Grand Cayman, July 27, 2026 - Grand Cayman Marriott Resort is undertaking a multi- million-dollar investment to restore its beachfront shoreline. These enhancements are part of a strategic plan to elevate the guest experience, create approximately 150 new jobs, recapture business previously lost to the erosion, and support local government revenue reinforcing the resort's leadership within the hospitality sector.

As part of this evolution, the resort will introduce a refreshed identity as Grand Cayman Marriott Beach Resort and debut the beach as a dedicated venue for corporate meetings, summits, galas and other special events, reflecting its continued commitment to guests and to the Cayman Islands' tourism economy and local community.

Hermes Cuello, General Manager, said, "This significant multi-million-dollar investment reflects our confidence in the continued strength of the Cayman Islands as a world-class destination. Every aspect of the restoration and renovation has been carefully planned to deliver an exceptional beachfront experience for our guests." The beach restoration is expected to finish early September. The project will replenish the shoreline with carefully sourced sand and low-profile rock structures to maintain the beach over time. Environmental conservation has been a priority throughout this project, with measures implemented to protect coral, flora, and fauna. Once complete, the beach will be open to the public and serve as a demonstration project that could guide similar efforts to replace sand lost during storms along Seven Mile Beach.

Guests can look forward to a fully reimagined beachfront experience, featuring curated events and activities designed to elevate every stay. Highlights will include mixology classes by the sea, Chef's Table dinners on the sand, private beach gatherings, and thoughtfully designed oceanfront spaces for groups that invite relaxation, connection, and a true immersion in the beauty and spirit of the island.

Seven Mile Beach, One of the World's Best Beaches, Your New Venue

The venue is available for bookings beginning in October.

Daniela Lara, Sales Manager, said, "Our newly renovated beach is simply magical, especially at sunset, and it's now a

IRG logs a record-breaking first half of 2026

Leading Cayman Islands real estate agents IRG are reporting a robust performance in the sector for the first half of the year.

In that period, IRG has also recorded what they have described as “the strongest quarter in history”, with the company reporting that it was the second quarter’s (Q2) Top Listing Brokerage, recording more listings sold than any other Cayman brokerage.

Headlining that “The Cayman Market Outperforms again”, IRG reports a $1.62M Average Transaction Value for a massive 31% year-on-year upswing in sales. With 270 sales booked, which is a 10 per cent increase over the past year. That outstanding performance is further bolstered by Total Transaction Volume calculated at $ 436M - an impressive 44 per cent increase from the same period in 2025.

Calling Q2 ‘Cayman’s highest quarterly transaction volume on record’, IRG stated that it was “also a record average transaction value, demonstrating continued demand for premium Cayman real estate.”

According to the company’s half-yearly update, the median sale price showed a 15 per cent increase year-on-year, averaging $837,683.

There was a whopping 186 per cent increase in the sale of properties valued at over $5m and a 68 per cent rise in total sales volume from condo sales, underlining a record-breaking quarter for IRG.

“IRG closed one out of every five property sales in Cayman,” is reported, adding that, “25% of all properties sold were listed by IRG.”

The company further states: “As the Exclusive Listing Broker, IRG has successfully sold 108 residences at ONE | GT, demonstrating the strength of our strategic marketing, international reach, and development sales expertise.”

According to IRG, the first half of 2026 has been the strongest six-month period ever recorded for the Cayman Islands real estate market. “Building on the record-breaking first quarter, Quarter 2 continued the momentum by delivering the highest quarterly transaction volume and the highest average transaction value on record. Driven in large part by the successful closings of ONE GT and Watermark and IRG’s record-breaking involvement in over one third of the islands’ sales, the quarter marked a significant milestone for the Cayman Islands and reinforced continued confidence in our real estate market.”

While these landmark closings shaped the quarter’s record-breaking results, the report also explores the broader market, highlighting trends across the luxury, residential and commercial sectors, where buyer demand continues to be supported by Cayman’s strong economic fundamentals.

“For IRG, the first half of 2026 was equally significant. As the Exclusive Listing Broker for ONE | GT, we were proud to play a central role in the successful closing of this landmark Hotel Residences development, having successfully sold 108 residences. During Q2, IRG also achieved the highest number of sales and the highest number of listings sold of any Cayman brokerage during the quarter, reflecting the dedication of our team and the trust our clients continue to place in us.”

Cayman Maintains Strong Growth According to Q2 2026 Licensing Stats

The Insurance Managers Association of Cayman (IMAC) has reported sustained growth in Cayman’s international insurance sector, following the release of the Cayman Islands Monetary Authority’s (CIMA) Q2 2026 licensing statistics.

Between April and June 2026, CIMA issued six new international insurer licenses, all class B(i) licenses, along with three Portfolio Insurance Companies (PICs). This brings the total number of new international insurance licenses issued in 2026 to 20.

CIMA has also confirmed that a further 17 licenses applications are currently under review, providing positive momentum for the remainder of the year. By comparison, 41 new international insurance licenses were issued during 2025.

With these additions, Cayman is now home to 721 Class B, C and D insurance companies, collectively writing approximately US$61 billion in premiums and holding total assets of approximately US$190 billion. The increase in premium from Q1 indicates a further $10bn in premium and $14bn in total asset value. The continued expansion of Class B(i) insurers reflects Cayman’s ongoing strength as a preferred domicile for single-parent captive formations, and reinforces the jurisdiction’s position as a leading international insurance centre.

Commenting on the Q2 figures, IMAC Chair, James Trundle, said, “These figures demonstrate the ongoing strength and diversity of Cayman’s international insurance industry and showcases the jurisdiction’s appeal for a wide range of captive and reinsurance structures. It is indeed encouraging to see the continued growth in new insurance license activity during the first half of 2026.”

Trundle also encouraged industry participants to attend the 2026 Cayman Captive Forum, taking place on December 1–3, 2026 at The Ritz-Carlton, Grand Cayman, stating:

“The Cayman Captive Forum continues to be the premier opportunity to experience first-hand the depth of expertise and innovation within Cayman’s captive insurance market. We look forward to welcoming delegates from around the world to what is expected to be another sold-out event.”

DES Successfully Concludes 2026 Summer School Programme

Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands, 27 July 2026. The Department of Education Services (DES) is pleased to announce the successful completion of its 2026 Summer School Programme, held from 7 to 24 July. Now in its fourth year, the three-week initiative was expanded to include government primary school students in Years 1 to 6, providing targeted literacy and numeracy support across the Cayman Islands.

The programme was delivered across ten school hubs by 119 school-based staff, including site coordinators, teachers and assistant teachers, with additional support from two school counsellors.

Focused on strengthening foundational literacy and numeracy, the programme provided targeted English and Mathematics instruction in small-group settings. Students also participated in STEM, cultural and enrichment activities, including traditional Caymanian crafts, storytelling, and educational visits to sites such as the National Museum and the Mosquito Research and Control Unit.

Student feedback reflected the programme's positive impact, with 87% reporting increased confidence in literacy and numeracy. Parent feedback was equally encouraging, with 100% of survey respondents saying they would enrol their child again next year. Eighty-two per cent reported the programme had a very positive impact on their child's learning, while the remaining 18% said it had a positive impact.

"I was especially impressed by the small class sizes, which created a more personal and supportive learning environment. The programme balanced education with fun through heritage activities, field trips, and hands-on experiences. It was a great way for my son to become familiar with his new school, helping him feel more comfortable and confident before the start of the new academic year," said parent Alecia Chin Yee.

and strengthen how the Cayman Islands protects the health and wellbeing of current and future generations," according to a government statement.

It also says that this suite of legislative proposals is designed to create a stronger, more modern and coordinated framework for public health, environmental health, healthcare regulation and tobacco control. "Together, these reforms will strengthen prevention, improve preparedness, support evidence-based decision-making, and ensure that the Cayman Islands is better equipped to respond to the health challenges of today and tomorrow."

Hon. Minister for Health, Environment and Sustainability, Katherine Ebanks-Wilks, said the programme reflects Government's commitment to building a healthier, more resilient Cayman Islands.

"This programme of legislative reform is our vision for the future of health in these Islands. It recognises that protecting the health of our people requires modern laws, strong institutions and meaningful community participation. These proposals lay the foundation for a healthier, safer and more resilient Cayman Islands for generations to come."

As stated by Min. Ebanks-Wilks: "The world has changed significantly over the past two decades. We have experienced a global pandemic, emerging infectious diseases, changing environmental risks, rapid advances in healthcare, and new public health challenges such as the rise of vaping among young people. Our legislation must evolve to meet these challenges and ensure we are prepared not only for today's needs, but for those of future generations."

Public Health Bill, 2026

At the heart of the programme is the proposed Public Health Bill, which modernises the legislative framework for protecting and improving the health of the population. The Bill establishes a dedicated Department of Public Health with responsibility for population health surveillance, disease prevention, public health programmes, research, specialist advice and emergency preparedness. It also strengthens the framework for preventing and controlling infectious diseases, enhances national public health surveillance and reporting, formally establishes the statutory roles of the Chief Medical Officer and Chief Nursing Officer, and provides for the designation and quality standards of public health laboratories.

Environmental Health Bill, 2026

Complementing these reforms is the proposed Environmental Health Bill, which will establish the Cayman Islands' first standalone Environmental Health Act. For the first time, the legislation will provide a dedicated legal framework defining the powers and responsibilities of the Department of Environmental Health, the Director of Environmental Health and Environmental Health Officers.

The Bill recognises environmental health as a critical pillar of public health by providing a modern framework for protecting the places where people live, work and gather. It covers a broad range of environmental health functions including food safety and hygiene, drinking water quality, laboratory services, statutory nuisances, potentially harmful trades, air quality, noise and vibration, waste management, sanitation, vector control and enforcement measures. Together, these provisions will equip the Department of Environmental Health with modern powers to educate, regulate and act where public health is at risk while helping to build cleaner communities, safer spaces and stronger protection for everyone.

Minister Ebanks-Wilks said the legislation recognises the close relationship between public health and environmental health.

"Health begins long before someone walks into a doctor's office or hospital. It is shaped by the quality of our environment, the safety of our food and water, effective waste management, sanitation, vector control and the communities in which we live, work and raise our families. Public health and environmental health are inseparable. Together, they create the conditions that allow people and communities to thrive. By introducing dedicated legislation for both public health and environmental health, we are recognising the importance of each discipline while strengthening the connection between them. This is about creating a more coordinated, modern and resilient health system that protects everyone in our Islands."

► Min Katherine Ebanks-Wilks

Health Practice (Amendment) Bill, 2026

The legislative package also includes amendments to the Health Practice Act, which strengthen governance arrangements by enabling councils established under the Act to delegate specific statutory functions to committees. These amendments provide greater operational flexibility while maintaining appropriate oversight and accountability across the regulation of healthcare professions.

One of the first practical applications of the proposed amendments will support the transition of the Ruth Eleanor McLaughlin School of Nursing to local oversight under the Cayman Islands Nursing and Midwifery Council. The legislation will enable the council to establish an education committee to help ensure that educational institutions, curricula, and training programs meet the standards required for safe and competent professional practice in the Cayman Islands.

Tobacco (Amendment) Bill, 2026

In addition, Government is introducing proposed amendments to the Tobacco Act, including measures to regulate vaping products, better protect children and young people from nicotine addiction, restrict the use of vaping products to persons aged 18 years and older, and prohibit disposable vaping products. The proposed amendments respond to growing concerns about the rapid rise in vaping, particularly among young people, and address a significant gap in the current Tobacco Act, which does not explicitly regulate vaping products.

The Minister emphasised that public consultation will play a vital role in shaping the final legislation.

"These reforms belong to the people of the Cayman Islands. They will shape how we protect public health, respond to emergencies, regulate healthcare professions, protect our environment and improve the health of future generations.

"That is why we want people to participate. Read the consultation documents. Attend a town hall meeting. Ask questions. Challenge us where you think we can do better and tell us what matters most to you. Whether you are a healthcare professional, environmental practitioner, educator, business owner, parent, student or resident, your voice matters. The strongest legislation is legislation that has been informed by the people it is designed to serve."

As part of the consultation programme, MHES will be hosting community town hall meetings across all three islands to provide information on the proposed reforms and gather public feedback.

HSA expands interpreter services to improve care for non-English speaking and sign language patients

Patients across the Cayman Islands will have greater access to safe, dignified care as the Health Services Authority (HSA) expands professional language and sign language interpretation services to support clearer communication throughout the healthcare experience.

Through the use of its interpretation service, HSA staff can now connect with trained interpreters in seconds on an iPad or desktop, enabling real-time communication in over 240 languages. This initiative, which provides communication in the patients' preferred language free of charge, demonstrates HSA's continued commitment to inclusive, patient-centered care.

"Every patient deserves to be heard, no matter their language," said HSA Chief Executive Officer Lizzette Yearwood. "At HSA, we deliver healthcare, but we also genuinely care for the people we serve. When patients can communicate in their own language, it builds trust, improves outcomes and ensures they feel respected and understood at some of their most vulnerable moments."

The expansion also aligns with the Ministry of Health, Environment and Sustainability's Health Practice (Amendment) Bill 2026, which marks an important step in strengthening professional standards and setting clearer expectations around patient communication across the healthcare sector. By enhancing access to professional interpreter services, HSA is supporting these priorities and reinforcing safe, patient-focused care.

The initiative is also grounded in international regulatory and safety requirements. Providing professional interpretation services is a critical component of safe, high-quality healthcare and aligns with global standards, including Joint Commission International accreditation requirements, as well as the Cayman Islands' ongoing efforts to strengthen healthcare regulation and professional standards.

Sophia Lyons, Quality Assurance and Risk Manager, emphasised the importance of the programme in reducing risk and strengthening care delivery. "Clear communication is fundamental to patient safety. Interpreter services help prevent misunderstandings, support accurate diagnoses and ensure patients fully understand their care plans. This is both a clinical necessity and a legal responsibility."

Since its expansion in May 2025, the service has seen steady growth in usage across HSA facilities. In 2025 alone, staff facilitated 339 interpretation calls totaling over 3,100 minutes, with an average connection time of just six seconds, demonstrating how quickly support can be accessed. Spanish accounted for the majority of requests, alongside languages such as Tagalog, Tamil, French and American Sign Language.

Momentum has continued into 2026, with 446 calls recorded year-to-date and more than 4600 minutes of interpreted care delivered, reflecting increasing usage among patients.

These services are designed to be easily accessible within clinical workflows. With just a few taps, staff can connect to an interpreter, ensuring communication support is available exactly when it is needed.

Staff across multiple departments have already embraced the service, using it successfully to support patient care in real-time.

Midwife Isobel James said that having quick access to an interpreter has been very helpful, reducing uncertainties and allowing conversations to flow naturally.

"I've had situations where a patient was anxious, maybe because she wasn't sure if she'd fully understand what was happening during her care. But using the interpreter service made an immediate difference. We were able to clearly explain her options, answer her questions and ensure she felt safe and informed every step of the way," she explained.

"I feel much more confident that my patients truly understand their care and it helps me build trust and rapport with them, which is especially important in the maternity setting."

Man Arrested for Overstaying Following Joint CBC-RCIPS Operation

Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands – 28 July 2026 – Officers from the Cayman Islands Customs and Border Control Service (CBC), with assistance from the Royal Cayman Islands Police Service (RCIPS), arrested a 56-year-old man on Monday, 20 July 2026, on suspicion of overstaying his lawful permission to remain in the Cayman Islands.

The man is suspected of having remained unlawfully in the Cayman Islands for approximately 15 years. He was taken into custody during a CBC-led enforcement operation, supported by the RCIPS.

He appeared before the court on Thursday, 23 July 2026, and was remanded in custody until 14 October 2026.

Since the beginning of 2026, CBC has taken enforcement action against 379 individuals suspected of overstaying their lawful permission to remain in the Cayman Islands.

CBC reminds members of the public that overstaying is a serious offence. Any person who commits this offence is liable, on summary conviction, to a fine of $20,000 and to imprisonment for five years.

Minister for District Administration and Home Affairs, Hon. Nickolas DaCosta said, "The Government fully supports CBC's enforcement efforts to uphold the laws of the Cayman Islands.

Let there be no misunderstanding: individuals who knowingly overstay or remain in the Cayman Islands without lawful permission will be identified and held accountable.

Our borders are not open to abuse, and the Cayman Islands will not be a soft target for those who disregard our laws. These enforcement actions demonstrate our commitment to protecting national security, maintaining the integrity of our immigration system, and ensuring fairness for those who respect and comply with the rules.

I commend CBC and its law enforcement partners for their continued vigilance and professionalism in safeguarding our borders and upholding the laws of the Cayman Islands."

Director of CBC Marlon Bodden said, "These arrests send a clear and unequivocal message: the Cayman Islands will not tolerate individuals who deliberately violate the conditions of their lawful stay. CBC will continue to identify, apprehend and take decisive enforcement action against offenders. Anyone who chooses to disregard our laws should understand that they will be held accountable."

CBC remains committed to upholding the laws of the Cayman Islands and ensuring compliance with the legal requirements governing entry and residence. The department will continue to work closely with our law enforcement partners to detect and address these violations.

Anyone with information relating to persons who may be overstaying is encouraged to contact CBC at 949-4579 or call 911.

Thirteen Caymanians Graduate from CBC Recruit Training Programme

Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands – 28 July 2026 – The Cayman Islands Customs and Border Control Service (CBC) proudly celebrates the graduation of thirteen young Caymanians who completed the CBC Recruit Training Programme. The ceremony took place on Wednesday, 22 July 2026, at the Harquail Theatre.

Persons in attendance included the Deputy Governor, Honourable Gloria McField-Nixon, the Minister for District Administration and Home Affairs, Honourable Nickolas DaCosta, as well as senior civil servants. Additionally, Director of CBC Marlon Bodden and Outgoing Director Bruce D. Smith were in attendance, along with members of CBC, family members, and other distinguished guests.

Throughout the training programme, which commenced on 2 March 2026, the officers engaged in a comprehensive curriculum that included customs and law enforcement topics, physical fitness training, practical field experience, and scenario-based exercises. The training was designed to equip them with the requisite knowledge, skills, and discipline necessary to effectively address the operational demands of safeguarding the borders of the Cayman Islands.

The graduation ceremony marked the culmination of several months of dedication, discipline, and ongoing assessment. The graduates demonstrated the professional competence, integrity, and commitment required to serve as CBC officers and will now be assigned to key operational areas across the Service.

In her remarks, Deputy Governor Hon. Gloria McField-Nixon encouraged the graduates to begin with the end in mind and to be intentional in their service. She urged them to always demonstrate integrity as they represent the Service and serve the people of the Cayman Islands.

She further encouraged them to exemplify professionalism and to perform their duties to the highest standards. Expressing confidence in their future, she said she looked forward to seeing them grow, develop, and make meaningful contributions to the safety and prosperity of the Cayman Islands.

In his keynote address, Minister for District Administration and Home Affairs, Hon. Nickolas DaCosta, extended heartfelt congratulations to the graduates and emphasised that, although the Cayman Islands is a small jurisdiction, its borders face a range of complex and evolving threats.

He underscored the importance of remaining adaptable, teachable, and disciplined, with an ongoing commitment to learning and professional growth. He also highlighted that the badge represents not only authority, but also the public's trust in the officers serving at the forefront of national security.

Minister DaCosta urged the graduates to enforce the law firmly, apply legal standards fairly, conduct themselves professionally, engage respectfully with others, and safeguard their integrity.

"Authority must be exercised with discipline, judgement must be grounded in law, and fairness must be consistent," he stated.

Outgoing Director Mr. Bruce D. Smith urged the graduates to uphold public service values, integrity, and professionalism in their careers. As he concluded his tenure, he emphasized their important role in shaping the CBC's future and encouraged them to contribute positively to the department's growth and development.

Director Marlon Bodden congratulated the graduates on their significant achievement and reminded them of the important responsibility they now bear. In addressing them he said, "The Cayman Islands' borders are more than geographical boundaries; they are gateways to our nation's security, prosperity and way of life. Every decision you make carries significant responsibility. As CBC officers, you must protect our country from emerging threats while facilitating legitimate travel and trade with fairness, efficiency and respect.

You are our first line of defense, and I encourage you to serve with courage, humility, and pride.

We are proud to welcome you to the ranks of CBC and eagerly anticipate your contributions to our organisation and the Cayman Islands." Several graduates were recognised for outstanding achievement during the programme:

• Jykalli Swaby: Top Physical Fitness – Male;

Best Academic Research Paper; Best Academic Presentation; Best Academic Performance; Best Overall Trainee; and Valedictorian.

• Ethana Villalobos: Top Physical Fitness – Female; and Intelligence and Vigilance Award.

• Anthony Shelley: Best at Drill – Male; and Best Academic Research Paper.

• Naomi Carter: Best at Drill – Female.

• Joseph Welds: Esprit de Corps Award.

• Paul Carmola: Outstanding Trainee Development; and Best Academic Performance.

• Christopher Herrera: Academic Excellence Award; and Leadership Award for Best Class Captain.

The graduation reflects CBC's continued investment in developing its personnel, the strengthening of its operational capabilities and the preparation of the next generation of officers to effectively address the evolving challenges of border security.

CBC extends its heartfelt congratulations to the graduating class and wishes each officer a safe, successful, and rewarding career of service to the Cayman Islands.

Montserrat maps a new National Development Strategy

The Government of Montserrat is gathering input from residents and its global diaspora as it prepares to draft a new Sustainable Development Strategy (SDS) and National Development Plan (NDP) for the island.

The current effort is intended to outline a 25-year growth plan (2026-2050) for the once-thriving island whose economy and society were upended by a series of major volcanic eruptions between 1995 and 2010.

It's the latest effort to map a long-term recovery path for Montserrat.

According to a statement by the Government of Montserrat (GoM), the latest effort establishes a comprehensive long-term approach to national development. "It comprises three complementary planning horizons: The Sustainable Development Strategy (SDS): A 25-year national vision spanning 2026-2051; five National Development Plans (NDPs): Sequential five-year implementation plans covering 2026-2030, 2031-2035, 2036-2040, 2041-2045, and 2046-2050; and a 15-year Detailed Strategic Evaluation in 2040."

It also entails "a comprehensive mid-course review to assess progress, validate strategic assumptions, and recommend any necessary adjustments to ensure the Strategy remains relevant and responsive to changing national circumstances."

As part of the ongoing study leading to the eventual SDS/DNP document, consultations are being held on-island and remotely with Montserrat's globally dispersed diaspora.

VOLCANIC DISPLACEMENT

Thousands of Montserrat nationals and other residents were evacuated at the height of the volcano catastrophe and relocated mainly in the United Kingdom (Montserrat is a British Overseas Territory -OT), other Caribbean islands, the United States, Canada, Europe, and elsewhere.

The population, estimated at around 13,000 at the start of the eruptive phase of the Soufriere Hills volcano, has been reduced to less than half that, currently numbering around 4,000.

According to the Montserrat government, presently under the United Alliance(UA) led by Premier Reuben Meade, the most recent consultation workshops were held from 13-17 July 2026.

"Over the five-day consultation period, 111 stakeholders contributed their knowledge, expertise, and perspectives to help shape Montserrat's long-term development agenda. Participants represented a broad cross-section of society, including public servants, private sector organisations, youth, civil society organisations, and members of the Montserratian diaspora from the United Kingdom, the United States, the Caribbean, Canada, and the Middle East."

The government says following completion of the draft documents, it will launch an extensive programme of public engagement to ensure all residents and stakeholders have an opportunity to review and provide feedback. "The draft Strategy and Plan will be made available through online platforms and will be supported by island-wide public consultations, community meetings, and radio programmes designed to encourage broad national participation."

The ongoing consultation is being facilitated by the firm Ideas to Business Initiative, in collaboration with the government's Policy and Planning Division.

"The consultancy has been commissioned to develop a modern, locally driven framework that will guide Montserrat's socioeconomic transformation into the future," the government says.

"The new Sustainable Development Strategy and National Development Plan will succeed the Montserrat Sustainable Development Plan (MSDP) 2008-2020, providing an updated framework that reflects the island's current realities, emerging opportunities, and long-term ambitions."

ASH TO CASH

There have been previous national and sectoral redevelopment strategies beyond the short-term outlook of most political manifestos in the seven elections held on the island since 1996. Montserrat's Soufriere Hills volcano began erupting in 1995 - 31 years ago - and continued in a destructive eruptive phase until 2010. During that period of devastation it rendered more than half of the island uninhabitable. Although still rated as active, the intensively monitored volcano has not had an eruptive phase since then. It is now a main tourist attraction in Montserrat - for viewing from safe distances, along with the buried former capital Plymouth and abandoned villages. The natural phenomenon of an active volcano is also a living laboratory for international studies in volcanology and its related fields.

A sand-mining industry has also developed from volcanic material spewed out by the volcano.

Welcome Home, Jaxon!

By Christopher Tobutt

When 18yearold Jaxon Cover stepped through the arrival doors at Owen Roberts International Airport this week, the cheers that greeted him carried a meaning far deeper than balloons and applause. Cayman was celebrating a national milestone: the first Caymanian ever drafted into the National Hockey League — and not just drafted, but selected in the first round, 32nd overall, by the Ottawa Senators.

For a country with no ice rink, no winter sports tradition, and no established pathway into elite hockey, Cover's achievement is nothing short of extraordinary. The homecoming at ORIA was warm and joyful, but beneath the celebration lay a profound sense of pride: Cayman had just placed a homegrown athlete into one of the most competitive sporting pipelines in North America.

Cover's journey began far from the frozen arenas of Canada. As a child, he learned the game through roller hockey at Kings Sports Centre — the only hockey facility on the island. Those early sessions were informal, communitydriven, and worlds away from professional infrastructure. Yet they formed the foundation of a player whose determination quickly outgrew the island's limitations.

Paul Strenk, who helped run the youth roller hockey programme during Cover's early years, remembers those beginnings vividly. "I was involved with the youth hockey programme for a few years while Jaxon was here — at Kings Sports Centre from six years old until 12, when he went to Canada," he said. "I wasn't an official coach. I was helping with the programme, with his dad and another coach."

Strenk didn't mince words about the scale of Cover's achievement. "I think this achievement is monumental. Firstround draft is... insane!" he said. When asked why it was so monumental, he explained:

"Well, for starters, we weren't playing ice hockey — we were playing roller hockey, which is a very different sport. His dad was originally from Canada and he used to go back in the summers to play real ice hockey."

"Jaxon wasn't on the ice all the time like everybody else who usually gets drafted. That's what makes it all the more amazing. He only started playing ice hockey when he was 12 or 13 years old, so in four or five years he developed the talent to be drafted into the NHL. He was beating out competition from the US, Canada, and all over Europe."

Cover himself was visibly moved by the welcome at ORIA. "To be here and to come back to all this support after the recent draft is amazing," he said. "I just really hope to continue to progress, and having all this support behind me just makes me want to progress even more."

Asked how it felt to be a firstround draft pick, he admitted, "To be honest, I still don't believe it. It was a really surreal experience for me and I'm really humbled by it. I want to take it day by day, just trying to get better and learn from the great organisation that drafted me. I'm really excited, and the draft is a great experience. It means the world to me, and I know this is just the start — I have to keep going."

Since the draft, he has been balancing training with time at home. "It's been a lot of training ready for the next season, and a lot of enjoying the summer with my family and friends — just regular old kids' stuff."

His message for Cayman's young athletes was simple and heartfelt: "It's great to see the young kids come out because I know I was in their shoes once, and I hope I can set a great example for them."

Cayman celebrates not just a rising athlete, but a symbol of what determination, family support, and national pride can accomplish. His homecoming was more than a welcome — it was the recognition of history made, and history still unfolding.

Packed Inbox Awaits New UK Foreign Secretary and New OTs Minister

There are several important issues relating to Cayman and the other UK Overseas Territories(OTs) in the inbox of the UK's new Foreign Secretary, Ed Miliband, and the new Minister of State/Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the OTs, Uma Kumaran.

Ms Kumaran succeeds Stephen Doughty, who had held the post from July 2024 until the wide-ranging Cabinet reshuffle carried out by new British Prime Minister Andy Burnham this month. Since he took over the top UK political job from Sir Keir Starmer on July 17th in a seismic political power shift in the ruling Labour Party, Prime Minister Burnham has embarked on a series of policy and personnel changes at the top tier of the British government.

In a social media post about her new role, Minister Kumaran wrote about her 'new ministerial brief as Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State - covering: the Caribbean, the Overseas Territories, global tech and AI, and Violence Against Women and Girls (VAWG. "I look forward to working with global partners on our shared interests - from action on the climate crisis in the Caribbean, to tackling VAWG, to unlocking the shared opportunities of the AI revolution. I will always stand up for Britain's interests, relationships, and values abroad."

Ms Kumaran, the Labour Member of Parliament for Stratford and Bow in London, is known to have spoken out in the UK Parliament against 'offshore tax havens', calling them hiding places for illicit money, and has pressed the British government to close legislative loopholes on financial transparency.

THE PARBO PARADOX

A key issue is the looming deadline for the across-the-board enactment of the controversial Public Access to Registers of Beneficial Ownership (PARBO) law. This broadly relates to all companies in the OTs but has particular application to those in the offshore financial services sector that operate within a specific framework of client privacy and confidentiality.

After several years of negotiations with the British government, the OTs are facing the prospect of a UK Order-in-Council being imposed directly if they don't have a UK-approved PARBO law in place by this summer.

That issue, which predates the previous Keir Starmer administration, has now been inherited by the new Andy Burnham UK Labour Party government. It goes back as far as 2015 to the period when the new Foreign Secretary, Ed Miliband, was the leader of the Labour Party and the Leader of the Opposition in the British Parliament.

At that time, Mr Burnham was particularly critical of the OTs' financial services sectors, calling them 'tax shelters', much to the dismay of many OTs governments, which have relied on the sector as a crucial pillar of their local economies.

"A Labour government is not going to have endless consultation and dithering. We are going to give six months to these tax havens to agree to publish a register of beneficial ownership, and if they do not act we will recommend to the OECD that they are put on a blacklist," he had insisted back then.

But he received significant pushback from several of the OTs, including the Cayman Islands, over what was rejected as a mislabelling of them as 'tax havens' and the negative connotations that term carries.

Cayman and other jurisdictions with offshore financial sectors have been in ongoing negotiations with the Financial Action Task Force(FATF)and other relevant agencies regarding the management and oversight of the sector, including enacting specific legislation.

The European Union officially removed the Cayman Islands from its list of non-co-operative tax jurisdictions on October 6, 2020. The territory was originally added to the blacklist earlier that year on February 18, 2020, after failing to fully enact specific private funds legislation before the EU's deadline.

It's now left to be seen what stance Mr Miliband adopts on the issue in his current role, along with the new Minister of State for the OTs, Uma Kumaran.

Cayman has approached the matter from the perspective of 'legitimate interest' and a fee to gain access to the information.

CONSTITUTION CONCERNS

At the same time as the contentious PARBO issue, several OTs have been engaged in talks with the British government on their individual demands for constitutional reform. Their concerns and demands range from curbing or otherwise redirecting some of the powers of the UK-appointed Governor to locally elected governments.

In the past decade, there have been at least three major reviews and Commissions of Inquiry into relations between the UK and its Overseas Territories by both the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

In each case, the status quo has largely been maintained, generally by agreement, although there have been steps toward streamlining the administrative processes between the locally elected OT governments and the British government. In most instances, OTs have been seeking more internal administrative autonomy. However, the issue of outright independence, although raised in some instances, has for the most part been fairly subdued, falling more under the heading of 'self-determination'. All OTs' constitutions have an inbuilt pathway to independence involving a referendum and negotiations with the UK government.

Presently, while the British government retains responsibility for foreign relations, the OTs have some flexibility on specific issues involving foreign governments and international organisations - generally in consultation with the British government. The UK retains overarching responsibility for defence and security in the OTs, along with the power of direct legislative intervention via Orders-in-Council to impose specific laws or overall direct rule.

An annual Joint Ministerial Council(JMC) summit has also led to some concessions and other steps toward making the relationship between the OTs and the UK less cumbersome in specific areas, largely coming out of requests and proposals put forward by the OTs.

Stop Chasing the Scale—Focus on What Really Transforms Your Body

For many people, stepping on the bathroom scale has become a daily ritual. It can determine whether they start the day feeling encouraged or defeated. One number flashes on the screen, and suddenly their mood, confidence, and motivation rise or fall.

But here's the truth: your scale doesn't tell the whole story.

If your goal is to become healthier, leaner, stronger, and more confident, it's time to stop obsessing over your weight and start paying attention to what truly matters—your body composition and overall progress.

The Scale Can Be Misleading

Most bathroom scales simply measure your total body weight. They can't tell the difference between body fat, muscle, water, or even the meal you ate a few hours earlier.

Your weight naturally changes throughout the day based on factors such as:

- Hydration levels
- Salt intake
- Recent meals
- Exercise
- Hormonal changes
- Bathroom visits

It's completely normal for your weight to fluctuate by several pounds in a single day. Yet many people panic when they see the number increase, even though they've gained absolutely no body fat.

To make matters worse, digital scales aren't always perfectly accurate. If they're placed on uneven flooring or aren't properly calibrated after being moved, the reading can vary even more.

Weight Isn't the Same as Fat

One of the biggest misconceptions in fitness is believing that losing weight automatically means losing fat.

Your body is made up of several components:

- Body fat
- Muscle
- Bones
- Organs
- Water

When most people say they want to lose weight, what they really mean is they want to lose excess body fat while keeping—or even building—lean muscle.

That's a very different goal.

Muscle is healthy. It boosts your metabolism, strengthens your body, improves posture, protects your joints, and helps you stay active as you age.

The scale, however, simply lumps everything together.

Why Progress Sometimes Appears to Stall

Many people experience rapid weight loss during the first week or two of improving their nutrition. This initial drop is largely water weight as the body uses stored carbohydrates.

Then something frustrating happens.

The scale barely moves.

People begin questioning themselves.

"Is this diet working?"

"Why am I exercising if nothing is changing?"

In reality, this is often when the most important changes are taking place.

Your body may be burning fat while simultaneously building lean muscle. Since muscle is denser than fat, your weight may stay relatively stable even though your waistline is shrinking and your clothes fit much better.

You could lose three pounds of fat while gaining two pounds of muscle, resulting in only a one-pound change on the scale—but a dramatic improvement in how you look and feel.

Body Composition Is the Real Measure of Success

Instead of asking, "How much do I weigh?"

Start asking:

- Am I stronger than last month?
- Do my clothes fit better?
- Do I have more energy?
- Am I sleeping better?
- Am I moving with greater confidence?
- Has my waist become smaller?
- Do I feel healthier?

These are the victories that truly matter.

A healthier body isn't defined by a number on a scale. It's defined by lower body fat, increased strength, better endurance, improved mobility, and greater confidence.

The Best Progress Tracker? Photos

While body fat measurements can provide valuable information, nothing captures transformation quite like progress photos.

When you compare photos taken several weeks apart, you'll notice changes in your posture, muscle definition, waistline, arms, legs, and overall appearance. Often, these visual improvements are remarkable—even when the scale has barely changed.

That's because you're transforming your body, not simply reducing a number.

Celebrate Real Progress

Don't let the bathroom scale determine your self-worth.

Celebrate every healthy meal you eat.

Celebrate every workout you complete.

Celebrate every pound of fat you lose, every bit of muscle you gain, and every healthy habit you build.

Those victories last far longer than any number displayed on a screen.

If you're ready to stop chasing the scale and start achieving real, lasting results, I'd love to help.

Together, we'll focus on reducing body fat, building strength, improving your health, and creating a body you'll be proud of—not just a lower number on the scale.

Call Ernest at Body Shapers Personal Training Fitness Studio at 325-8696 and let's begin your transformation today.
