WEST BAY CENTRAL CONSTITUENCY COUNCIL - “IT’S ALL ABOUT ‘PEOPLE POWER’”

The West Bay Central Constituency Council is up and running, and it could very well set the template for similar groups throughout Cayman.

From its inception a few months ago the WBCCC is at the point now where it’s about to transition from an interim organisation to a fully-fledged council.

Giving an update on the success of their progress to date, Member of Parliament for West Bay Central, Katherine Ebanks-Wilks, commended residents of the area for their involvement.

“It wasn’t very hard to get members involved. What we did from a constituency standpoint was we actually reached out and asked persons in the community to send in nominations. So there was a nomination period and the applicants were vetted. I got feedback from constituents on what they felt would have been important for this interim body.”

The council members are Sharlene Rogers (Deputy Chair), Charles Brown, Alyssa Ebanks (Youth Ambassador), Sophia Bryan, Glenda Lee-Ebanks, Daubreen Maxwell, Roberta Powery, Shemar Harding, Jehu Rivers and Clint Hunter (Chair).

Mrs Ebanks-Wilks, who is also the Speaker of the Cayman Islands Parliament, was keen to point out that the West Bay Central Constituency Council (WBCCC) is not politically-affiliated. Instead, she stressed, it is made up of people of different political affiliations, age groups, backgrounds, professions and interests who want to see the best for their community.

“What I pride myself with in regards to establishing this because this body is not political. There may very well be people in this council whose political affiliations may be different. So, as a result of that, it’s done in a democratic process that the MP or myself doesn’t overstep boundaries and try to dictate to this council what their remit should be. It’s really a body that’s established to advise the MP on areas that they have collectively been discussing.”

The selection of members also followed specific criteria based on the original Advisory District Council Law of 2011. “One of the things was they wanted to ensure that the persons that were on the Council were registered in the electoral boundary for West Bay Central. The other requirement was for persons who had applied to be in good standing. So we had a number of persons that were nominated, and then there was an evening where we did the selection.”

According to MP Ebanks-Wilks, as political representation and the electoral process have further evolved in Cayman since 2011, the law which established the district councils now needs to be reviewed, and she expects the WBCCC to play a role in that.

“There will definitely need to be some sort of amendment or change in the original law as we move forward. The Advisory District Council Law 2011 was passed when we did not have single-member constituencies. We’ll definitely have to consider that and I know we’re having discussions right now about electoral boundaries, right? So it will happen reflective of the way in which the electoral boundaries are established.”

Among the issues that the WBCCC is expected to address and advise both for the community and nationally, include; finance tourism, employment, community affairs, housing health and other areas as already defined in the scope of the current district council law.

“I know that a lot of times all of us residents are going through periods where we’re frustrated with a particular matter. This body I feel is a vehicle to help drive change because what it will do is discuss what the issues really are, and then take it to the MP and then the MP would then be responsible for taking this matter to the government.”

According to Mrs Ebanks-Wilks, “It’s all about people power”.

The West Bay Central MP said she hopes to see the WBCCC evolve from an interim council to ultimately influencing government policies for their area and the country. At the same time, Mrs Ebanks-Wilks is encouraging other MPs - whether they are in government or opposition - to do likewise and activate their community advisory councils.

“This is an interim council, but I’m hoping that it will continue to grow and other MPs will eventually establish similar groupings. It could be that the MP is not on the government side, so it will then force that entity to take their concerns to the government at hand to just ensure that the government is aware of the concerns of the relevant constituency.”

She also said: “It’s so important that the representatives understand that they represent the people and the people should be heard. The people are the voters and should feel comfortable with approaching their representatives.”

Dart collaborates with Lynn University on hospitality training for young Caymanians

Dart has announced a collaboration with Florida-based Lynn University to enhance the syllabus of the Dart Hospitality Training Programme, which provides young Caymanians with three months of paid on-the-job training and exposure across a variety of roles in one of the main pillars of the Cayman Islands economy.

As part of the emerging collaboration, a faculty member from Lynn University's hospitality programme will be delivering two-weeks of valuable curriculum. This allows participants to get training from an accredited institution to bolster the already attractive learning opportunities across Dart's portfolio of hotels, including Kimpton Seafire Resort + Spa, The Ritz-Carlton, Grand Cayman and Hampton by Hilton, Grand Cayman.

"We are thrilled to be able to leverage this emerging relationship with Lynn University to bolster the learning opportunities to create a new generation of Caymanian tourism ambassadors," said Dart Chief of Staff Joanne Lawson. "As we grow this programme, we will continually look at ways to improve and one natural step was to partner with an accredited institution that has a track record of helping students build the intellectual flexibility and experience to fulfil their potential in an ever-changing world."

The collaboration will begin with the second edition of the programme, which is scheduled for 9 August to 3 November 2023. A key addition will be the in-person training by Lynn University's Assistant Professor Dr. Karima Lanfranco designed to expose participants to and improve their understanding of a variety of positions in front and back of house operations. Topics will include hotel etiquette, guest relations, problem solving and others before participants begin formal on-the-job training in each of the hotels.

"At Lynn University, we are thrilled to be collaborating with Dart to further enhance the already robust Dart Hospitality Training Programme by providing world-class instruction to these young people," said Katrina Carter-Tellison, vice president of academic affairs at Lynn University. "Our Hospitality Management curriculum provides a foundation for future success in an ever-changing world. To be able to provide some of this academic expertise alongside the in-house professionals at the Dart-owned properties will help create unique learning experiences."

Participants are selected from a pool of Caymanian applicants aged 17-30 years. Over the course of three months, they will receive a minimum of 30 hours of paid work per week and full basic insurance coverage. The programme begins with two weeks of employability training, four weeks of rotation in various roles and six weeks of position-specific training in one of the following areas: guest services, food and beverage, pool, beach, and recreation attendant.

► Ja'Shante Pearson works as a food and beverage server at Hampton by Hilton, Grand Cayman after completing the Dart Hospitality Training Programme.

Upon completion of the course, trainees receive a certificate recognising course completion, a bonus, and the opportunity for full-time employment for those who excelled in the programme. This is the second year of the Dart Hospitality Training Programme. A total of 12 students successfully completed the pilot in 2022, with eight of them securing jobs at Dart-owned hotels.

"We see this as an excellent opportunity for young Caymanians to learn more about the industry, as we showcase career opportunities that exist. We want to play our part in attracting more Caymanians to the field, as they are the ideal Caymankind ambassadors to enhance the visitor experience to these lovely islands," Lawson said.

CYDEC 2023: Embracing the Evolution of Technology in the Cayman Islands

► Kwaku Aning

► Laura McBain

On June 28, CYDEC 2023 brought together a diverse group of technology advisors, AI enthusiasts, educators, regulators, students, and government officials under one roof for a full day of exploring the transformative power of technology in the Cayman Islands' leading industries.

The conference featured five distinguished international speakers who addressed a wide range of topics unfolding in the Cayman Islands. Laura McBain, who spoke on "AI & ChatGPT: to fear or embrace?", highlighted the multifaceted nature of AI, urging participants to shift from a passive perspective of "AI is happening to us" to actively shaping AI in our work and lives.

Central to the discussions was the importance of educating individuals about upcoming tech trends. It became evident that not only consumers but also society as a whole needs to understand the profound impact technology has on our lives. A significant focus was placed on the implications of AI and emerging technologies across all fields. As access to technology becomes increasingly pervasive, it is imperative to adapt our education systems and workplace environments to ensure we remain ahead of the curve.

Speakers emphasised the necessity of incorporating empathy into design processes and fostering human connections in a tech-driven world. Kwaku Aning, Director, Center for Innovation and Entrepreneurial Thinking (CIET), who discussed Tech's role in the evolution of learning, highlighted the importance of "Using tech with empathy, designing tech with empathy, and building robust authentic connections."

Other discussions covered on the day: Web 3.0: What it is and why it matters, by Ariam Mogos, Emerging Tech + Education Lead, Hasso Plattner Institute of Design at Stanford, Leading in an era of disruptive innovation, by Monica Verma, Digital Services Europe and Monica Talks Cyber, Panel Discussion on AI Spectrum: Business, Social, & Personal, Panel Discussion on Ed Tech's future and implications for the Cayman Islands.

"We are pleased with the rich conversations that took place during CYDEC 2023," said Paul Byles, Director of FTS and Founder of CYDEC. "This event underscored the significance of embracing technology's role in our collective journey towards a brighter future. The future of technology is upon us, and now is the time to understand it, teach it, and pave the way for future generations to leverage its potential for success and advancement."

22 Red Poll Cattle Imported under Livestock Development Programme

The Ministry of Planning, Agriculture, Housing and Infrastructure has taken a major step toward growing and strengthening the Cayman Islands domestic livestock capacity by recently importing 22 Red Poll cattle from Jamaica.

The three bulls and nineteen heifers were airlifted to Grand Cayman on 22 June, and after completing quarantine will form the base herd for the Islands' cattle breeding programme managed by the Ministry's Department of Agriculture.

"We have prioritised agriculture and food security during the past two years because improving the well-being of Caymanians means ensuring that safe, nutritious food is accessible, available, and affordable," said Hon Jay Ebanks, Minister of Planning, Agriculture, Housing and Infrastructure. "Importing these cattle will substantially increase domestic cattle production, improve overall cattle genetics, and reduce the need to import beef in the future."

Minister Ebanks led a mission to Jamaica last year for bilateral discussions with the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Mining, which led to this cattle importation as well as other outcomes.

The Cayman Islands Government has established and developed a National Livestock Development Programme (NLDP), under which the recently imported cattle were procured from the Cattle Breeder's Society Jamaica. The NLDP is focused on developing local livestock to reduce imports of goats, and to improve local cattle herds and beef quality. It is also aimed at implementing a cattle breeding programme to rapidly enhance the local genetics and modernise and improve the livestock sector.

"Importing purebred cattle suited to local conditions is a more sustainable approach to improving domestic livestock and an important component of efforts to enhance local genetics, upgrade domestic herds and support important research," said Brian Crichlow, Acting Director of Agriculture. "These imported cattle are a significant step forward for government's Cattle Breeding Programme and efforts to improve the domestic livestock sector."

Under the NLDP, the cattle breeding programme is designed to enhance animal genetics in Cayman and help modernise the sector and local farming community. Using the imported cattle and the new Cattle Breeding Center in Cayman Brac, the Department of Agriculture will establish a centre of excellence through which it provides stud bull services, calves for sale and semen for artificial insemination.

Importing cattle is only the latest accomplishment for the National Livestock Development Programme. Future plans include development of a Livestock Breeding Centre on Grand Cayman, introduction of embryo transfer technology and training of team members in the Veterinary Service Unit at the Department of Agriculture to improve efficiency in animal breeding technology.

Amplify Cayman launches a national campaign

Within the community, there is widespread support for pro-sustainable development as well as solutions to issues such as traffic. The community also broadly opposes developing the necessary solutions at the expense of our sensitive coastal environments.

In 2023, the Cayman Islands Government announced plans to extend the East-West Arterial highway and the Owen Roberts International Airport, which would require the destruction of mangroves and seagrasses – these fragile ecosystems contribute to a healthy North Sound and vibrant coral reefs, as well as the resiliency of our economy, communities, and resources.

In response, Amplify Cayman has launched a campaign to gather perspectives on these key issues from those who value Cayman and who disagree with capital projects that lead to environmental destruction. Further, this campaign seeks to promote healthy democratic processes, as decision-making in Parliament without data from constituents is poor governance.

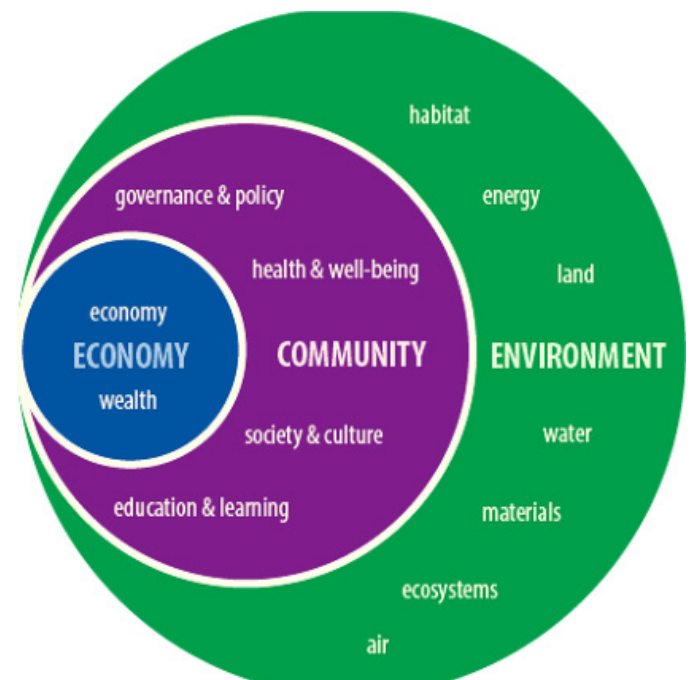

The campaign includes a petition to gather data which will be presented to Cabinet, as well as an open letter for constituents to share their perspectives directly with their elected representatives. The petition and open letter will be published on Friday 30th June 2023 on our social media pages.

Amplify Cayman is pro-sustainable development, not anti-development. We recognize that a balance needs to be struck, whereby socioeconomic needs are met within the constraints of our finite environment. Developing with the intent of delivering positive solutions to traffic and promoting more luxury tourism will not result in a positive impact long-term for the nation if it results in the destruction of our natural resources.

We ask Cabinet only to approve developments that meet the nested interdependence framework, explored in Amplify Cayman's People's Sustainability Charter, which was published September 27th, 2021 on the 20th anniversary of the 2001

Environmental Charter and can be read here. Our Charter is a holistic framework to ensure community and nature are balanced with economic growth.

Amplify Cayman call on those who value Cayman to sign the petition and write to their elected officials to demand that Parliament ensure these projects don't cause the destruction of our coastal environments. Petition respondents' demographic data will not be stored or leveraged unethically. Email addresses will not be included in the final data to Cabinet. Amplify Cayman encourages civil servants to sign the petition and write their elected representatives.

Children, teenagers and young adults who have excelled at track and field for 2022-2023 were honoured for their hard work and dedication at the Cayman Athletics awards ceremony at the Harquail Theatre on Thursday 29 June. All the children were there with their proud parents, teachers and coaches to receive awards. The evening was hosted by MC's Dionne Anglin and Ben Meade.

Cayman Athletics President, Mr. Delroy Murray welcomed everyone. "Thank you all for being here tonight...it's so good that many of you have taken time out to celebrate our athletes," he said.

Cayman Athletics Association elected a new board in 2021, Mr. Murray said, and since that time there had been many positive changes. Track & Field meets were now running regularly and on time, things were better organised, and that had led to many positive outcomes for all the young people taking part.

Mr. Murray paid tribute to the people who had gone before, including the visionary group of people who first began to organise track & field sports back in the 1970's and whose legacy we enjoy today. Mr. Murray also thanked all the sponsors who make many of the vital activities of the Association including sending athletes to important international and regional meets possible, naming Mr. Truman Bodden, C.U.C, and more recently, the Dart Foundation. He also thanked all of Cayman's dedicated coaches for all the hard work they do, and without whom the significant improvements that had been achieved during the last couple of years would not be possible.

Then it was time for the awards, but before awardees in the official list were announced, Mr. Murray had a special mention for Alafia Smith, who had consistently worked hard during the past season and excelled at 17 different events. She came onstage to receive a book about the life

The Rising Star Coach awards went to Patricia Bent, and the Male Rising Star Athlete award went to Andrew Stone. "Outstanding Athlete," awards began with the under-sevens, as Amari Johnson and Zabra Rankin came to the stage to receive their awards, followed by the Under Nines, Alden Wilson and Victoria King. Research shows that students who are highly encouraged in the arts, humanities and science are more involved in their communities. Igniting creative confidence in young people can enable them to launch creative careers and find innovate means of improving their society. When youth are engaged in the creative arts, they become authors of new works proving that performing arts as a core part of education just like reading, writing, science and arithmetic, help young performers to achieve their greatest potential, in this new global knowledge-based economy and society.

Strong performance at 2023 CAC Games

Charlotte Webster produced a best-ever performance by a Cayman sailor at a major multi-sport event by taking 4th place in the ILCA6 (aka Laser Radial) class at the XXIV Central American and Caribbean Games in San Salvador, El Salvador.

The Cayman number one cemented her place as the Caribbean's top female, finishing behind Olympic veteran and reigning North American champion Elena Oetling of Mexico, and three-time silver medalist at the CAC games, Daniela Rivera of Venezuela.

Rounding out the top 3 was Charlotte's training partner, Christina Castellanos representing Central Caribe Sports (CCS).

After a dazzling opening ceremony in the capitol, racing took place over 6 days on Lake Ilopango, a volcanic crater lake situated about an hour east of San Salvador. Light and shifty winds throughout the week meant that the conditions were better suited to the rowing regatta at the same venue than competitive sailing. With no racing possible on days 2 and 3 the remainder of the week demanded patience from the sailors as the wind would not materialize until after 4pm, sometimes later. Charlotte lay in 4th place after day 1, a position she never relinquished, with the top order standings staying the same through all 9 races during the week.

"The conditions were very tricky", said Webster, "and the on-the-water judges were very strict when it came to handing out instant penalties for infringements. I benefitted one time, but then lost 3 places in another race when my rolling and steering was judged to be too much. In another race myself and the Mexican sailor were becalmed at the finish, allowing Cuba to steal places by ghosting in from the other side of the racecourse."

"Coach Raph [Harvey] helped us our light-wind technique by doing many roll tacks. Sometimes a tedious process in 2 kts of breeze."

As well as Coach Raph, the other member of the sailing team was Cayman's flag-bearer Andres McDermot, competing in his third CAC Games in the ILCA7 (aka Laser standard rig). In a strong fleet in the men's competition Andres placed 13th of 16 boats.

Overall Webster is very happy with how her racing strategies have improved, as this was a small fleet compared to the European events she has been doing for the past year. Charlotte is now training in Cayman for next month's Allianz Sailing World Championships in The Hague. The Olympic qualifier event tests the sailors' skills in the tidal water of the North Sea, a location Charlotte is familiar with from last year's Youth Sailing World Championships at the same site. Further Olympic qualifying opportunities are at the PanAm Games in Chile and the 2024 ILCA World Championships in Argentina.

Earlier Garbage Collection for Cayman Brac

The Department of Environmental Health (DEH) is advising Cayman Brac residents of a temporary time change in garbage collection for the months of July and August 2023.

Garbage collection for this period will start from 3:00 AM as against the usual 5:00 AM. This change is due to the elevated temperatures that are experienced during summer. There will be no change to the route.

Residents are required to place their garbage in enclosures a night before their scheduled route, during the time this temporary change is implemented.

For additional information, please contact the DEH Cayman Brac office at 948-2321, 936-5920 or email us at deh-customerservice@gov.ky, visit the DEH's website at www.gov.ky/deh or message our Facebook page at <https://bit.ly/3LEK55q>

POLICE NEWS

Police Investigate Commercial Burglaries

This past long weekend, officers responded to three incidents of burglaries at commercial premises.

The first burglary occurred at a storage warehouse on Goring Avenue, and was discovered on Saturday, 1 July. Persons gained entry to the warehouse by damaging the door, and stole construction tools and a generator.

The other two burglaries were discovered on the morning of Monday, 3 July.

One incident occurred at a waterfront bar on South Church Street, where a small storage room was broken into and several cases of beverages, along with a leaf blower, were taken. The other occurred at a beach bar on West Bay Road, south of Lizard Run Drive, where the culprits gained entry to the store room by damaging the lock. They stole several bottles of liquor, and a safe containing a quantity of cash.

The incidents are under investigation by George Town CID, and anyone with information is asked to contact 949-4222.

5 Fitness Secrets

If you would like to look and feel great, then I've got good news for you: follow these 5 Fitness Secrets and your goal will quickly become a reality.

These secrets aren't secret in the sense that you've never heard them before, because you likely have heard them. The secret is that by faithfully following each and every one of these 5 steps your progress will become automatic and your results will be guaranteed.

Fitness Secret #1: Consistency is KEY

If you want a fit body then exercise MUST be a consistent part of your life. You can't exercise hard this week and then take the next two weeks off and expect to see results. Results come from consistency.

Fitness Secret #2: Set ATTAINABLE goals

Let's be realistic here, you aren't going to lose 20 pounds in a week. That's not an attainable goal! Those who achieve the most amazing body transformations do so by reaching a series of progressive, attainable goals. If you would like help in determining what an appropriate, attainable goal would be for yourself then simply reach out to me, I'd be happy to help.

Fitness Secret #3: Make it CONVENIENT

Are you straining to include your chosen exercise routine into your life? If your exercise time isn't a seamless part of your daily life, if it causes too much of a strain and headache to accomplish, then you won't stick with it. Find a time, a place and a modality of exercise that is as convenient to your real life as possible, so that you can be faithful to Fitness Secret #1 by staying consistent.

Fitness Secret #4: Find something you LOVE

Similar to Fitness Secret #3, finding a modality of exercise that you LOVE is key to making this a permanent part of your life. You may never love swimming because you hate getting your ears wet, or you may never love biking because you've always struggled with balance. If you're straining to get through a modality of exercise that you loathe, then you won't stick with it. It's best to move on to something different that you would enjoy more.

**Note for exercise-haters: If deep down you consider yourself an exercise hater, then DO NOT take this Fitness Secret as a free pass to forego exercise altogether under the guise of not loving it. Part of becoming fit for life is learning to find a type of exercise that you can learn to love.

Fitness Secret #5: Work with a PRO

This is my favorite Fitness Secret because this is where I get to work with you! My passion and focus is in helping folks like yourself integrate fun, challenging, health-promoting exercise into your

Nation Bids Farewell to Capt Kirkconnell

Family, friends, government officials and well-wishers attended the Church of God Chapel in George Town, Grand Cayman on Saturday, 1 July as the nation bid farewell to Captain Eldon Kirkconnell: former member of the Cayman Islands Legislative Assembly and Executive Council.

Premier Hon. Wayne Panton and Parliamentary Secretary Heather Bodden joined family members in offering tributes to the late Captain Kirkconnell during the official funeral accorded by the Cayman Islands Government.

Premier Panton expressed his sincere sympathies to the friends and loved ones of Captain Kirkconnell stating, "You remain in our collective thoughts and prayers, but we know that Captain Eldon was a man of great faith, and that today, he is at rest with his Our Lord and Saviour."

He further noted, "A great Caymanian has set sail on his final voyage. In the words of George Eliot, "Our dead are never dead to us, until we have forgotten them". I am quite certain Captain Eldon will never be forgotten, but will live on in the hearts and minds of the Caymanian people, ever grateful to have had him as an enduring person, father, grandfather, great-grandfather and friend. May the soul of Captain Eldon Kirkconnell rest in peace."

Captain Kirkconnell passed away on 8 June at the age of 96. He served in the Legislative Assembly and the Executive Council from 1962 to 1972, and was made an Officer of the Order of the British Empire, by Her late Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

As a mark of respect to Captain Kirkconnell, the Cayman Islands observed two days of national mourning, which started on 29

June. The period ended with his lying-in-state at the House of Parliament.
