HURRICANE SEASON PEAKS WITH SURGE OF WEATHER ACTIVITY

By Staff Writer

Weather experts are keeping close tabs on a newly developed area of tropical weather disturbance in the Atlantic that's heading westwards in the general direction of the northern Caribbean.

Initially labelled as Invest 95L - weather system under investigation for potential development - the US National Hurricane Center has said there was a 90 per cent chance of the system developing into a tropical storm or depression, and possibly a hurricane.

It was already showing signs of organisation and conditions favoured further development as early as mid-week.

It's the latest system is a sudden surge of activity in the 2023 hurricane season so far which is now hitting its September peak.

"The low-level circulation has become better defined since yesterday, with increasing organization in the shower and thunderstorm activity," the National Hurricane Center said.

Modelling was pointing to additional strengthening likely late this week while the system moves westward to west-north-westward at 15 to 20 mph over the central and western portions of the tropical Atlantic.

Projections suggest that it has a 100% chance of tropical cyclone formation over the next seven days.

The next name on the list of storms for this hurricane season is Lee.

The National Hurricane Center has tentatively scheduled a Hurricane Hunter mission into this system for Thursday.

"This system will track toward the west-northwest. That will bring it over increasingly warm ocean water, though it may have to battle some dry air in the Atlantic's main development region east of the Lesser Antilles. On that track, the system would reach the Lesser Antilles by this weekend, and it's increasingly likely to be a hurricane at that time."

The projected path of the storm was initially uncertain with the possibility that it could track to the north of the northern Leeward Islands or whether it would continue on a more westerly path which would bring it into the northern Caribbean Sea.

The early expectations are for the system to bring inclement weather initially to the northern Leeward Islands, Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico areas.

While the developing system poses no immediate threat to Cayman, residents are advised to remain alert and prepared to respond to any change in the situation.

road to renewables | Part 6: Rooftop solar

As the world seeks cleaner and more sustainable energy solutions, solar power has emerged as a promising contender. Utility-scale solar farms contribute significantly to renewable energy generation while rooftop solar installations are gaining popularity among individuals and businesses. But what is rooftop solar, how does it work and what are the benefits?

What is Rooftop Solar?

Rooftop solar is a photovoltaic (PV) system that has its electricity-generating solar panels mounted on the rooftop of a residential or commercial building or structure.

CUC's solar programmes also allow rooftop solar owners to receive credit for excess electricity they generate and feed back into the grid. This further incentivizes the adoption of rooftop solar.

Some of the challenges with rooftop solar are that solar requires ongoing maintenance and monitoring to ensure maximum system efficiency and high-quality performance. Not all owners maintain their rooftop solar adequately. Trim back shade trees or closely monitor the system for faults. If not maintained correctly, the stability and reliability of the energy provided is impacted. Rooftop solar is not officially regulated in the Cayman Islands.

In 2019, The Utility Regulation and Competition Office (OfReg) announced that for large scale solar to be offered on Grand Cayman, there would be a competitive bid process for utility scale solar. CUC is prepared to compete to be the most cost effective, skilled and efficient large scale solar provider for Grand Cayman.

What are the benefits of Rooftop Solar?

- 1 Distributed Generation:
Rooftop solar presents unique considerations for the electricity grid. The first is that rooftop solar installations introduce distributed generation, where electricity is produced closer to the point of consumption. This reduces transmission losses and can alleviate strain on the grid. Rooftop solar can reduce peak electricity demand on the grid, as solar production often aligns with high demand periods, such as hot summer afternoons.
- 2 Land Utilisation:
Utilises existing space and reduces land development.
- 3 Reduced carbon emissions:
Solar power does not produce greenhouse gasses or other pollutants after installation. This combats climate change and contributes to a healthier environment.
- 4 Increased property value:
Rooftop solar installations can increase property values. Potential buyers are attracted to homes and commercial buildings that come with solar energy since they come with reduced energy costs and a smaller environmental footprint.
- 5 Versatility:
Solar energy can be used for heating water, powering AC units as well as charging electric cars.

also be significant upgrades to underground infrastructure on the connecting sections of Edward Street, Main Street and Shedden Road.

Under the long-term revitalisation initiative to make the capital more attractive and accessible to all who live, work and visit it, the project is supported by the National Roads Authority, Caribbean Utilities Company and the Water Authority, and is expected to take about seven months.

"One of the goals of the George Town Revitalisation Initiative is to help people move around our city more easily and effectively by developing better street networks and public spaces," says George Town Manager and Revitalisation Initiative Coordinator, Colin Lumsden.

The first phase of the Central Business District Enhancement Project saw the pedestrianisation of a section of Cardinal Avenue and major upgrades to underground and overground infrastructure along the entire street as well as Albert Panton Street and Seafarers Way.

These enhancements have not only made the area more walkable but also useable, with large-scale events such as Cayman Art Week and the LIVE Street Food Festival being held in the space this year, as well as new traditions like the Ministry of Agriculture's Town Market, which is set to become a regular happening later this year.

Upgrades to the George Town Post Office intersection will take place first, with traffic diversions to facilitate the works being finalised and announced soon.

"Our mission is to bring life and vibrancy back to our capital and the tremendous success of phase one has set the stage for this next phase of enhancements," adds Lumsden. "Soon all central George Town will be connected by pedestrian walkways and shaded pocket parks, creating an enhanced experience for all."

The Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) is extending an open invitation to prospective recruits, students and interested persons to attend its Public Safety Careers Fair at the University College of the Cayman Islands, Sir Vassel Johnson Multipurpose Hall on Friday 22 September, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.

All MHA agencies – Cayman Islands Fire Service, Cadet Corps, Regiment, His Majesty's Prisons, the Department of Public Safety Communications and Department of Community Rehabilitation – will showcase the various elements of their collective roles in keeping the Cayman Islands safe.

There will also be representatives from the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service, the Cayman Islands Coast Guard, Customs and Border Control, Emergency Medical Services and other organisations that focus on delivering and supporting public safety within the community.

While the fair is open for all to attend, MHA is keen on engaging young Caymanians who wish to serve their country within the uniformed services or other public safety organisations. "As we continue to grow exponentially as a nation, the need for a robust and capable public safety sector is also rapidly growing. I would encourage our young people to consider the heroic field of public safety and the vast number of opportunities for growth within it", said Minister for Home Affairs Hon. Sabrina Turner.

The fair will feature a number of activities along with live demonstrations and free giveaways.

Lands and Survey Customers Receive “Special Appreciation” for 50-Year Anniversary

“Only give heed to yourself and keep your soul diligently, so that you do not forget the things which your eyes have seen and they do not depart from your heart all the days of your life; but make them known to your sons and your grandsons.” - Deuteronomy 4:9

I have recently been reflecting on the passage of time and the evolution of concepts that have woven their way into the fabric of economic development in the Caribbean.

It was in July 1993, after a visit to Singapore, when I first put pen to paper in a letter to the editor of the Barbados Advocate, musing about the potential of Barbados becoming the “Singapore of the Caribbean”. Little did I know then that this notion would germinate into an intricate framework of ideas, guiding the trajectory of small island economies for decades to come.

The cornerstone of my vision for economic growth has been the Economic Gearing System – a skeletal structure that has proved essential in nurturing and propelling economies forward. This system, like the gears of a well-oiled machine, fosters connectivity among business sectors, bolsters the growth of micro-, small-, and medium-sized enterprises (MSMEs), and creates jobs that sustain livelihoods. Through these interconnected gears, the engine of our economy hums with vitality and progress.

Central to this evolution are the trailblazers we call entrepreneurs. They conjure up ideas with the DNA of an elephant, which start small but have intelligence in their seeds of grand visions that are not only colossal but are, in fact, powerful enough to shape our economic landscape.

If these entrepreneurs embrace the spirit of shepherding (life coaching and business mentoring) the benefits will be to (1) avoid pitfalls as they traverse the rugged terrain of challenges; (2) understand the perfect mix of profitability, savings and equity (rather than loans); and (3) share the successes of their ventures to create a more inclusive prosperity. What a transformation this will be.

As I reflect on the transformation of Singapore, my mind inevitably turns to their triumphant journey from a modest fishing village in 1959 to a First World powerhouse by the turn of the century. The success of Singapore is encapsulated in the principles of Connectivity, Openness, Reliability and Enterprise (C.O.R.E.). These principles, woven into its very core, have propelled Singapore beyond its humble origins, inspiring Caribbean nations like Barbados to follow in its footsteps.

In the ever-changing landscape of economic discourse, Barbadian businessman Selwyn Cambridge’s insights have cast a spotlight on the nuanced difference between small business owners and entrepreneurs. His poignant comparison, shared in the Barbados Today online newspaper, has shed light on the distinctive paths they tread. It is through such discerning observations that we can chart a course for growth that acknowledges both paths, carving a space for each to flourish.

An undeniable truth emerges – the way forward for small island developing states lies in the symbiotic relationship between the public and private sectors. Collaboration, often in the form of public-private partnerships, unveils a path strewn with opportunities for success. Through shared resources, expertise and vision, we can navigate the intricate terrain of economic growth, building a foundation that supports both entrepreneurs and small businesses alike.

As I pen this column, 30 years after that initial letter to the editor, I am filled with optimism. The journey has been one of learning, adapting and embracing the ever-changing dynamics of our world. The seed of an idea planted all those years ago has blossomed into a forest of possibilities not yet realized. The economic landscape of the Caribbean and, indeed, other small island developing states, while distinctive and diverse, holds the potential to emulate the success story of Singapore – not as a mere copy, but as a unique Caribbean tale of growth, enterprise and prosperity.

There are a plethora of entrepreneurs in our countries but without shepherding they fail at an alarmingly high rate. My hypothesis is that if only our governments would understand and play that critical role of creating an enabling environment, what a wonderful transformation we would witness.

Pickleball has a new home

By Lindsey Turnbull

The sport of pickleball has snowballed into a major pastime for many residents in the Cayman Islands, however up until now there were few courts on which to enjoy the game. That has all changed thanks to Pickleball Cayman, the fantastic new facility in George Town that houses 12 shaded pickleball courts and eight open air courts that can be booked by anyone.

Owner Jerry Beck gives some background as to why he loves the game so much.

"I was introduced to pickleball in the summer of 2020 at the Whistler Racquet Club when my friends and I couldn't find a sport in which we could all compete on an equal level," he said. "While initially discouraged by the funny name and equipment, I found the sport simple to learn and extremely addictive. Upon my return to Cayman six months later, I had two pickleball courts painted on my freshly resurfaced tennis court and invited friends from various sports backgrounds to come and give it a go. Soon we had nearly 200 players competing regularly in my garden!"

With courts at the Ritz-Carlton, Camana Bay, the Holiday Inn and numerous other tennis courts being converted, it was clear Cayman had caught the pickleball bug and the time for Cayman to have its own dedicated facility had arrived, Jerry said.

As far as sports go, pickleball has one of the shortest learning curves, making it accessible to people of all ages and skill levels. It combines elements of tennis, badminton, and ping pong, adding variety and excitement to the game. The game was built from the ground up with equity at the forefront. Players of differing abilities and skill levels sharing the court can all manage to have a great time due to the sport's design. Pickleball is well known for its social aspect, fostering a sense of community and camaraderie among players.

Jerry said he was keen to ensure that Pickleball Cayman was accessible for all.

"In alignment with the sport's philosophy of accessibility and approachability, we decided to forgo the route of an exclusive membership style private sports club. We only charge for use of the courts, and equipment rentals. We believe in letting the sport sell itself, and keeping the barrier to entry low allows pickleball to shine through," he confirmed.

With Pickleball Cayman, Cayman is fortunate to have a world-class sporting facility centered on a welcoming, inclusive community atmosphere. Pickleball is the perfect sport to start with, Jerry said. The pickleball courts sit alongside three tennis courts and cricket/baseball batting cages are to come by year end.

"We've also got an expertly curated pickleball pro-shop with all the gear you need to take your gameplay to the next level," Jerry advised. "From paddles, balls, and accessories, to apparel, training aids, and recovery equipment, there's no need to look elsewhere."

Their on-site restaurant, The Roost, is a full-service bar and restaurant offering all the classic favourites with a healthy twist for breakfast, lunch, and dinner and patrons of the restaurant or courts can enjoy use of their kid's playground, one of the largest on island.

Book a court at: <https://www.pickleball.ky/> and click LOG IN/SIGN UP, complete a free membership registration to gain access to the booking calendar and start scheduling games. There is an assortment of daily clinics, events, private lessons, and tournaments planned over the next few months.

There are lots of different ways to play.

Open Play

Players can sign up and play without having to find a group of friends to play with. Just pick a session corresponding to your level of play and come along, and they will organise the rest. Rather than paying for a court booking, you pay a fixed fee for the session, regardless of how many players come along. The more that come, the more courts are opened up, so you should never be standing around long waiting for your next game.

Club Rankings

These extremely popular sessions feature up to 36 players per event. They place registrants into skill matched groups and create a round robin format to be played across a two-hour session. Each game you'll rotate to play with a new partner, meet new friends, get some exercise and have a blast all while aiming to improve your ranking. With over 200 players in their ranking list, you can battle it out with friends and compete in a fun, social atmosphere.

To join any of these sessions, just register on the website and check the calendar to book in your preferred sessions.

Corporate League

They have just launched the Appleby Corporate League and with 70 teams registered. Jerry advised it will be one of the best corporate sports leagues on the island, with six divisions, 400+ players, 300+ matchups over 11 weeks, finishing with an awards dinner hosted at their on-site restaurant.

The next corporate league registration is scheduled to open late January 2024.

POLICE NEWS

Police recover firearms, ammunition, and ganja in George Town

Just after 3:30PM on Monday, 4 September, uniform police officers carrying out patrols on Shedden Road, George Town, in the vicinity of Liberty Lane, observed a man known to them who appeared to be behaving suspiciously. They approached the man, who fled on foot along Liberty Lane. The officers gave chase and came upon two other men behaving suspiciously outside a residence, who attempted to prevent the officers from proceeding onto the property. While speaking to the officers, these two men also fled the location on foot.

The officers detected the strong scent of ganja on the property, and whilst making enquiries under the Misuse of Drugs Act, recovered a significant quantity of the drug. Assistance was requested from other police units and a further search of the area was carried out, with additional assistance from CI Customs and Border Control. A further quantity of ganja was recovered and officers also recovered two firearms: a 9mm handgun with a loaded extended magazine, and an AK-47 assault rifle and magazine. A large quantity of AK-47 ammunition was also recovered from the scene. The total amount of ganja recovered is estimated to be over 100lbs.

Four persons present at the location, a 42-year-old man, a 39-year-old man, a 44-year old man and a 56-year-old woman, all of George Town, were arrested on suspicion of possession of an unlicensed firearm, and have been granted bail whilst investigations continue.

Police investigate robbery on Walkers Road

Just after 10:10AM yesterday, 4 September, police were dispatched to a report of a robbery that took place at a gas station, located on Walkers Road in the vicinity of Coemer Drive, George Town.

It was reported that an employee exited the gas station store and was approached by a man who was believed to be in possession of a knife. The man demanded money and the employee attempted to resist, however the man managed to steal a quantity of cash and made off on foot in the direction of Coemer Drive.

CHHS keen to defend Under 13 high school football titles

► CHHS (white) begins the defence of their 2022 high school football titles

Clifton Hunter High School (CHHS) will begin the defence of their Dart Under 13 girls' and boys' high school football titles on Wednesday, September 13 and Thursday, September 14 respectively as the 2023 Dart Under 13 high school football leagues kick off with a full schedule of games.

CHHS' 2022 titles were the school's first official high school football championships since the league's inception six years ago. The wins also mark the first time in the league's relatively short history that a government school secured the titles. In previous years, Cayman International School and Cayman Prep have dominated proceedings winning two championships each and rest assured, they will be determined to get back to winning ways.

Both teams from Clifton Hunter went undefeated during the seasons on their way to clinching the prestigious Dart Cups.

The Dart Under 13 leagues will continue every Wednesday and Thursday until the mid-term break in October at venues across the Island including the Annex Field, CIFA Field, Haig Bodden Field, Camana Bay Sports Complex, St. Ignatius Catholic Field, Academy Field and the Clifton Hunter High School Field. Start times are between 3:45 p.m. and 4:00 p.m.

Schools participating in the Dart Under 13 leagues include John Gray High School, Clifton Hunter High School, Triple C, St. Ignatius Catholic High School, Cayman Prep & High School, Cayman Academy and Cayman International School.

Following the mid-term break, the Appleby Under 18 boys' and girls' leagues will commence and continue until the first week in December. These games will also be played on Wednesdays for the girls and Thursdays for the boys.

Complete schedules, scores and standings can be viewed on the Cayman Youth Football Leagues (CYFL) website at www.caymanyouthfootball.ky.

Young Cayman sailors excel overseas

Matheo Capasso and his sister Allie Capasso are two Cayman youth sailors who participated in the recent 2023 CORK International Regatta / CORK Olympic Classes Regatta and Sail Canada Youth Championships held in Kingston, Canada, during the week of August 7th to 11th. Both athletes performed very well in their prospective fleets, the ILCA 6 and ILCA 4, respectively.

Matheo, with sail number CAY 216663, finished eighth place overall in the ILCA 6 Gold Fleet. There were 48 elite sailors in this fleet with a total of 144 sailors in the entire ILCA 6 fleet, so a great finish for Matheo. Allie, with sail number CAY 208397, also placed eighth place in the ILCA 4 Fleet. There were 47 sailors competing in this fleet, so Allie also finished well.

The UK ILCA open and national championships also took place last week 19th to 25th August at Hayling Island Sailing Club, on the south coast of Hampshire, England. Two young Cayman Islands Sailing Club sailors competed in the ILCA 4 class.

Jaspar Nielsen (17) and Ciara Murphy (15) both finished very strong after 12 races over six days, with Jaspar finishing third overall and Ciara finishing fourth, out of a total entry of 73 sailors. Ciara also took the first female trophy.

Ciara said: "The UK Nationals was an interesting event, with a variety of conditions. The first day provided medium winds with the second day building and ending up quite windy. On the fourth day there was not much wind but just enough to sail in and the fifth day we ended up not sailing. The last day there was just enough wind to sail and we ended the event on a high with three races."

She confirmed her best race was a second and her worst was a ninth.

"A black flag did make an appearance for me but fortunately I was able to discard it, allowing me to finish fourth overall and first girl," she said. "It was a tough event and a lot was learned. It was a tidal venue so I learned how to use the current to my advantage and how to ensure it disturbed my flow in the boat as little as possible."

Overall, she said she was very happy with how the racing went for both Jaspar and herself.

Both these young athletes will be travelling to Brazil later this year to compete in the Youth Worlds in December.

Healthy Fast Food?!

Sounds too good to be true, right? Fast food that is healthy?

Fast food has a reputation for being high in trans fat, saturated fat, sodium, and calories, while having next to no healthy ingredients. For example, one loaded hamburger, fries, and pie contain more saturated fat than you should eat in two days.

However, things are changing. The past few years have seen many fast-food restaurants make a concerted effort to improve their menus. As a result, many restaurants now offer low-fat options and fresh ingredients. Choose wisely and you no longer have to sacrifice a healthy meal for the sake of convenience.

But to do this, you must be an informed customer, resist menu temptations, and make healthy choices when it comes to fast food. Finding a nutritious, cheap, convenient meal may be a challenge, but it can be done.

Beware...of menu lingo. Steer clear of meals labeled fried, breaded, basted, creamy, crispy, batter-dipped, au gratin, scalloped, or Alfredo. These dishes are usually high in unhealthy fats, sodium, and calories.

Instead, go for lean meat options that are broiled or grilled and fresh or steamed veggies. If needed, special order your food to be prepared in a healthier manner.

Beware ...of extras. A salad may seem like a low-fat option until you drown it in fried toppings, high-fat dressing, and cheese. A deli sandwich is a great choice until you add the mayo, spreads, and cheeses. The same goes for a baked potato. What about the butter, cheese, bacon, salt, and a mountain of sour cream?

Simple, fresh ingredients are best. Ask for dressings and toppings on the side so you can monitor how much is added.

Beware ...of portion sizes. A single serving at many restaurants could feed an entire family. The average meal at a fast-food joint can contain more than 1,000 calories. Extra large options should be replaced with smaller portions or shared with family or friends. Don't forget the calories contained in your drinks. Often overlooked, the calories in sodas and sweetened beverages add up quickly.

Try unsweetened iced tea or lemon water instead.

Beware ...of buffets! Even if you choose the salad bar, buffets set the stage for overeating. You may just want to eat your money's worth, but chances are, you'll eat more than you need.

After finishing your meal, wait at least 20 minutes before heading back for seconds. Your body needs time to tell your brain your stomach is full.

Beware ...of eating on the run. Isn't this what fast food is all about? Unfortunately, when you're in a hurry and aren't thinking about what you're eating, you tend to overeat and overindulge.

Slow down and chew slowly. Your food will digest easier and you'll most likely eat less. Remember, it takes time for your brain to get the message that you're satisfied. So chew well and give your brain the chance it needs.

Be Smart

Knowing is half the battle. The other half is making the right choices. Depending on your health condition, it may be OK to splurge every once in a while, but a habit of double-patty, greasy burgers and large fries every week will hurt your body.

Instead, choose a single-patty burger or a grilled chicken sandwich. In place of a milkshake, go for the yogurt parfait. Rather than French fries, opt for a baked potato or side salad. (Just be sure to choose smart toppings.)

Fast Food Shouldn't Be the Norm

While there are healthier options available these days at fast-food joints, nothing is as fresh and nutritious as a home-cooked, low-fat meal. Save the fast-food meals for rare occasions when there's no better option.
