Minister Signals Proposed Changes to Work Permit Advertising Requirements

Minister for Caymanian Employment and Immigration, Honourable Michael Myles, has expressed an intention for the Government to make changes to the advertising requirements associated with work permit applications, following feedback from employers, job seekers and other stakeholders. The Minister contemplates that, under the proposed changes, employers would continue to be required to advertise vacancies on the WORC Jobs Portal for at least 21 days before submitting a work permit application. However, employers would no longer be required to advertise vacancies in a local newspaper.

► Hon Michael Myles

Minister Myles, stated: "The objective remains to ensure that Caymanians have meaningful access to employment opportunities, while creating a system that is efficient, transparent and works well for both job seekers and employers. This proposed change is about making the advertising process simpler and more practical, while still ensuring Caymanians have a fair opportunity to see and apply for available jobs." Part of the proposal to Caucus and Cabinet is whether to contemplate an introduction of a modest fee for advertisements placed on the WORC Jobs Portal and the revenue generated from this fee would support the operation of the Portal.

The Government will also assume publishing a weekly list of consolidated job vacancies in a local newspaper to allow job opportunities to remain available both online and in print. However, these proposed changes are subject to approval of Caucus and Cabinet next week. Workforce Opportunities & Residency Cayman (WORC) will continue to support job seekers who may need assistance accessing vacancies online, including through in-person support with visits to the districts. The Ministry of Caymanian Employment and Immigration will continue engaging with employers, Caymanian job seekers and other stakeholders as the proposed changes are developed and implemented.

URCO publishes fuel quality standards to strengthen consumer protection

Consumers across the Cayman Islands are set to benefit from clearer information and stronger safeguards for the fuel they buy, following the publication of the Fuel Quality Standards 2027 by the Utility Regulation and Competition Office (URCO). The Standards will take effect on 1 January 2027 and cover products including gasoline, diesel and propane and will set the stage for ease of incorporation of greener renewable fuels going forward.

The publication marks a significant step forward in consumer protection, bringing rules on fuel quality, testing, labelling and action when products fall short together in a national framework for the fuels covered. It gives consumers clearer expectations of what they are buying and provides a firmer basis for holding suppliers accountable for its quality.

Sonji Myles, Chief Executive Officer of URCO, said:

"Whether you are filling your car, buying propane for cooking or purchasing diesel to run equipment, you should be able to trust what you are buying. Fuel should meet the quality and grade it is sold as, and there should be clear ways to check that it does. "These Standards turn that expectation into practical protections. They set out what suppliers must deliver, how fuel quality can be checked and what must happen when a product does not meet the required standard. That is the consumer protection at the heart of this work." What this means for consumers From 1 January 2027, the Standards will provide:

Clearer information at the pump: Labels must accurately identify the fuel, its grade and applicable rating, helping customers understand what they are buying. Gasoline must meet at least the octane rating displayed. This gives consumers a clear assurance: fuel must not be sold as a higher grade than it actually meets.

Safeguards against contamination: Rules on water in storage tanks, fuel-pump filters and clearly marked filling points will help protect fuel quality during storage and dispensing.

Quality that can be checked: Recognised tests supported by law will provide a consistent way to check whether fuel meets the required standard, rather than relying on product descriptions alone.

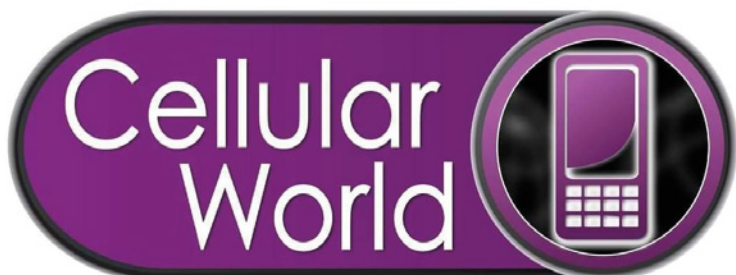

Action when fuel falls short: Sale of fuel can be stopped where fuel does not meet the requirements, with controlled arrangements for correcting the problem or dealing with the affected fuel. Where a stop-sale order is issued at a terminal or bulk facility, the operator must immediately notify all customers who received the affected product and arrange to replace it or bring it up to the required standard. Working together to protect consumers

URCO acknowledges the Fuel Standards Committee's contribution to developing and approving the Standards. The Committee is chaired by the Chief Fuels Inspector and includes appointees from the Department of Environmental Health, the Department of the Environment and the Water Authority.

Their combined expertise in fuels, environmental health, the environment and water protection helped shape the Standards for the Cayman Islands. The work draws on recognised international fuel specifications and testing methods. Preparing for the new requirements

The Standards apply across Grand Cayman, Cayman Brac and Little Cayman and also support environmental protection through limits on substances such as sulphur. Made under the Dangerous Substances Act, they give fuel importers and operators advance notice of the requirements so they can prepare for compliance from 1 January 2027.

While the Standards set requirements for fuel products currently imported and used locally, they also establish a framework that can be reviewed and updated to accommodate alternative fuels as the country's needs change. This provides a practical basis for regulating greener and renewable fuels as they are introduced, supporting the transition away from diesel dependence while maintaining clear quality requirements and consumer protections. The goal is straightforward: clearer information, fuel quality that can be checked, and accountability when standards are not met. Together, these measures provide a stronger foundation for consumer confidence in the fuel supplied in the Cayman Islands.

The Eastern Link Connecting East End and North Side Launched on 1 October

Commuters in East End and North Side who use public transportation should now experience an improved connection with the wider public bus network.

That's because the Ministry of Planning, Lands, Agriculture, Housing & Infrastructure in partnership with the Public Transport Unit has launched The Eastern Link, a free four-month public transport pilot serving East End and North Side.

The Eastern Link, which was launched on Thursday, October 1st, is designed to strengthen connectivity across the Eastern Districts and provide passengers with a practical connection to the wider public bus network through Frank Sound Junction.

The pilot will give residents an extended opportunity to use the service while Government gathers operational information and passenger feedback to help inform future public transport planning.

The Eastern Link will comprise three passenger-facing services which will be available on Monday to Saturday from 7:30 AM to 7:30 PM, excluding Public Holidays.

- 1. East End Loop via East End
- 2. North Side/Cayman Kai
- 3. East End Loop via Queen's Highway

Frank Sound Junction has now been designed to serve as the principal connection point between The Eastern Link and the existing public bus network.

Free Shuttle Service

Travel on The Eastern Link shuttle is free for the duration of the pilot. Where shuttle passengers transfer to an existing public bus, the existing public bus fare rates will apply.

To support operations, PTU staff will be on site every morning to ensure buses run as expected and to facilitate a smooth transition between public and shuttle buses at the junction.

Try It. Use It. Tell Us What You Think.

Residents are encouraged to try The Eastern Link during the pilot, use the official passenger information to plan their journeys and share feedback on their experience. Towards the final phase of the pilot, Government will place additional emphasis on passenger and stakeholder feedback to support evaluation of the service.

Ministry of Health, Environment and Sustainability announces new Director for DHRS and Superintendent of Health Insurance

The Ministry of Health, Environment and Sustainability (MHES) is pleased to announce the appointment of Ms. Anniki Hill as Director for the Department of Health Regulatory Services (DHRS) and Superintendent of Health Insurance.

Director Hill succeeds Mr. Mervyn Conolly, who retired from the Cayman Islands Government at the end of August 2026, after more than 45 years of public service, including his leadership of DHRS and the Health Insurance Commission.

For Director Hill, the appointment represents a return to an environment that has been part of her professional life since childhood. Her first job, at the age of 14, was at the Cayman Islands Hospital, where she worked during the summer in medical records. She also spent summers working in the insurance industry.

Although she subsequently built her early professional career in law, Director Hill returned to the health-insurance sector within her first month of practising as an attorney, joining International Healthcare Solutions Ltd. (IHSL), Generali Worldwide's General Agent in the Cayman Islands, as its attorney. She went on to serve as the company's Country Manager and In-House Counsel for 12 years.

Reflecting on her career path, Director Hill said the experience has prepared her uniquely for her new responsibilities.

► Anniki Hill, DHRS Director and Superintendent of HI

"My path has always been to do the next good thing in front of me. But if I'd set out to plan my way to becoming Director of DHRS, I couldn't have designed a better one."

Director Hill takes up the leadership of DHRS at a time when the Cayman Islands continues to strengthen its health and regulatory framework. The Ministry is advancing a programme of health legislative reform, including reforms intended to modernise and strengthen the country's health system.

Hon. Katherine Ebanks-Wilks, the Minister for Health, Environment and Sustainability, said the appointment forms part of Government's wider work to strengthen the country's health system.

"Strong health systems depend on clear policy direction, sound legislation and effective institutions working together. As Government continues to advance the reforms needed to support a modern, resilient and sustainable health system, the regulatory function will remain an essential part of that work. Director Hill brings a valuable combination of legal, health-insurance and Caymanian experience to this role, and I look forward to seeing that experience contribute to the Ministry's broader health agenda."

The Chief Officer for Health, Environment and Sustainability, Ms. Tamara Ebanks, said Director Hill's appointment comes at an important point for the continued development of the Department.

"DHRS plays a critical role in the day-to-day functioning of Cayman's health system, and effective delivery depends on strong internal systems, capable teams and clear lines of accountability. Director Hill joins a department with considerable expertise and an important operational mandate, and we will work closely with her and the DHRS team to ensure continuity of service while supporting the department's continued development."

Director Hill said one of her immediate priorities will be to build on the foundation established during Mr. Conolly's tenure.

"It is important to me that we honour the legacy Mr. Conolly created. He founded a functioning regulator where none had existed before. That foundation is what allows us to look ahead."

Looking forward, Director Hill said she intends to focus on modernising DHRS's systems and technology, supporting the development of the healthcare legislative framework and strengthening the use of healthcare intelligence to support informed decision making.

She also emphasised the importance of ensuring that DHRS remains accessible and responsive to the public.

"The most important thing the public should expect from me and my team is courage, in particular the courage to tackle difficult problems head-on and to question the way things have always been done rather than simply repeating it. Our intention is to work smarter every year, meeting the challenges in both healthcare and health insurance with fresh thinking and the willingness to change."

Director Hill said the department's role in health insurance is particularly important as Cayman residents continue to navigate the cost and complexity of healthcare.

"Affordability is one of the most personal issues in healthcare, because it's the point where regulation meets people's everyday lives and hard choices," she said. "DHRS is uniquely placed to help here. We collect the data, maintain the standards, enforce the law, and inform the decisions that shape the healthcare journey for the country."

She said DHRS must continue to uphold regulatory standards while also helping residents better understand their health-insurance coverage and rights.

Among her priorities for the coming years are completing the department's transition toward being fully paperless, supporting the Ministry's work to mature the legislative framework and addressing gaps that can leave vulnerable members of the population without the support they need.

Director Hill also identified the Cayman Islands' size as an opportunity for regulatory innovation.

"Being a small nation, we have a dependence on resources and expertise from overseas. However, I believe that our greatest advantage is also in our size, allowing us to pivot quickly to face changes in our environment," she said. "This agility means we can adapt our regulatory approach as needs change, rather than being weighed down by the process a larger system would carry."

Looking ahead three years, Director Hill said she would measure success by stronger understanding and compliance among the entities regulated by DHRS, progress toward more affordable healthcare and health insurance, and greater awareness among employers and employees of their rights and responsibilities.

"Above all, I would want every stakeholder - whether a practitioner, an insurer, an employer, or a patient, to know how to reach DHRS, and to feel genuinely welcome doing so."

The Cayman Islands Monetary Authority ("CIMA") has announced the appointment of a second Chief Supervision Officer, a new Acting Head and Acting Deputy Head of Banking Supervision, marking another significant milestone in its ongoing organisational restructure.

The appointments took effect on October 1st, 2026.

Gloria Glidden has been appointed the Chief Supervision Officer, Investments & Innovation, with responsibility for the Investments Supervision Division, Securities Supervision Division, VASP & Fintech Innovation Division, and the newly established Authorisations Division, which will manage all registration and licensing applications. Having more than a decade of regulatory experience, Mrs. Glidden has held several senior leadership roles at the Authority, including Deputy Head of the former Investments and Securities Division and, most recently, Head of the Banking Supervision Division, where she currently oversees the supervision of more than 150 international and commercial banks, trusts, development banks, money services businesses, building societies, and cooperative societies operating in and from the Cayman Islands.

Mrs. Glidden will work alongside Anna McLean, Chief Supervision Officer, Traditional Financial Services, who will oversee Banking Supervision, Fiduciary Supervision, Insurance Supervision, and Onsite Inspections. Mrs. McLean has served as CIMA's Chief Supervision Officer (formerly Deputy Managing Director – Supervision) since 2014, overseeing all supervisory divisions. In her new role, she will provide more targeted oversight across the traditional financial services sectors, enabling deeper sector-specific focus and enhanced supervisory effectiveness.

As part of the transition, Shakira Cox will serve as Acting Head of the Banking Supervision Division, bringing more than a decade of specialised supervisory and audit experience to the role. Ms. Cox has served as Deputy Head of Banking Supervision since 2017, where she supports the overall operation and management of the division across both on-site and off-site supervisory activities.

Kieron Cacho has been appointed Acting Deputy Head of the Banking Supervision Division. In this role, he will support the leadership and management of the Division and contribute to the effective delivery of its supervisory responsibilities. In his most recent post as Chief Analyst, Mr. Cacho gained extensive experience in banking supervision, including the assessment and analysis of financial institutions, regulatory compliance, risk management and prudential matters.

These appointments build on structural enhancements first introduced in October 2024, when CIMA updated its C-suite titles to improve efficiencies across regulatory areas and support a more manageable span of control.

Since then, CIMA has implemented a series of improvements across its legal, enforcement, and Anti-Money Laundering functions, including establishing a dedicated litigation team, updating divisional reporting lines, and introducing a Deputy Chief Executive Officer position to support evolving operational and regulatory needs.

CIMA's Chief Executive Officer, Mrs. Cindy Scotland, OBE, said the new CSO structure represents a deliberate step toward a more agile and sector-focused supervisory model.

“The introduction of specialised CSO roles allows us to sharpen our supervisory focus and ensure leadership is aligned with the distinct risks and characteristics of each financial services sector. “She added, “These changes strengthen accountability, enhance organisational efficiency, and support further development and upward mobility for our staff.”

The Authority's restructuring programme is being implemented through a phased approach, with additional updates to follow as the transition progresses. It also reflects CIMA's intentional and forward-looking transformation, with each phase designed to reinforce the Authority's resilience, strengthen supervisory capabilities, and ensure it remains responsive to the needs of a rapidly evolving financial services environment.

Together, these enhancements position CIMA to better address sector-specific risks and support the continued integrity, sustainability, and competitiveness of the Cayman Islands.

From Script to Screen: Cayman-Made Film, CAY BLOCK Tackles Addiction, Friendship and Redemption

By Christopher Tobutt

A talented young boxer with dreams of success finds himself caught between two worlds: the discipline required to pursue his ambitions and the temptations that threaten to pull him away from them.

That struggle lies at the heart of a new Cayman-produced film written by Caymanian storyteller Michael Barnes, a project that has now completed filming and entered post-production ahead of a planned release in 2027. The name of the film is CAY BLOCK.

Centred on the character Ricky, an amateur boxer whose promising future is challenged by poor choices and bad influences, the film explores themes of friendship, betrayal, toxic relationships and substance abuse, all through a distinctly Caymanian lens.

For Barnes, the story's message is straightforward.

"The real message of the movie is that dabbling in substance abuse can destroy aspiration" he said. While boxing provides the framework for the story, the film is ultimately less about sport than it is about choices and consequences. Barnes said he wanted to create something that would resonate with younger Caymanians and encourage them to think about the impact of the company they keep and the directions they choose in life.

The screenplay began taking shape on 8 February, 2026. Just a few months later, cameras were rolling.

The speed of that journey reflects a determination that many would recognise as distinctly Caymanian. Barnes, who works as an assistant water operator at the Water Authority, developed the project outside of his day job, driven by passions that include music, acting and stand-up comedy. Rather than viewing creative ambitions as something separate from everyday life, he simply got on with the work of bringing the story to life.

But of course, nothing we do that is valuable is free from obstacles. One challenge was encouraging people to audition and step in front of the camera. In the end, Barnes was able to gather a very talented cast: "The actor names are: Shakir, Renee, Deija, Jewel, Jerrin, Rae, George, Ren, and myself, Michael 'King' Barnes," he said.

Another obstacle came earlier, when Barnes approached two directors during CayFest in the hope of finding someone to help bring the screenplay to the screen.

Both declined.

Instead of shelving the project, he kept going. That persistence eventually led to filmmaker Tim Heath.

Heath recalls meeting Barnes at the festival and being immediately intrigued by the story. Although the two had never worked together before, Barnes shared the script and asked Heath to consider directing and producing the project.

The screenplay's Caymanian voice was one of the things that stood out to Heath, who felt the story deserved further development.

Recognising the need for additional perspective within the script, he invited Priscilla Pouchie to join the project as a key writer and reviser. Alongside helping refine and format the screenplay, she also took on the role of Ricky's mother.

For Heath, the project represented an opportunity to tell a story rooted in Caymanian culture while exploring themes with broader appeal, and keeping things real.

One aspect that particularly attracted him was the transformation at the centre of the narrative. "There is a redemption arc with the main character and everyone loves a good transformation story," he said.

The boxing element also offered creative opportunities behind the camera. Heath expanded training sequences, developed visual concepts inspired by boxing films and experimented with new cinematography techniques, incorporating drone footage and more ambitious storytelling through the camera.

He said he has volunteered nearly 20 days of production time because of his passion for telling stories that reflect community and culture.

The result has been a collaborative effort involving a cast of amateur actors and a crew united by the desire to tell a Caymanian story.

For Heath, the experience has been one of the highlights of his filmmaking journey.
For Barnes, it is the culmination of an idea that was so strong, it refused to stay on paper.
What began as a screenplay written earlier this year has evolved into a community-driven film production, bringing together actors, writers and filmmakers around a story that speaks to challenges many young people face while highlighting the resilience, ambition and determination that so often define Caymanians themselves.
Barnes is doing more than telling a story – through the process of storytelling and overcoming challenges to achieve great things, he is setting an example in real life.
With filming now complete and editing underway, the team is aiming to premiere the film in Cayman in 2027 before taking it to the international film festival circuit.

UCCI Celebrates Elderly Healthcare Aide Graduates, Advancing Compassionate Care in the Cayman Islands

Eighteen Healthcare aides recently graduated from the University College of the Cayman Islands (UCCI) as part of the College's Elderly Healthcare Aide programme.

The graduates were recognised for their commitment to developing the knowledge, practical skills and compassion required to support older persons across the Cayman Islands.

Hosted by UCCI's Ruth Eleanor McLaughlin School of Nursing and Workforce Readiness Centre, the Fall 2026 Graduation Ceremony brought together graduates, their families, faculty, University leadership and members of the wider community at the Sir Vassell Johnson Hall to mark the completion of the programme and an important milestone in the graduates' professional development.

The occasion represented more than the completion of a programme. It provided an opportunity to recognise the graduates' development, while reflecting on the increasingly important role of trained caregivers in supporting the dignity, wellbeing and quality of life of older persons within the Cayman Islands.

Preparing Caregivers to Serve with Skill and Compassion

Providing quality care for older persons requires more than practical capability. It calls for patience, empathy, professionalism and an understanding of the importance of preserving dignity, independence and quality of life throughout the ageing process.

At the heart of the programme is an understanding that caring for older persons extends beyond meeting physical needs. Compassion, dignity, fairness and competent care are equally important in supporting the overall wellbeing of those receiving care.

Quida Johnson-Shirley, Programme Director of the Ruth Eleanor McLaughlin School of Nursing, reflected on the importance of preparing caregivers who are equipped to respond to the broader needs of older persons.

"The Ruth Eleanor McLaughlin School of Nursing prepared these students to care with compassion while delivering care with dignity. As our society ages, particularly here in the Cayman Islands, we need caregivers who can meet the holistic needs of older persons, not only their physical needs, but also ensure that they are treated with dignity, equality and fairness and receive care from competent caregivers," said Johnson-Shirley.

Her remarks underscored the importance of approaching elderly care in a way that recognises not only physical needs, but also the individuality, dignity and overall wellbeing of each person receiving care.

The ceremony also included greetings from Dr. Livingston Smith, Provost and Vice President of Academic Affairs and Workforce Education, as well as contributions from faculty and students of the programme.

Responding to the Needs of Our Community

The importance of developing skilled caregivers was also reinforced by Dr. Michael Gayle, Chief Executive Officer of the Cayman Islands National Insurance Company (CINICO), who delivered the guest address during the ceremony.

"At CINICO, we spend millions of dollars every year on home healthcare for people who rely on elder-care services. As our population ages, these services are becoming increasingly significant and important. I am delighted to have been invited to address the graduates and to share a charge with them as they step into this new chapter of their professional lives," said Dr. Gayle.

His remarks highlighted the practical significance of elderly care within the Cayman Islands and the growing importance of having trained individuals equipped to support older persons as their healthcare and personal care needs evolve.

Healthcare Aides play an important role within this continuum of care, working alongside individuals, families and other healthcare professionals to provide support with everyday needs while helping older persons maintain their wellbeing, independence and dignity.

For the graduates, completing the programme therefore represents not only a personal and professional achievement, but also an opportunity to apply their knowledge and skills within an area of care that has direct significance for families and communities across the Cayman Islands.

Education with Purpose

For UCCI, the graduation reflects a broader institutional commitment to creating accessible pathways through which members of the community can develop practical skills, pursue professional growth and prepare themselves to contribute meaningfully within areas of importance to the Cayman Islands.

As the Cayman Islands' premier tertiary institution, UCCI recognises the role that education and workforce development can play in responding to the changing needs of the community. Through programmes that connect education with practical preparation, the University continues to create pathways through which individuals can develop their capabilities, pursue meaningful professional opportunities and contribute to the communities they serve.

For the graduates, the occasion marked both the culmination of their studies and the beginning of a new chapter in which the knowledge, skills and values developed through their training can be translated into meaningful service.

Their achievement also reflects the broader purpose of workforce education: creating opportunities for individuals to develop practical capabilities while preparing them to contribute to areas of importance within their communities.

As the graduates move forward, UCCI congratulates them on their achievement and encourages them to carry with them the compassion, professionalism and commitment to dignity that will guide the care they provide to older persons, their families and the communities they serve.

From classroom to courtroom: Collas Crill Moot returns for 2026

Students from across Cayman, Guernsey and Jersey are once again taking part in the Collas Crill Moot.

Now in its 19th year in Guernsey, fifth year in Cayman and third year in Jersey, the Moot continues to give sixth form students a unique opportunity to experience the legal profession first hand through a realistic mock trial competition.

Collas Crill teams have been visiting schools, colleges and high schools across the three jurisdictions to launch the 2026 competition.

The Moot sees students study real-life legal case notes covering a range of scenarios, including criminal, employment and defamation matters, before applying them in a mock court setting.

Throughout the four-round competition, participants are mentored and coached by Collas Crill lawyers and judged by some of the firm's partners.

While the Moot is an excellent introduction to legal practice for aspiring lawyers, it also helps students develop valuable life skills including public speaking, research, critical thinking, analysis and teamwork.

Students present their arguments before a judge, played by members of the Collas Crill team, and are assessed on their court etiquette, persuasiveness, clarity, body language, legal argument and time-keeping.

St Ignatius Catholic School took the trophy at the last Cayman Moot. The final took place in the Grand Court in George Town and was judged by the Honourable Justice David Doyle, Judge of the Grand Court.

Jason Romer, Chief Executive Officer of Collas Crill, said: "The Moot is one of the most rewarding initiatives we run as a firm. It gives students a genuine insight into the legal profession while helping them build confidence, advocacy and communication skills that will benefit them whatever career path they choose.

"Supporting the future generation is incredibly important to us, and the Moot reflects that commitment. It is also a true team effort, with colleagues across our offices giving their time, expertise and enthusiasm to make the programme a success year after year. We're looking forward to seeing another talented group of students step into the courtroom and rise to the challenge."

Connect pickleball tournament raises nearly US$10,000 for career support in Cayman

More than 50 players took to the courts on Friday, 25 September, for Connect by Nova's pickleball tournament, raising nearly US$10,000 to support the organisation's career development work in the Cayman Islands.

Connect provides free career guidance, training and practical support to help people explore their options, prepare for work and access meaningful opportunities in the Cayman job market. In 2025, it supported 839 people through its programmes and services. Proceeds from the tournament will help Connect continue that work and extend its outreach to more students and job seekers across Cayman, from school workshops and one-to-one guidance to support in accessing work experience and employment opportunities.

"Friday was a wonderful reminder of what our community can achieve when people come together," said Jasmine Zer-jal, Connect volunteer Board member and lead organiser of the tournament. "We're grateful to every sponsor, raffle donor and player who helped us raise these funds. Their support means Connect can reach more people with the guidance and opportunities that can make a real difference to their futures."

This year, 13 organisations participated in the programme, including Wheaton, RSM, CML, Nova Recruitment, Jacques Scott, Walkers, Mourant, BDO, KPMG, Moore, Campbells, Cayman Finance, Enterprise Cayman, and Deloitte.

The afternoon brought local teams together for friendly competition in support of a shared goal. Congratulations to the team from Cayman Enterprise City, who took home the tournament trophy.

Connect extends its thanks to event sponsors Wheaton, Jacques Scott, BDO, four+, and Signus for making the tournament possible; to the local businesses that generously donated raffle prizes; and to every player who spent their Friday afternoon on the courts.

Youth Empowerment Symposium Engages Youth in Tech

The Youth Services Unit (YSU) successfully hosted its fourth annual Youth Empowerment Symposium (YES) in Grand Cayman on 21-22 September 2026, bringing together students, young adults, government representatives, and community partners for two days of empowerment under the theme, “Innovate to Elevate: Empowering the Leaders of Tomorrow.”

The symposium, which explored innovative technology and career paths; encouraged youth to make smart, ethical and insightful decisions about their futures. Topics such as artificial intelligence, robotics, coding, policy, governance, inclusion and representation; were featured across sessions which included a School Delegates Conference open to public and private school students aged 12-17, and a Young Adult Night for youth aged 18-30.

The Young Adult Evening, a free dinner event, included opportunities to network, along with an interactive panel discussion with young Caymanian professionals sharing their tips and experiences navigating emerging technologies.

Minister for Youth, Sports, Culture & Heritage, Hon. Isaac Rankine welcomed the initiative and underscored the importance of creating pathways to responsibly embrace innovation and emerging technologies. “Our young people have shown tremendous interest in emerging technologies and in the opportunities, they can create for Cayman’s future. As a Ministry, we want to ensure they have access to the knowledge, skills and experiences that will help them explore careers in these fields and become active participants in shaping what comes next. Just as importantly, we want them to approach innovation responsibly, with an understanding of ethics, social responsibility and the importance of preserving who we are as Caymanians. Initiatives like the Youth Empowerment Symposium are helping to prepare our young people to become informed, adaptable and responsible leaders of tomorrow.

The Symposium is an initiative by the Ministry of Youth, Sports, Culture & Heritage and the YSU, sponsored by Deriv, Of-Reg and KPMG. Workshops facilitated by 345Robotics, Deriv and the Department of Education Services provided interactive learning opportunities and encouraged discussions among participants on the issues explored throughout the event.

Jordan McDonald, who attended the Young Adults Evening reflected on the experience, sharing: “It was an informative and inspiring event. We got to connect with like-minded people. We learned about emerging technologies, and I left feeling we could be the next great innovators of our country.”

Head of Youth Services Unit, Mellony Bryan-Waugh, said the symposium will continue to focus on creating meaningful opportunities for young people to develop and excel. “YES, will always be about creating spaces for young people in Cayman to grow, learn and set new standards for excellence locally and regionally. We plan to continue introducing new avenues for young people to develop their potential and be supported.”

JN Money Supports Nepal Flood Relief Efforts

JN Money Services has joined relief efforts to support communities affected by the devastating floods in Nepal, in solidarity with the significant Nepalese community in the Cayman Islands, where the company operates.

Through the initiative, JN Money will donate US$1 from every transaction sent from the Cayman Islands to Nepal via its remittance service through October 31, 2026. The funds will be channelled to the Government of Nepal’s Disaster Relief Fund to assist with the recovery efforts.

The floods, which struck Nepal on August 26, 2026, claimed more than 1,400 lives and left more than 5,600 people unaccounted for, creating an urgent need for humanitarian assistance as affected residents face the difficult task of rebuilding their lives.

Cedrica Reid, Marketing and Sales Manager at JN Money Services, expressed deep sympathy for the people of Nepal, particularly the families who have lost loved ones. “We recognise that this tragedy has also deeply affected members of the Nepalese community in the Cayman Islands, many of whom have family and friends back home,” she said.

“At JN Money, we believe that our responsibility extends beyond facilitating transactions to supporting the communities and families who depend on us. Through initiatives such as this, we can harness the power of our network to make a meaningful difference, and to demonstrate that even small contributions, when combined, can provide valuable assistance to communities in need,” Ms Reid pointed out.

She noted that the initiative also provides customers with an opportunity to contribute to the relief effort through their regular remittance transactions.

“Every transaction sent to Nepal during this period will make a difference. By contributing US$1 from each transaction, we are creating an opportunity for our customers to play a part in helping families and communities recover. We anticipate that this collective effort will provide some measure of relief to those who have suffered loss,” she added.

The outreach initiative forms part of JN Money’s longstanding commitment to support communities affected by disasters. Over the years, the

CAYMAN PRIDE PARADE RETURNS 10 OCTOBER WITH A MESSAGE OF BELONGING, VISIBILITY AND ACTION

Cayman Pride, presented by marquee sponsor Eldridge Legal, will take to the streets on Saturday, 10 October 2026, bringing the community together for an afternoon of celebration, visibility and belonging.

The Cayman Pride Parade begins at 3:30 PM at XQ's on West Bay Road and will make its way to the Kimpton Seafire Resort + Spa, where the celebration will continue with the official Pride after-party.

At the heart of this year's Pride is a simple message: everybody matters.

"At Cayman Pride, our team — Chantal Basson, Tara Bush, Julian Foster, Schmarah McCarthy and Zee Wright — wants to create a genuine sense of belonging while celebrating both our sameness and our uniqueness," said Tara Bush of Cayman Pride. "Whatever our background, nationality, race, gender or identity, we all share a fundamental need to know that we belong, that we are valued and that there is a place for us in our community."

For Cayman Pride, the annual parade is about much more than one day of celebration. It is an opportunity to build awareness, strengthen community connections and help create a Cayman Islands where people can live with dignity, respect and a genuine sense of belonging.

This year, Cayman Pride is also calling on businesses and organisations across the Cayman Islands to turn their commitments to diversity, equity and inclusion into visible action.

"We hear a great deal about diversity and inclusion, but Pride gives organisations an opportunity to demonstrate what those words mean in practice," Bush said. "We want to see more businesses come out, stand alongside their employees and the wider community, and show that inclusion is not simply something written in a policy or discussed in a boardroom. It is something we live."

Julian Foster, Marketing Director for Cayman Pride, said the growing visibility of Pride demonstrates the importance of creating spaces where everyone feels represented and welcomed.

"Visibility matters. When businesses, organisations, families, friends and allies stand alongside the LGBTQIA+ community, it sends a powerful message that everyone has a place here," Foster said. "Pride gives us an opportunity not only to celebrate who we are, but to show what an inclusive Cayman can look like. We want people to see themselves reflected in this event and know that they belong."

Cayman Pride says the support of local businesses, volunteers, sponsors and community partners has been instrumental in making the 2026 celebration possible.

"We have an incredible team behind Pride, and there is a genuine energy and sense of purpose among us," Bush said. "A tremendous amount of work is happening behind the scenes — from marketing and creative development to sponsorship, volunteers, safety and logistics. Everyone brings something to the table, and that collective effort is what Pride is really about."

Following the parade, celebrations will continue at the Kimpton Seafire Resort + Spa, which is preparing to welcome the Pride community for the official after-party.

Cayman Pride welcomes everyone —

members of the LGBTQ+ community, families, friends, allies, businesses and community organisations — to come out, participate and show their support.

The Cayman Pride Parade takes place Saturday, 10 October 2026, beginning at 3:30 PM at XQ's on West Bay Road and concluding at the Kimpton Seafire Resort + Spa. Both events are free to attend, with no registration necessary.

Come as you are. Walk with us. Stand with us. Celebrate with us.

SHOW UP FOR LOVE.

Because everybody matters. And everybody deserves to belong.

Fraser's fastest in own relay race

The swimming season splashed off with the Fraser Properties 4 x 400M Relay, with an amazing 22 teams taking to the water.

There was plenty of competition, particularly across the U12 and Over 40s categories, but most importantly, lots of fun, great team spirit and a fantastic atmosphere to start to the new campaign.

Overall first place was no surprise: Fraser Flyers, composing Jim Fraser, his Olympian son Brett and Tali and Sacha Didier.

The U12 race was won by the Stingray Stingers comprising of Victoria Bain, Arty Clark, Zachary De Wit and Fiona Martin. Second U12s were the CBAC Sea Storm and third were Saltwater Sistas.

Fraser Properties again supported this super-fun relay format and every swimmer went home with a fabulous canvas backpack.

The Vitamin Shoppe handed out some much-appreciated post-race goodies, and an army of volunteers gave their invaluable time.

Meanwhile, things are starting to look a little different around the future home of Cayman's new Aquatic Centre.

Over the past few weeks, the site has been a hive of activity with the construction fence up, preparing the site for the next major stage, excavation of the pool.

► Winners Jim Fraser, Sacha Didier, Tali Didier and Brett Fraser

Trees have been felled and the site cleared, but some of that timber has already started a new chapter. The beautiful Shady Olive wood was offered to the community and reclaimed for future projects rather than simply going to waste.

The site is located alongside the existing Lions Pool and in front of the Boxing Gym in George Town.

Top jet skiers at world finals

This year, 14 riders include the three 2026 CIWA National Tour Overall Champions:

Nathan Ebanks - Pro Open

Tyler Watler - Amateur

Maxwell Lawrence - Novice

From seasoned competitors to riders taking on the World Finals for the first time, Team Cayman is representing. The competition started on Saturday and finishes this weekend.

Rugby squad scrum down for first aid

The Cayman Rugby community can now boast that 16 members are now officially Mental Health First Aiders.

The team recently completed a two-day course delivered by the Addison Kelly Foundation with support from the Alex Panton Foundation. The course was led by Emily Kelly and Dymphna Carter.

A Cayman Rugby spokesperson said: "We are incredibly grateful for this opportunity and for the organisations who continue to invest in the wellbeing of our community."

"We have walked away not only with knowledge and practical tools, but with the confidence to recognise when someone may be struggling, start a conversation, listen without judgement and help connect them with the right support.

"Because rugby is about more than what happens on the field. It's about people. Connection. Belonging. Looking after each other."

A huge thank you was given to the MAF NPO Foundation for making this possible through their continued commitment to the FIRE Project.

Greaves sparkles but India dominate

► Justin Greaves made his maiden ton

Justin Greaves struck a superb century as West Indies posted a challenging 295 for seven against India in the first One-Day International in India.

But it was batting maestro Virat Kohli and skipper Shubman Gill who displayed their mastery in 50-over format with virtuoso hundreds as India subdued the West Indies by eight wickets in the first ODI in Thiruvananthapuram on Sunday. Kohli became the second batter in history to register 15,000 runs in one-dayers after Sachin Tendulkar.

India lead the three-match series 1-0, after Kohli (139 not out, 10x4, 9x6) and Gill (110, 107 balls) milked 150 runs for the second wicket to help the hosts scale down 296 in 41.4 overs, ending up at 300 for 2.

At least Greaves had the satisfaction of hitting his maiden effort of 101. The 32-year-old Barbadian has played for both Barbados and the Combined Campuses and Colleges in West Indian domestic cricket.

A seam-bowling all-rounder, Greaves was among four West Indies players to make their Test debuts on the tour of Australia in 2023-24.

► Virat Kohli passed 15,000 ODI runs

Greaves had made his ODI debut much before playing a Test. A month shy of turning 28, he played his first ODI in January 2022, when Ireland toured the West Indies. He finished the series with three low scores, and without getting to bowl a single delivery. But he's improved considerably since then and is now a vital member of the ODI team.

Commanders down high flying Seahawks

The Washington Commanders had a bitter-sweet victory over Super Bowl champs Seattle Seahawks on Sunday.

Commanders won 33-31 but their hopes of getting back in the play-offs were dealt a huge blow last week as quarterback Jayden Daniels dislocated his left elbow.

But Daniels is expected back in a few weeks and the Commanders must be pleased that at one point they led 24-10 after experienced back-up Marcus Mariota threw his third touchdown pass.

The Seahawks drew level in the fourth quarter, but Sam Darnold, who returned from a one game missed through injury, then threw his second interception, and it was returned by linebacker Kain Medrano for a 50-yard score.

That Washington victory halted a 12-game win streak by Seattle, which included last season's Super Bowl run.

The New England Patriots were their opponents in the Super Bowl, but their quarterback Drake Maye has struggled since.

After having only 11 turnovers last year, he already has seven so far after another three against the Jacksonville Jaguars, and he was benched as the Jags romped to a 35-6 home win.

Malaysia sets the pace for next F1 race

Formula One's next race is the Bahrain Grand Prix this weekend, but there's a quirk - the 16th round of the season is actually taking place almost 4,000 miles away in Malaysia.

The Bahrain Grand Prix was cancelled in April due to the war in Iran, but it was re-scheduled to this Sunday, 4 October in Malaysia.

It sits between the Azerbaijan Grand Prix held over the weekend, and will be followed by the Singapore Grand Prix on 11 October, resulting in a triple-header.

George Russell closed the gap in the drivers' championship to 66 points from his Mercedes teammate Kimi Antonelli after taking his third win of the season at the Azerbaijan Grand Prix on Sunday.

Antonelli, who was hampered with all sorts of issues across the weekend, recovered from sixteenth to finish fifth.

We partner with our clients on an exclusive and/retained basis to secure exceptional senior talent, and we work alongside their leadership teams to strengthen organisational design, culture and individual performance.

THE ROLE

This is a broad, high-ownership leadership role suited to someone equally comfortable winning and delivering client work as they are running the operational, financial and regulatory backbone of a small professional services firm. You will be responsible for the full commercial engine of the business — new business development, client relationship management, and delivery of executive search, organisational consulting and coaching engagements — as well as the day-to-day management of the company itself, including finance, compliance, HR and marketing. Over time, you will also build and lead a team of recruiters and resourcers as the business scales.

KEY RESPONSIBILITIESBusiness Development & Client Relationship Management

- Building new client relationships through networking, marketing and proactive business development activity.
- Managing existing client relationships, including ongoing communication on open roles, talent management challenges, and ensuring all assigned mandates are progressed and filled in a timely manner to the client's satisfaction.
- Identifying opportunities in the Cayman market to develop new service lines and grow the business.
- Building and maintaining a wide network of relevant professionals, both in Cayman and internationally.
- Negotiating client contracts, preparing fee proposals, managing service levels, and providing client reporting.
- Contributing to business strategy and market analysis, and reporting to the Directors on business performance, operational priorities and growth opportunities.

Executive Search & Recruitment (Exclusive/Retained Mandates)

- Actively sourcing candidates for open exclusive/retained executive search mandates and managing the entire recruitment lifecycle, from briefing through to offer and onboarding.
- Building a team of recruiters and resourcers over time as the business grows, and providing leadership and mentoring to that team.

Organisational Consulting & Coaching

- Delivering organisational consulting and advisory services to corporate clients, including strategic HR consulting, organisational design and change management.
- Delivering organisational coaching programmes to corporate clients, including team coaching, leadership development and culture change initiatives.
- Providing one-to-one executive and professional coaching on a corporate-sponsored basis, including designing coaching frameworks, conducting coaching sessions and tracking client outcomes.
- Maintaining relevant professional coaching qualifications and accreditations, and staying current with developments in coaching methodologies, strategic HR and organisational behaviour.

Marketing & Brand Development

- Managing the company's website and social media presence and developing marketing materials.
- Attending industry events and networking opportunities, and supporting ongoing brand development and business growth.

General Business Operations & Administration

- Overseeing the day-to-day operations of the company, including office management, vendor management, and maintenance of all business licences, permits, registrations and corporate records.

Financial Administration

- Managing invoicing, accounts receivable and accounts payable, budgeting, and liaison with external accountants.
- Overseeing payroll processes and expense management, and maintaining appropriate financial records and controls.

Compliance & Regulatory

- Ensuring the company's compliance with applicable Cayman Islands laws and regulations, including the Labour Act, Data Protection Act, Anti-Money Laundering regulations, and Trade and Business Licensing requirements.
- Maintaining required records and liaising with relevant regulatory bodies, where applicable.

Human Resources & People Management

- As the company grows, overseeing onboarding, policy development and performance management.
- Maintaining human resources records and managing work permit applications and renewals for employees and personnel.

Note: this list is not exhaustive, and the role may evolve to include additional duties and responsibilities as the business grows.

WHAT WE'RE LOOKING FOR

- A minimum of 8 years' experience in executive search and/or recruitment, ideally with exposure to retained/exclusive search mandates.
- A minimum of 3 years' experience in a managerial/leadership role within an agency or HR advisory firm with responsibility for developing new client relationships.
- Demonstrated experience in organisational consulting, strategic HR and organisational design.
- A recognised professional coaching qualification/accreditation (e.g. ICF or equivalent), with experience delivering executive and team coaching to corporate clients.
- A strong existing network within the Cayman Islands and/or international professional and financial services community.
- Solid commercial and business management acumen, including comfort with financial administration, budgeting and operational oversight.
- Excellent relationship management, communication and negotiation skills, with a genuine client-service mindset.
- A self-starting, entrepreneurial approach with the ability to manage competing priorities across business development, delivery and operations.
- Prior people management or team-building experience, or a clear aptitude to lead and develop a team as the business scales.
- A relevant Bachelor's Degree in a relevant discipline.
