to their peers based on their own experiences.

Ms Caums said while they appreciate the assistance they receive from the government, the private sector, the community and other agencies the demands on the FRC are high and resources are stretched.

“Small but mighty” is how she described the FRC team.

Increase of Vehicle Break in and thefts

Police are investigating a number of incidents in recent weeks, where vehicle windows have been smashed and items stolen. Commonly stolen items include tools, electronics and money.

Many incidents are opportunistic, where thieves have taken advantage of access to unlocked vehicles. However, 14 incidents involved vehicle windows being smashed to obtain items, all of which occurred at night time, across George Town district.

As such, police are reminding the public how to keep your vehicle and possessions safe, and avoid being a target of theft:

1. As a general rule, don’t leave valuable items in your vehicles.
2. If you have to store items in your vehicles, ensure they are not visible when your car is unattended.

3. Always secure windows and lock the doors of vehicles when they are unattended - especially overnight.

4. Park vehicles in well-lit areas and if possible in places with security cameras or security officers on sight.

5. Where possible, record serial numbers and keep photos of your valuables, so that they can be identified more easily if a theft does occur and for insurance purposes.

The RCIPS is investigating these incidents and is encouraging all members of the public to report any such incidents to the police, by contacting 9-1-1, or your nearest police station.

Traffic Advisory for West Bay Road Roadworks

The RCIPS is advising the public of the installation of underground utility infrastructure across West Bay Road, in the vicinity of the Watermark development, south of Seven Mile Public Beach. The works commenced today, Tuesday 13 June, at 8:30AM, and continue for approximately 3 to 5 days.

During this time motorists travelling in the area are asked to exercise caution and should expect potential delays due to possible obstructions and partial lane closures.

Motorists are advised to utilise the Esterley Tibbetts Highway as an alternative if possible during these times.

Caribbean Week in New York Comeback a Success

Kenneth Bryan, Chairman of the Caribbean Tourism Organization (CTO), described the first post-pandemic Caribbean Week in New York as a success as public and private sector leaders and stakeholders addressed priority issues impacting the region during various meetings and activities.

The week's events in New York comprised business meetings; an informative tourism marketing forum, during which speakers examined current travel trends and future projections for the region's main economic driver; and a bustling Media Marketplace, where officials shared travel and tourism updates with the members of the working press.

Speaking at a press conference on the final day of Caribbean Week, Chairman Bryan, who also serves as the Minister of Tourism and Ports for the Cayman Islands, stated that the CTO was committed to continuing the development of research, knowledge, and information. This approach is intended to guide its members on "how best to be effective in the tourism industry, but also to help us market what we do as a region."

A critical issue discussed during the ministerial meetings was the persistent problem of sargassum washing up on the region's beaches, damaging foreshores and negatively impacting tourism. Suggesting the phenomenon was caused by global warming, Bryan stated that the CTO was endeavoring to identify strategies to manage the onslaught of the malodorous seaweed, such as implementing preventative measures or collecting the sargassum for positive uses.

Air connectivity was a significant point of discussion for the assembled tourism directors, ministers, and commissioners of tourism. Bryan acknowledged the challenges destinations are facing due to the high costs associated with airline operations, saying "There's no easy solution." In addition to dialogue with the World Bank, CARICOM and the Caribbean Development Bank, studies are underway to explore solutions for financing increased connectivity in the short- and medium-term.

Chairman Bryan revealed that destinations with their own airlines, such as the Cayman Islands and the Bahamas,

"are trying to work on ways of helping our brothers and sisters with connectivity."

During the meeting, the CTO officially welcomed Bermuda back as its 25th member. Chairman Bryan expressed his ambition to increase the membership to 30. The CTO recently celebrated the U.S. Virgin Islands' return to its fold.

Discussing the organization's financial condition, Bryan reported improvement as member countries and territories continued to recover from the impacts of the COVID-19 crisis. Many destinations, he noted, were performing better than they were in 2019 with average daily rates "through the roof". "So our finances are back (on stream)," he said, enabling the organization to restructure and adapt its marketing strategies to the evolving landscape.

"Marketing today is totally different than it was even five years ago," Bryan asserted, citing strategies such as leveraging influencer marketing and using artificial intelligence to maximize arrivals and revenue.

Bryan disclosed that the CTO is also exploring ways to augment revenue through data sharing and data research. Furthermore, progress has been made in identifying a candidate to fill the position of Secretary General and the Chairman said he anticipates an announcement in the near future.

During the week, some member countries hosted independent events and gatherings with strategic partners, travel trade stakeholders and members of their diasporas, leveraging their presence in The Big Apple to strengthen those critical relationships.

POLICE NEWS

RCIPS Encourage Owners to Permanently Mark Construction Tools

Police continue to receive reports of theft of construction tools from vehicles, work sites and private properties.

Investigations into these reports have revealed that, in many cases, tools have not been marked by the owners. Police encourage owners to mark their tools with permanent identifying marks. This includes engraving unique marks on the tools, or using a UV marker. Marking tools can be beneficial both as a deterrent to thieves, and as a way to positively identify the owner if tools are recovered.

To keep your possessions safe and avoid becoming the next target, police want to remind the public of the following tips:

1. In addition to applying permanent markings, record serial numbers of equipment, so that they can be identified more easily if a theft does occur.
2. Don't leave tools unattended in visible, easily accessible locations on your property or work site. Overnight, ensure tools are locked in a secure location
3. As a general rule, don't leave tools in your vehicle, but if you have too, ensure they are not visible when your car is unattended.
4. Park vehicles, particularly those that have construction company decals on them, in well-lit areas and if possible in places with security cameras or security officers on sight.

5. Don't leave vehicles running or leave vehicles with the keys inside unattended, even for a short amount of time.

6. Always ensure that your windows are secured shut and doors are locked when leaving your vehicle

Police believe many of these tools are being sold back into the construction industry, and advise workers to be vigilant when considering purchasing second hand tools. Always ask for proof of ownership, and only buy from a reputable source.

If you suspect that a tool being sold has been stolen, then you are encouraged not to participate as this is an offence of handling stolen goods. Anyone with information regarding the resale of stolen tools is encouraged to contact the George Town Police Station on 949-4222

Anonymous tips can be provided directly to the RCIPS via our Confidential Tip Line at 949-7777, or via our website <<http://www.rcips.ky/submit-a-tip>>.

Your Fad Diet Nightmare

Have you noticed how people jump on board with a popular fad diet, lose 5, 10 or even 20 pounds...only to gain it all back and then some. Why does this happen? It's actually a simple concept, and once you understand it you will be forever saved from the tortures of yo-yo dieting.

Fad diets saddle you with unsustainable calorie restrictions and some even cut out entire food groups just to produce that short lived drop in weight—a process that is actually harmful to your long term metabolism. The fad diets also ignore one major component to shaping up: exercise.

You see, most fad diets operate on one age old premise: cut calories, cut calories, cut calories. By restricting the type and amount of food consumed the fad dieter usually sees an immediate drop in weight. If only it stopped there...

But it doesn't stop there. Life continues, and the fad dieter returns to their pre-diet eating habits - with one major difference in their body due to the sudden drop in pounds. Their calorie requirements have gotten smaller.

In practical terms this means that the dieter will begin gaining weight even though they are eating their normal pre-diet portions. And since exercise hasn't become a part of their routine, the unneeded calories will result in pounds gained. So what's a dieter to do? Find a brand new diet to follow - right? Wrong.

There is a way to drop pounds and firm your body, but you won't read about it in the next diet book or hear it on the news. The solution to your fad dieting nightmare is a lifestyle change.

What is a lifestyle change? To change your lifestyle means to replace unhealthy habits with healthy ones, and to do so consistently. It isn't something you do for a week or two, only to revert back your old ways - a lifestyle change redefines who you are.

I know this is starting to sound like some heavy stuff, but hear me out. Changing your lifestyle from one that is unhealthy to one that is healthy will be the best thing that you ever do for yourself. Trust me, I help people like you make this change every day with amazing results.

Fact: The shape of your body is the direct result of your current lifestyle.

So how do I change my lifestyle? That is a great question, and the answer is actually easier than you might think.

Most people who are unhappy with their bodies are really only holding on to a few bad habits. Once these destructive habits are identified and then replaced with healthy habits their body naturally transforms from one that they loathe to one that they are proud of.

In other words, to get the body that you want simply determine your unhealthy habits and replace them with healthy ones. Here are the most prevalent unhealthy habits:

- The habit of inactivity. Failing to exercise on a consistent basis is one of the most destructive obstacles for your health and figure. (The key word here is consistent. If you aren't exercising at least 3-4 times each week then you own this habit.)

- The habit of overeating. Consuming calories in excess of your daily caloric needs is one of the main reasons that more adults are overweight today than ever before.

- The habit of empty calories. Filling your diet with foods that hold little to no nutritional value is a great way to expand your waist. (Hint: if a food item is made up of mainly sugar and/or fat consider it 'empty' calories.)

You can lose weight and improve both your appearance and your health.

You can look and feel great.

You can transform yourself into the person that you've always wanted to be.

Don't let another day go by that leaves you a slave to unhealthy habits. Take action now. Call or email me today and together we will recreate your lifestyle and redefine your body.

► Ernest Ebanks

By the way, I should mention another deadly habit that destroys too many people's dreams. The habit of procrastination.

How many times have you told yourself that you will start eating healthy tomorrow? How many times have you promised that you would call me to start your personal training program? Each day that you succumb to the habit of procrastination is a day that pulls you farther and farther from your goals.

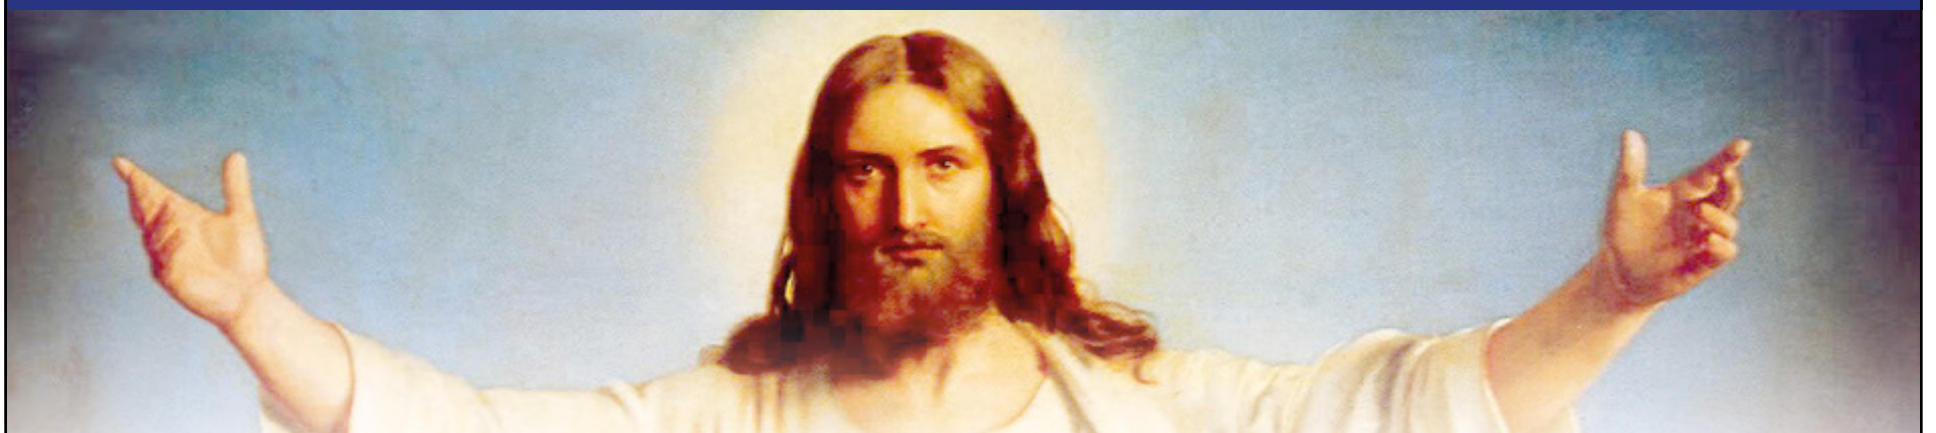

Break that nasty habit of procrastination—contact me today. Call Ernest at Body Shapers Personal Training Fitness Studio 325-8696 or email bodyshaperscayman@gmail.com.

MOMENTS OF INSPIRATION

NOT ME- 2ND CORINTHIANS 7:1-10
 The world in which we live today is both chaotic and frenetic. It is a world that believes, "self is KING." Our priorities are way off track. Pleasure and wealth dictate our actions. But do not be like the world.

In His word, God has promised to be our PROVIDER and Protector. He sent His Son so that we- who broke His trust and commandment can be restored to Himself. Our lives ought to be about His story and not chasing after wild oats as the saying goes.
 I am not saying that shiny things are bad. The problem is that so many today make it their priority. Scripture warns, " what shall it profit a man if he gains the whole world and yet loses his soul in eternity." Decide today and say, "Not Me," to the things of the world. Do you know Him as your personal Saviour?

DEATH ANNOUNCEMENTS
